An Open Letter To The Youth Of Winchester

Please Drive Sober

What will it take?

What must happen to make you realize that you can't drink and drive? A fourth death? Another friend's funeral?

Hasn't losing three of your contemporaries in less than two months to alcohol-related car accidents made that point clear?

Now don't get your backs up. We aren't saying that every Winchester teenager drinks and drives. And we aren't pretending for a minute that the only drunk drivers in Winchester are under 21. Adults by the dozens drive drunk. Some have killed themselves and other innocent people. And it's an adult society that makes jokes of drunks while glamorizing the cocktail party and the "macho men" who get all their gusto in life from a bottle of beer.

But adults aren't facing a prom night tonight and graduation parties over the next several days.

Our plea for sober driving goes out to everyone. But this week in particular, it goes out to you, the youth of Winchester.

Common sense or cold frightful statistics should tell you that drinking and driving don't mix. Sixty-eight people are killed every day in this country in alcohol-related accidents. That comes to almost 25,000 deaths a year. Your chances of becoming one of those statistics are more than quadrupled with the consumption of just five beers in one hour.

But those are the same statistics you heard in drivers ed classes. Apparently you weren't impressed by them then, so why should you be impressed today?

If cold logic doesn't convince you, try this. Try to put yourself into one of the pictures we have printed on this page and elsewhere in the paper. Try to imagine yourself as:

One of the victims — Your life is really just beginning. You've got a lot of good friends. Some great adventures are ahead. A career, college, a husband or wife. Try to imagine giving up life tonight. No tomorrow.

Think about that. And while you're at it, try to imagine how you'd feel tomorrow morning if you drove drunk tonight, had an accident and killed — that's right — killed a friend. Let that thought sink in for a minute. Weigh that against the momentary embarrassment of admitting you're too drunk to drive. That embarrassment is fleeting; the death of a friend will haunt you for the rest of your life.

Think about that. One of the injured — You are an active, lively individual. You like to do things — play games, hike, swim, run, walk. Try to imagine life as a cripple, unable

GRIEVING FRIENDS — Despite pouring rain, three of Wayne Capone's friends find it difficult to leave the cemetery long after the funeral ceremony ended Friday morning. The casket had already been lowered into the grave but many of Wayne's friends kept a silent vigil at the site for a long time afterwards. (Staff photo by Noreen Murphy)

GRIEVING PARENTS — Mr. Joseph Capone helps Mrs. Capone into the car after the funeral for their son Friday at Wildwood Cemetery. (Editor's note: We print this picture reluctantly and only after conferring personally with the entire Capone family. The decision was made jointly to print the picture in the hopes that it would convey to the community, particularly to the youth, the grief and horror of such an avoidable tragedy. If this picture and the others on this page can shock or scare just one youth into giving up driving drunk, the Capones and The Star believe the picture will have served a purpose. Teen Drinking/Driving Problem Growing

By SUSAN SCHNECK

Unfortunately, it often takes a tragedy to force people to stop, stand back and take a good hard look at what is happening to themselves and to the world around them.

And Winchester has experienced two shocking tragedies these past six weeks — three teen deaths in two alcohol-related car accidents — which have drawn attention to a major town and nationwide problem: youth drinking and driving.

"Most car accidents involve alcohol," said Winchester Police Safety Officer John McKinley.

"And in Winchester there is a lot of drinking among teenagers," Police Chief John McHugh said. "There's no doubt about it."

That seemed to be the consensus among Winchester High School faculty also. "The kids think accidents won't happen to them," said High School Guidance Chairman Anthony N. DeBiase. "They think they're invincible at this age. They think they can mix drugs, alcohol and driving and that they can handle a car."

"When adults try telling them about how dangerous it is, (the kids think) they're just trying to scare them," he continued. "The kids think they're hypocrites."

The recent shock of two accidents has made some teachers close to the youths feel the problem may never be resolved.

"We have the same problem every year," said DeBiase, referring to the accidents. "Liquor is very available to the students. There is a place in Lynn which serves minors and many of the kids have fake Id's that look as if they were 20."

"We know the stuff is available," he continued. "Drinking seems to be on the increase. Live fast, die young — that's their attitude. And when something like this (the accident) happens, they cry over it and then they go right back to what they were doing before." (Ironically, DeBiase said that after the first accident.)

DeBiase's assessment was correct. Students mourned and were extremely shaken over the April death of two of their peers. But one month later, another Winchester teenager got into the driver's

There's An Alternative If You Aren't Sober Enough To Drive

You have a choice if you feel you, your date, or the person you're riding with can't drive home from the prom tonight.

The Winchester Police Safety Officer, John McKinley, is offering to give a ride to anyone who wants one — no questions asked.

Call the police station, at 729-1212, and McKinley will pick you up anywhere, in his own, unmarked car, and give you a ride home.

McKinley said he is looking

seat with an alcohol content in his blood that was more than double the level that is considered legally drunk.

Less than a mile down the road, his car went out of control.

But the problem does not exclusively rest with the younger generation. "Alcoholism is no doubt the biggest social problem this society has and we have yet to conquer it," Officer McKinley emphasized. "It's an accepted way of life but it is killing a lot of people."

Woburn District Court Adult probation officer Dan Harrington said that Woburn court is "inundated with 'operating unders,'" and estimated that about 400 of these vehicle violators appear there annually. "In any given day an appreciable percentage of any number of cases in Woburn Court are alcohol-related," he said. "Even the violent crimes. But the bulk of auto mishaps are alcohol-related."

"I would say that a good portion of the car accidents in this town are alcohol-related," estimated Winchester police officer Eric Benson.

McKinley pointed out that Winchester has an alcoholism problem just like every other community.

"This community has a problem," he said. "It's an affluent bedroom community and that's where you run into this."

DeBiase agreed. "The community itself is great for cocktail parties," he said. "They may not sell liquor in Winchester, but everyone goes out of town to buy it."

"Winchester is an affluent community," McHugh explained. "We don't have a street drunk problem here. Most people here are very cautious about drinking. Let's face it, you can find alcohol in almost every house in town."

Harrington said alcoholism affects our society at all social and economic levels. "The most law-abiding, conscientious people have a separate morality regarding alcohol," he said. "When it comes to alcohol, they say, 'I'm okay, I can drive.'"

But drinking and driving is an especially prevalent problem among teenagers, according to McKinley and Harrington. McHugh attributes teen drinking to a number of factors including peer pressure, social pressures and what he terms drinking's "macho image."

And there are other factors that are not quite as discernable. "Some parents, when confronted with the fact that their child has been drinking say, 'Thank God they're just drinking, rather than taking drugs,'" McHugh said.

"No one under 20 knows how to drink regardless of how precocious that kid is," claimed Harrington. "The car becomes the classroom and that's a deadly classroom. It's a demolition derby out there."

Mystery Photo

Well, it seems last week's mystery photo wasn't as tough as we thought, at least for those who lived around the corner of Ridge st. and Hutchinson rd., where the traffic sign and fire hydrant are located.

But enough about last week's puzzle. This week, our photographer, Noreen Murphy, has come up with a photo we're sure will stump even the most observant Winchester expert.

But if it doesn't, we'll keep trying, and run a photo every week of a local landmark, person, animal or anything else that you'll almost recognize.

If you think you know what this week's subject is, and where it is, fill out the form and send it to Mystery Photo, The Winchester Star, 3 Church st.

We're on a low budget, so there are no prizes, not even a free trip to Medford. But you will get your name in the paper, and we'll keep a running tally of the winners, and print the name of whoever has the most correct answers each week.

No chance you're going to get this one. But Good Luck!

Last Week's Winners:
Mrs. Rita L. Jacques, 11 Ridge st.
Peter Ravanis, 23 Lockland rd.
Stephen Kelly, 1 Taft circ.
Betty and Richard Hardin, 7 Fox Hunt
Lucy Moda, 2 Hutchinson rd.
Richard Rogers, 2 Chestnut st.

Congress Could Kill CARD

Congress may shoot down Winchester's revitalization program before it even gets a chance to begin.

The country's legislators are considering placing severe restrictions on the use of industrial revenue bonds, limiting the amount of bonds each state can issue.

These bonds are the key to the CARD (Commercial Area Redevelopment Plan) program, since CARD is a mechanism used to get these low interest loans to local businesses.

The bonds are sold to banks in return for low interest loans to businesses in the CARD district.

If Congress goes ahead with its plans, the amount of bonds available to communities will be cut by 23 percent, or over $83 million according to Mark Leff, the public information officer for MIFA, (the Mass. Industrial Finance Agency) the agency which distributes the bonds.

Furthermore, Congress is thinking about changing the definition of what areas are eligible for revenue bonds.

If the definition of "distressed area" is changed, no CARD district in the state will be eligible for revenue bonds.

Leff explained Congress was considering the changes to save money and curb abuses. Congressmen have estimated, Leff said, that if the program was ended, it would save about $200 million from the budget next year.

Of course, Leff pointed out, there would be less money coming in from bond-sponsored industry.

The other reason for stopping the program was the abuses committed in other states. In Pennsylvania, for example, bonds were used to construct suburban shopping malls far from a distressed industrial area.

Winchester's economic development coordinator, John Connery, doesn't think these possible restrictions will hurt Winchester's chance of getting MIFA loans.

"I don't think this will effect Winchester as much as it would effect other communities," Connery said.

"Banks have to buy the bonds and give the loans," he said, "and Winchester banks don't have many of those bonds in their portfolios."

So, Connery continued, Winchester banks might be more eager to pick up the bonds that banks in communities which had already used MIFA loans.

"There's a lot of hope and optimism in that statement," Connery added, "but Winchester is going to get MIFA funding."

I'm almost sure of that."

Leff, however, took a decidedly less hopeful and optimistic view.

"If this goes through, we're going to have to start saying no to a lot of people and a lot of towns," he said. "It could have dire consequences for downtown revitalizations all over the state, including Winchester."

Leff said he isn't certain the changes will pass Congress — "You never know what the Congress is going to do," he said. — But he added that the legislators had "expressed a keen desire to do something with the industrial revenue bonds."

Rotary To Beautify Rotary

The Winchester Rotary Club has decided to live up to its name and help out the looks of the downtown rotary.

The club plans to spend $14,000 to spruce up the traffic circle by planting yews, roses and rhododendrons under the railroad tracks.

The chairman of the Rotary's projects committee, Fire Chief Robert McElhinney, presented the proposal to the selectmen this week. The board agreed to maintain the planting if the Rotary put them in.

McElhinney told the selectmen the Rotary wanted to help out the downtown revitalization effort.

"This year we thought we'd try to be in keeping with the theme of bringing in the economic co-ordinator and revitalizing the downtown," McElhinney said.

"So we decided on a beautification project to beautify the rotary," he said.

The chief explained the Rotary had contacted a landscape architect from Mahoney's Rocky Ledge, who had spent the day watching the foot traffic pattern on the rotary and deciding what plants could go there.

"The final plant shopping list included three different kinds of yews, junipers, dogwoods, a Japanese maple, azaleas and 20 rose bushes.

The cost of the plants will run to about $6,600, and with labor, loam, mulch and rocks, the project will cost just over $14,000.

McElhinney noted that his organization had contacted the Winchester Garden club to see if that group would help with the care of the plants.

Besides beautifying the rotary, the plantings will have another advantage: they will keep pedestrians from crossing the circle.

Town Manager Thomas Groux said that trying to cross the rotary was a particularly dangerous undertaking, because the buttresses prevented anyone standing on the rotary from seeing cars coming around it.

Selectmen Near Pact With Disposal Firm

The selectmen appear ready to sign a contract with UOP to take the town's trash for its the North Andover facility's electrical-generating disposal plant.

If, that is, the company can answer a few questions raised at Monday's selectmen's meeting.

Town Counsel Douglas Randall had some reservations whether the town would have enough say in the running of the plant.

And Selectman Wade Welch wanted to make sure that after the town's twenty year contract ran out, the town wouldn't be thrown over for "a better looking girl."

Welch said to insure the company didn't decide they could dump Winchester as a participant for a higher-paying customer, he wanted the right of first refusal.

Actually, the selectmen came away with a pretty good answers to their questions, courtesy of U.O.P.'s John Phillips and the members of the town's Solid Waste Disposal Committee.

The selectmen were eager to move ahead on the project, and they will probably decide whether to sign the contract at their next meeting.

But this week, the selectmen didn't want "to be cavalier about moving to the next step" and signing, as Board Chairman Edward F. O'Connell put it. So they gave the wording of the contract some scrutiny, and came up with a couple of good questions.

Randall had only a few problems with the wording of the inch-thick contract. He said he could find "nothing I can say is illegal" just something that became unclear in the garble of lawyer-speak.

"It's not to clear exactly how the community is going to impact on the actual operation of the plant," Randall told the selectmen.

"Let's say for instance that the towns involved decide the non-ferrous metal recovery process (from which the town gets 50 percent of the profits) is being handled poorly," he posited. "It doesn't say in the contract how such a conflict is resolved."

UOP's Phillips answered that the communities "voice" was the community representative on the board — either a member of the state Bureau of Solid Waste, or some one picked by the towns.

Phillips also noted each town had a vote on the advisory board, and that any on-going dispute could be handled through arbitration.

But Randall replied that "arbitration is only brought about when there is a stalemate here doesn't seem to be any. T day-to-day workable power for the towns."

But Randall also noted that the project was "sufficiently down the road that this will work itself out."

Wade Welch had a question, on something even further down the road — he wanted to know what happened when the town had to renew the contract in 20 years.

"In the year 21, I don't want to them to sell to the highest bidder the plant we helped to build," Welch said.

"I'm basing my vote on the fact that this is a good thing and we're getting in on the ground floor, and those who don't get in will be left out in the cold," he said.

"If we don't have any rights, maybe someone will outbid us, and then we'll be out in the cold," he said.

Phillips allayed Welch's fears somewhat by pointing out that in the contract, it stated when contract time comes around, UOP must offer a new contract to the original participants first.

Of course, that doesn't say what the terms of the contract will be.

As Randall said, "While this does put us in a priority situation, it doesn't give us any leverage in regard to price."

Despite these reservations, the selectmen seemed pleased with the way the negotiations with UOP are going.

Welch commented at the end of the meeting, "I'm feeling better already," and O'Connell added, "I am too."

Kiwanis Fish Derby Casts Off

Winchester's young fishermen will be casting their lines to catch a prize Saturday, when the Kiwanis will hold its annual Fishing Derby.

The contest at Wedge Pond will be open to students from grades 1-8, who can compete for 15 prizes.

There will be 7 prizes each for the boys and the girls, and one prize for the largest fish caught during the day. The prizes will be given out for the biggest sunfish, the biggest perch, or anything else that's of any size.

Worms are, of course, the only bait allowed. And each child must be accompanied by a parent.

Applications for the derby have already been circulated through the schools, or can be picked up at the Winchester Sports Shop. There is no cost.

Participants will meet at the Town Hall at 9 a.m. (fishermen must start early) and march to Wedge Pond.

The Derby will start at Wedge at about 9:30 a.m., and continue until 1 p.m. The chuck wagon will be at the scene all day to provide coffee, donuts and hot dogs for those who don't rough it and eat the catch.

Dog Pound Becomes Nursery

Dog officer Nick Molea said he locked up the dog shelter as usual Sunday night, not even suspecting one of the dogs there was pregnant.

So he got quite a surprise when he opened the pound Monday morning to find a dog he'd picked up from Grove place had whelped eight puppies.

Now he's calling the dog "mother," spreading blankets around the dogs' run, and carefully attempting to keep other dogs as far away as possible.

Molea said he'll probably send the dogs to the Winchester SPCA's Woburn shelter, although he noted that eight black puppies had already been sent there Sunday night from Parkview Apartments.

"In fact," he said, "When I first saw them, I thought the guy from Parkview had snuck them in here."

He said he'd love for someone to adopt the dogs, or any of the other six down at the shelter, "as long as it's to a good family."

There's no charge for the pups, and anyone over 18 can have one. The shelter is at the transfer station, and Molea has a new number 729-5151, and there's a recorder to take calls at any hour.

Time To Get Your License
Next Wednesday, June 10, is the last day to get a dog license in Winchester without paying a fine.

Now, the licenses run at $7 for a female, $4 for a male, and $4 for a spayed female. After Wednesday, the prices will go up by a dollar.

Police Log

Two Teenage Girls Arrested

On June 2, Winchester police arrested two Waltham girls, ages 17 and 19, for breaking and entering at nighttime and larceny.

Police charged the Waltham residents with breaking into Bellino's Pizza on Main st. Winchester at 4:50 a.m. and stealing food.

But the girls made the task of locating them quite easy for police.

Shortly after the pizza shop was broken into, the girls approached a man with a motorcycle in Waltham Center, claiming that they had just broken into a sub shop in Winchester.

But unbeknownst to the girls they were talking to an off duty Waltham officer. The girls were munching on sandwiches and carrying a brown paper bag.

The officer spotted a cruiser and called him over. One of the girls remained with police but the other fled. The girls had discarded the paper bag but police retrieved it and discovered some cold cut sandwiches inside.

The Waltham police notified Winchester police and discovered that a sub shop in Winchester had been broken into. A six by three foot window had been broken at the shop on 878 Main st. Inside, the interior was intact except for some cold cuts on the counter and floor. The Bellinos said the intruder(s) had caused them $100 worth of damages for the window and food.

While one of the two girls and police were at the Winchester Police station, the other girl sauntered in asking if anyone had been looking for her. Prior to her arrival, the girl who had stayed with the officers admitted to breaking into the shop. Both were locked up.

Two Winchester Police officers fell right into a trap — literally.

The officers had raced to Manchester field on Sunday May 31 responding to a call regarding a fire in the bleachers.

But they were met by more than a small fire. While heading toward the bleachers police suddenly found themselves stuck in a hole that was seven by three feet wide and one and one half feet deep. Apparently the trench had been dug for this very purpose as it was covered with a blanket and camouflaged with dirt and leaves.

The Fire Department rescued the car from the trench.

But the paranksters did not have the last laugh.

A white Volkswagen had been observed in the area at the time of the fire. After its passengers had shouted obscenities to the officers, the car had raced from the scene.

Later on, police saw the same car speeding and chased it. One passenger jumped out of the vehicle while it was moving and fled through the backyards of nearby houses.

While they were chasing the car, police saw a plastic bag being tossed out of the window and radioed this information to another car.

Police stopped the Volkswagen after a chase and arrested a Thornberry rd. resident for speeding, running a stop sign and refusing to stop for an officer. The plastic bag was retrieved and found to contain a green substance police believe to be marijuana.

television set and expensive rugs were clearly visible, the intruder only took a class ring. The burglar entered the home by breaking a window inside the door of a sun porch.

Police are investigating a Woburn man who was discovered lying on the lawn in front of the police station. An officer had approached him only to discover the man was bleeding from two wounds on his arms and clutching a 10 inch pointed solid metal stake in his left hand.

When approached, the officer said the man seemed to go into a rage. Two officers disarmed him after a brief struggle, and handcuffed him. He was described as "emotionally upset and frothing at the mouth."

After he was placed in custody the man told police that he had had an argument with his girlfriend. Police had heard about the fight earlier but it had ended when the police arrived on the scene.

The Woburn resident told police that maybe if he stabbed himself, his girlfriend could learn a lesson. He was processed for protective custody.

Chase Ends In Success

Police arrested a Quincy man for breaking and entering in to O'Neil's Pharmacy on Washington st., Wednesday, May 27.

The man was one of two men who broke the skylight of the building, looped a volleyball net over a roof vent and lowered themselves down into the pharmacy. A large quantity of assorted drugs were taken.

Later, police apprehended a suspect with sneakers that matched the impressions on several of the shelves. The sneakers had tar on them and glass was subsequently found inside the pants of the suspect.

After the break-in, witnesses had described two suspects to police and officers then searched the Washington st. area and continued down Cross st. Police noticed a man fitting one of the descriptions turn onto Forest st.

Police apprehended the man and discovered that his sneakers matched the impressions on several of the shelves. The sneakers had tar on them and subsequently police found glass inside the pants of the Quincy man. He was then arrested and police are still looking for his accomplice.

The Quincy man is being held for $5,000 surety or $500 cash bond. The officers involved were Gallant, Alford and Oliver.

THURSDAY MAY 28

Police arrested a 15-year-old Winchester youth and charged him with using a car without authority, possession of burglarious tools and the attempted larceny of another car.

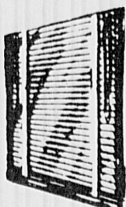

The youth, along with another youth still being sought, was spotted by police at the Winchester train station trying to break into a car. While an officer called to the station, police said something spooked the youths and they took off in a stolen silver Trans Am.

Police chased the boys into Arlington and apprehended the youth with the assistance of Arlington police.

The driver got away but police believe the vehicle was operated by a Somerville man with an extensive record. The car belongs to a Brockton man.

Business Spotlight

By Susan Schneck

Salon Will Cut For A Cause

Philips Salon owner Philip Ciampa wants to make Winchester an offer it cannot refuse. Ciampa thinks he has devised a plan that will advertise his business and upgrade the quality of the town at the same time.

It works like this: A charitable organization or any group working to benefit the town must advertise that Philips Salon will be cutting hair and donating the proceeds to them. In return for mentioning their name, Philips Salon will designate a time period during which they will design and cut hair for a reduced price and turn over all the money to the organization.

"We're really interested in doing something for the community," said Ciampa. "We're a part of this town and we're interested in this town."

When Philips Salon first opened up in Winchester three years ago, they cut hair for a benefit for the Winchester pool. But they were new to the town and fairly unknown so they did not get much publicity. However $200 was raised through the effort and the money was all turned over to the fund for Winchester's pool.

But Philips Salon really became popular in Winchester last year when they won second place in the New England Clairorl competition. Philips Salon competed with 25 different salons from all over New England.

The Clairorl Competition was judged by fashion, participation in demonstrating individual work, creativity in the professional arts of haircoloring, designing and makeup. "It's a total look," Ciampa said. He designed a strawberry hair color which was part of the look that won second place.

Business increased greatly since then and Ciampa has opened two additional salons since he came to Winchester. In October of 1980, Ciampa opened a salon in Tewksbury and in March of this year he opened one in Lexington.

Philips does cuts, color, frosting, hennas, eyebrows, perms and braiding. All the hair stylists are trained to place a strong emphasis on precision haircutting which utilizes the facial and head structure, studying the shape of all the bones, to design a proper hair style.

"The bones make a big difference with the hair texture, design and cut," explained Winchester's Philips Salon Manager Larry Kenney.

On Wednesday nights, Ciampa assembles all the hairdressers in one salon and demonstrates new cuts and hair creations. Ciampa has been in the hairdressing business for eleven years. Prior to opening his own shop in Winchester three years ago, he managed a leading salon in Lexington for five years.

Ciampa is now looking for a location to open up his fourth salon.

Starring — By David Leeco

Listen, I don't say any of us are so pure that we never drank and drove. I myself racked a beautiful Triumph after having four whiskey sours in a very short period of time.

The car ended up a good 150 feet from where it hit the other car, and missed rolling over, onto its convertible top by God's breath. And missed crushing a good guy I've known for 12 years.

That's when I started staying over or sleeping in the car, if I had to. But you don't have to learn it by almost killing yourself.

Or even seeing others killed. I couldn't stand watching another candle go out. The trips to the police station, and the tributes on the Common would be tough the third time around.

And I don't even know these people. I didn't grow up with them. I didn't raise them.

You only have to look at the expression on Mrs. Capone's face on page one.

So have a party tonight, but get home. Don't think twice about calling John McKinley. He's a cop, but he cares, and he'll play fair with you.

The World Of Smells

By TERRY MAROTTA

If you had to choose one single factor that causes people to do the things they do, what would it be, do you think? Economics and class-struggle like Marx said? Sex and the subconscious mind, a la Freud? Would it be Fate as the ancient Greeks and Romans understood it? Or the Oriental system of spiritual debts and credits that revolves around the notion of Karma?

Maybe it isn't any of these. Maybe it's something a little closer to the ground, more of an outgrowth of our animal nature: I've always suspected that the world of smells has a real hand in the workings of our lives.

Do you think so? Before you turn up your nose at such an idea, let me offer a few thoughts on the subject.

Smell is in many ways the most highly developed of our senses. Tough we don't have names for them all, we can identify literally thousands of sensations with our noses as against the mere four we can discriminate using taste alone.

At one time in human evolution, smell was a key element to our survival. It was through sniffing that early man found water, got news of a nearby food source or sensed danger.

Members of the animal kingdom use scent for identifying their young. A mother rat simply will not nurse the baby rat who doesn't smell like one of her own, and in fact make a nice meal of him.

By the same token, many human mothers claim to know their babies by smell even in the first week of life - and the babies, for their part, know their mothers. Experiments have shown that by 6 weeks of life, in 8 out of 10 cases a nursing baby can correctly pick out the sponge soaked with its own mother's milk in preference to the one permeated with the milk of another mother and one imbued with infant formula.

People whose noses don't work right are victims of the cruellest depression. The inability to smell, or anosmia as it is called, is a frequent side-effect of laryngectomies, for example. The patient who isn't thoroughly prepared for this loss has a convalescence that is excruciatingly difficult in psychological terms.

Schizophrenics hallucinate smells, for reasons nobody seems to understand, with one imagining he smells dirty feet all day long while another keeps getting the scent of Easter lilies. These people jam their fingers up their noses and wail. I would too. If you weren't crazy already, smelling the same thing all the time and being the only one who smelled it would sure make you that way.

Smell is the most evocative of our senses. Think of the first day of school when you were a child and the chances are you'll recall the smell of pencil-shavings, new clothes and chalk dust rather than any particular visual image.

But people smells are the most significant of all and I think it's these that guide the true course of human relations. We all have a certain Ph, just like the water in our guppies' aquarium. Some of us are alkaline types; others run more to acid. The trick is to enter into relations with people not of compatible outlooks but of compatible smells.

Oh, I know environment enters into it a good deal. Someone who snacks on raw garlic carries around more than his own natural perfume and those who socialize in their running gear add that chicken-soup smell to the group they're gathered in.

But I'm not talking about these cultural smells - they're just embellishments. What I'm referring to is the "scent" we are each born with and how it mixes with those around us.

Other societies know all about this. In Arab countries it's considered insulting to turn your face aside in conversation and "deny" others your breath. Too, the relatives of an Arabian man often reserve the right to smell his prospective bride by way of deciding whether or not the match is an auspicious one.

And there's a tribal elder of lofty status in some African cultures who acts as a professional matchmaker: he moves through the ranks of the marriageable young and decrees partnerships - all on the basis of smell.

It may be that these people are on to something that we in our deodorized society have forgotten all about. If we used the sniff test in making our marriages, maybe the divorce rate would begin to come down from the stratosphere.

On a larger scale, were we to use our noses more in matters of state it may be that international knots would at last start to come untangled. Perhaps that's the whole trouble between Begin and Arafat - maybe their smells are simply incompatible.

By the same token, maybe Hitler was one of those people who smells like bacon all the time and he had trouble making friends; maybe that's what fed his thirst for world domination.

Hey, it's a thought; it may be that smells really do direct our actions and control our motives....it makes as much sense as astrology, wouldn't you say?

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE

Hyde language in the Senate-reported appropriations bill. The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. PACK. I think Senator Hyde speech have 10 minutes, but I am without The Senator.

public housing for the poor. And yet we vote taxpayer money for public housing, because we think it unfair that the poor be denied adequate housing. We provide them medical care, because we think in this country it is unseemly for the poor to be denied adequate medical care.

And there are those among the tax payers who do not share the view that they should get money for health care. We provide them education if they are too poor to pay for it themselves, because we think a person should not be denied an opportunity in this country to further themselves through education because they are poor.

And is it not ironic, there is not a constitutional right in this country to education or health care or housing. There is no Supreme Court decision that has ever guaranteed any of those services to the poor. The Supreme Court, however, as guaranteed that every woman in this country, rich or poor, can make a choice as to whether or not that woman wants an abortion. Only we effectively deny it to the poor if they cannot pay for it.

The only reason that this restriction being put in the law is that there are among us so opposed to a v. hoo. are go.

I find growing in this country—fortunately not among the Members of the Senate—but I find growing in this country a spirit of intolerance, of almost religious moralism, of a feeling that "God speaks to me and I will tell you what he says, and tough luck if you are not on the same wavelength."

There is growing in this country a Cotton Mather mentality that is trying to impose upon this country a Cotton Mather morality. And I had hoped we quit burning witches 300 years ago, but apparently not.

This bill is just the tip of the iceberg, because what those who want to deny funding to the poor for abortions really want is to deny it to all women or at least to deny it to you legally and force you back to where you were prior to the Supreme Court's decision that gave you the right to have an abortion, back to the butchers in the backrooms and back to the subsequent infections and deaths. All in a spirit of religious moralism. It is a religious moralism I cannot share and I find it narrow and unforgiving. The debate is for another time.

Letters To The Editor

Resident Speaks Against Common Cause

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The Establishment-launched Common Cause is a direct-action lobby hoping to mobilize suburban "liberals," the poor, minorities, students, and others to front its campaigns for such things as public financing of federal elections, abolition of the congressional seniority system, authority to over-ride the congressional apportionment plans of state legislatures, etc.

Late in 1970, newspaper advertisements were run throughout the nation announcing the formation of Common Cause to serve as a "people's lobby" representing all Americans against the "rich and powerful."

The ads were signed by the organization's chairman, John Gardner, who had served as President Johnson's Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

Absent from the advertisements were such additional aspects of Mr. Gardner's background, such as his membership in the elitist insider's Council on Foreign Relations ("America's Secret Government"), his service as vice-president of the Carnegie Corporation, as a trustee of the Rockefeller Brothers' Fund, and as a board member of Shell Oil, New York Telephone Company, and American Airlines.

Hospital Seeks Community Feedback

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

People who regard the marketing of a hospital's services merely in terms of bringing in patients, may tend to resent the concept of hospital marketing entirely. Hospitals, one might think, should have "a higher purpose."

Other people, however, feel strongly that a certain amount of healthy competition among hospitals is essential in controlling spiraling health care costs. Many hospitals therefore are actively working toward ways in which they can offer more to the populations of their respective service areas.

Winchester Hospital is a non-profit community hospital which primarily serves residents of Winchester, Reading, Wilmington, Woburn, Burlington, Stoneham, Lexington, Arlington, Medford and other nearby towns. The hospital is constantly evaluating its own contributions and ways in which it can better serve its role in society.

A newly formed committee of five physicians and directors of Winchester Hospital is seeking community input as regards any and all aspects of area health needs. Of prime importance is the public's view of the principal product itself - the quality and value of the health care services already being delivered. Also vitally important, however, is community input about such things as the convenience, the continuity and the cost of high quality health care.

Quite a record for the leader of an alleged crusade against the "rich and powerful."

The truth, of course, is that the organization was conceived and launched by the very establishment it claimed to oppose. According to documents on record with the clerk of the U.S. Senate, the following contributions were made to Common Cause at the time of its organization during the final three months of 1970:

$5000 from the Chase Manhattan Bank, $500 from Nelson Rockefeller, $1000 from David Rockefeller, $25,000 from John D. Rockefeller III, $1000 from Rockefeller Foundation official Amory Houghton Jr., $1000 from Martha Rockefeller, and $500 from Rockefeller family advisor J. Richardson Dilworth.

These were just the direct Rockefeller contributions. Substantial checks were also tendered by other establishment sources, including many members of the C.F.R. Without this early Establishment funding, Common Cause couldn't have so much as paid for those ads which launched its program allegedly to defend the interests of the common man against entrenched interests.

One wonders how many of the 225,000 members of Common Cause have any idea of how completely they are being used.

R.W. Kuglin

Marketing for a non-profit institution means being sensitive to and responding to the needs of the people. The Winchester Hospital Marketing Committee will benefit from any citizens' comments as to how the hospital can better serve the changing needs and wants of you, the hospital consumer. Indeed, the hospital is always interested in increasing patient satisfaction and evaluating its progress in this direction.

Please direct any responses to the Winchester Hospital Special Marketing Committee, in care of the writer, at 4 Fernway, Winchester, Mass. 01890. All interest and assistance will be much appreciated and all responses will be acknowledged.

Sincerely,
William S. Cummings.

Winchester's Mc's

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Please let me say a word of commendation regarding the following: Doctor Hugh McCarthy of Winchester Hospital, Fred McCormack of McCormack's Apothecary and Doctor Phil McManus (now retired) deserve a word of praise.

I have had dealings with all of these gentlemen and found them to be very cooperative and they render every possible assistance.

Minnesota has its 3M, and we in Winchester should be very proud of our three Mc's.

Sincerely yours,
Joe F. Gavin

Neighborhood Cooperative Nursery Accepting Applications For Fall

The Neighborhood Cooperative Nursery School is currently accepting applications for its classes in the 1981-82 school year. Positions are open in the 3 year-old and 5 year-old classes, and, although the 4 year-old class is filled, there are no children on the waiting list.

The Neighborhood Cooperative Nursery School, which is located in the First Congregational Church, offers classes for 3 year-olds on Mon. and Tuesday mornings. Classes for four year-olds are held on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday mornings.

A pre-kindergarten readiness and enrichment class is also offered for children who are chronologically eligible to attend kindergarten, but who will not turn 5 until fall or early winter.

The program challenges these "young" 5's intellectually while nurturing their social and emotional growth in a small and secure environment. This pre-kindergarten class is held four afternoons a week.

For more information on the Neighborhood Cooperative Nursery School and its programs, call 729-7383 or 729-1434.

McCall Parents Meet

The McCall Parents' Association Board recently held its last regular meeting at the home of the President, Alice McCarter. The group discussed the various events of the past several months.

All those present agreed that the McCall staff and students, together for the first time in a single, townwide junior high, have had a very successful and rewarding year.

Principal Bob Fitzgerald also commented on the success of the "Classroom-in-Action" tours, which took place on May 6 and 13.

Almost 50 interested townspeople participated in the tours, which provided a unique insight into the daily classroom activities of the seventh and eighth-graders at McCall.

Following the meeting, Board members adjourned to the home of Hospitality Chairman Anne Nevins.

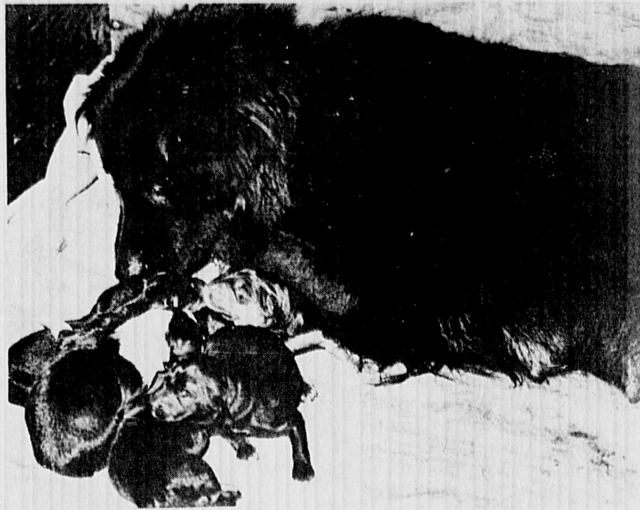

There they enjoyed an afternoon sherry with the staff from McCall.

Several faculty members commented on the success of the past school year, sharing their enthusiasm with Board members about the excellent educational opportunities available at McCall Junior High.

The Winchester Newcomers Club will celebrate the final festivity of the season with an ever popular dance.

to do any of the things you do now. Or try to imagine how you'd feel if your drunken driving crippled a friend. Envision yourself, your best friend or your date in a wheelchair for life — all because you were drunk and drove.

One of the parents — put yourself in your parents' place. It is three or four in the morning. The phone rings. It's a police officer. He says he has bad news.

Try to imagine the pain, the incredible anguish you'd inflict on them. All for a few beers and the inability to say, "I'm too drunk to drive." That phone call will become a recurring nightmare, your empty room a constant source of sadness.

And what about the parents of your friends or your date? Could you face them at the funeral of their child who died in a car you were driving?

Think about that. Think of yourself tonight. Think about your date and your friends, your parents and the parents of your friends.

Think about those you love. If you do, you won't drive drunk or let anyone else drive drunk tonight.

Or ever again, for that matter.

McKinley said that among youths alcohol is the main problem. "Drugs came and went but alcohol will never be gone," he said.

McKinley said he believed the drinking age should be raised to 21. "I take it as a fact of life that if it's legal for an 18-year-old to drink than a 16-year-old will drink," he said.

In 1977 the Winchester Police Department arrested 40 people for operating under the influence of alcohol. The next year the drinking age was raised and the number of arrests dropped to 20.

But since the drinking age was raised the number of alcohol-related accidents statewide has risen from 309 to 339, an increase of 9.7 percent.

McKinley said that most people are affected by one drink for four hours and most accidents occur after the vehicle's operator has been drinking.

"I review every accident in Winchester and after awhile, due to the time and location of the accident and how it happened, my own gut feeling is that booze is involved," he said.

"When you have a case of a car driving off the road and hitting a telephone pole at one a.m., you know it must be caused by one of three factors: either the driver fell asleep, was temporarily blinded, or was driving under the influence, he continued. "And 98 percent of the time, when I investigate further, I discover the person had a couple of drinks and the reason for the accident was booze."

Last year the Winchester Police Department arrested 28 people for operating a vehicle under the influence of alcohol. Last year in Massachusetts 356 fatal accidents involved drivers who had been drinking, fully one-third of all fatal accidents in the state.

"There is no question that alcoholism is our number one disease — it touches one out of four people," McKinley said. "It is not unusual to go to any young people's group and find them openly drinking."

"It's so common now that when a cop goes to an accident and sees that it was alcohol-related he is not the least bit surprised," McKinley continued. "And it is not uncommon to find that alcohol has caused the accident."

Police, Harrington, and school faculty believe alcoholism and the drinking-driving problem can only be combatted through education.

McKinley has spent a week at the high school emphasizing to the students that prom night could result in a disaster. He showed a film entitled "Prom Night" to small groups of high schoolers. A girl who did not have anything to drink agreed to ride in a car operated by a boy who had been drinking. The car got into an accident and she was the only one killed.

FINAL CEREMONY — Friends and relatives gathered in the pouring rain at Wildwood Cemetery Friday for the funeral of Wayne Capone, killed May 25 in a car accident in Winchester. (Staff photo by Noreen Murphy)

"I'm really focusing on the girls," McKinley said. "I want them to tell their dates they will not drive with them if they drink."

High school students appeared somewhat shaken after viewing the detailed film. "It was really gross," said one student referring to the accident. "I think a girl would think twice about riding with a drunk date after seeing the film. Some people were really spooked and just sat in their seats after the film ended, staring into space."

"I feel the more we do to educate the kids, the better it is," said DeBiase. "It seems like almost every year in Winchester there is some kind of accident involving drinking."

for the girls to make a hard, realistic decision on whether their dates can drive home.

"It takes more guts for you to say to your boyfriend 'I don't want to drive with you,' or 'I'm afraid to drive with you' than it does to ride with them," McKinley said.

"The message to students is that we care, we're concerned, and we don't want you to die."

"I'm trying to give you an alternative," he said. "It's easier for me to drive you home than it is for me to clean up your blood."

And if you don't want to go home, McKinley will drive you to a relative's home, a friend's home — anywhere in the state. And it will be between you and him.

Driver's Blood Alcohol Content Was Twice The Legal Limit

Wayne A. Capone had been drinking the night he was killed in an automobile accident, according to the Winchester Hospital Medical Examiner's report.

Capone died on Memorial Day, when the car he was driving went out of control on Main st. and crashed into a telephone pole near Boodakian Rug Co.

Medical Examiner William M. Soybel, in a report released Monday, said that blood taken from Capone's body showed an alcohol level of 211 milligrams per thousand.

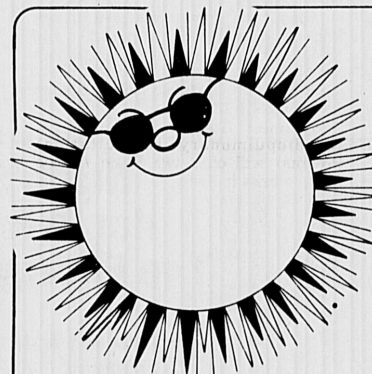

In Massachusetts, Soybel said, a level of 100 milligrams is considered "under the influence."

There were three passengers in the Capone car at the time of the accident. All three were taken to Winchester Hospital for injuries, and two, John E. McGrath of Medford and John E. Flaherty of Woburn were treated and released.

The third passenger, Carmen Torres, 20, a former Winchester resident who now lives in Tucson Ariz., was released from Winchester Hospital on Tuesday.

Torre spent over a week in Winchester Hospital, recovering from back and chest injuries.

It makes
again.

For years, the federal government literally discouraged saving by taxing every penny of interest earned. And for years, bankers and savers alike complained loud and often. Well, Congress finally heard us. Beginning in 1981, interest earned on savings will be exempt in the amount of $200 for individual filing and $400 for joint returns. We strongly encourage you to take advantage of this significant new tax incentive. For your own benefit and for ours. Because the more money you save, the more money we can make available for mortgages. That's good for homebuyers and good for the economy. Tax relief for savers. It's a welcome relief for everyone.

Travel Along with MAVIS

Baggage problems at the airport can be counted among the most annoying situations while traveling. However, the wise traveler can take certain precautions to lessen the possibility of lost luggage. One such idea is to add an additional tag to your luggage handle which indicates your destination. It is also smart to remove all tags from previous flights so as not to confuse a fast working baggage handler. A brightly taped handle will also aid in quickly spotting your bags on the carousel. When departing, it is a smart idea to see that your bags were put on the conveyor belt in the first place. Where should I go? What should I take along? These are a few of the questions our travel consultants at McGRATH TRAVEL SERVICE will help you to answer with some practical suggestions that come from being familiar with the facilities at your particular destination. We're here to help you in every way we can, so make us your first stop. We are located at 14 Eaton Ave. in Woburn or call us at 935-0600. Open: Mon. - Fri. 9-5. Sat. and evenings by appt.
TRAVEL TIP: Remember, lost suitcases must be reported within four hours of arrival. Hold on to your baggage claim check, it is your only receipt.

Archives Captures Voices Of The Past

By DAVE LEECO

Historian Alan Nevins once wrote, "What memories man carries into oblivion, and how absolutely they are lost."

Town Archivist Susan Keats pointed to the quote to explain why the Winchester Historical Society has been collecting taped reminiscences from Winchester residents for the last two years.

So far, the Historical Society has saved the memories of 15 Winchester residents from oblivion.

On the tapes, Nicholas Rosa explains how he and his DPW crew re-built all of Winchester's roads during the depths of the Depression.

And Marjorie Cutting Mason recalls the sewing-room origins of the Winton Club.

Keats said the society uses these comes through clearly on the tape.

"When I was a boy, we were always able to be employed, selling papers, or working on the farm, or in the stores. People were very good to you then."

"In school, you got respect and you gave respect to all the teachers," Drohan went on. "They knew your parents, and nothing you did in town wasn't heard by your parents, either in church or from the teachers."

"Up on High st., which was real farm country, they had drifts eight feet high. On Sunday, we'd get any man that could pick up a shovel, and eight or nine teams of about 15 horses, and go to dig it out."

Rosa recalled the day when those horses became out-dated, after the town began using plows on borrowed Pierce-Arrow trucks.

"I saw all the horses shot in the town yard," he said. "They shot them, and brought them all to the tannery. That's how they got rid of them."

'You literally go on a trip through history for 90 minutes.'

reminiscences to "fill in the living history, the things we don't know. These people answer questions we just can't get any other way."

Keats explained that the early written histories of Winchester concentrated on the aristocratic element in town, and ignored the Irish, Italians and Blacks who came to settle during the early 1900s.

"There's very little information on ethnic groups, because they didn't have to think about them in the '30s, when the histories were written," Keats said.

"There's everything you could possibly want to know about Col. Winchester or David Skillings, but the histories are totally lacking in information about the other groups in town."

Keats doesn't get the interviews herself — "I find myself anticipating the answers because I know so much of the history," she said.

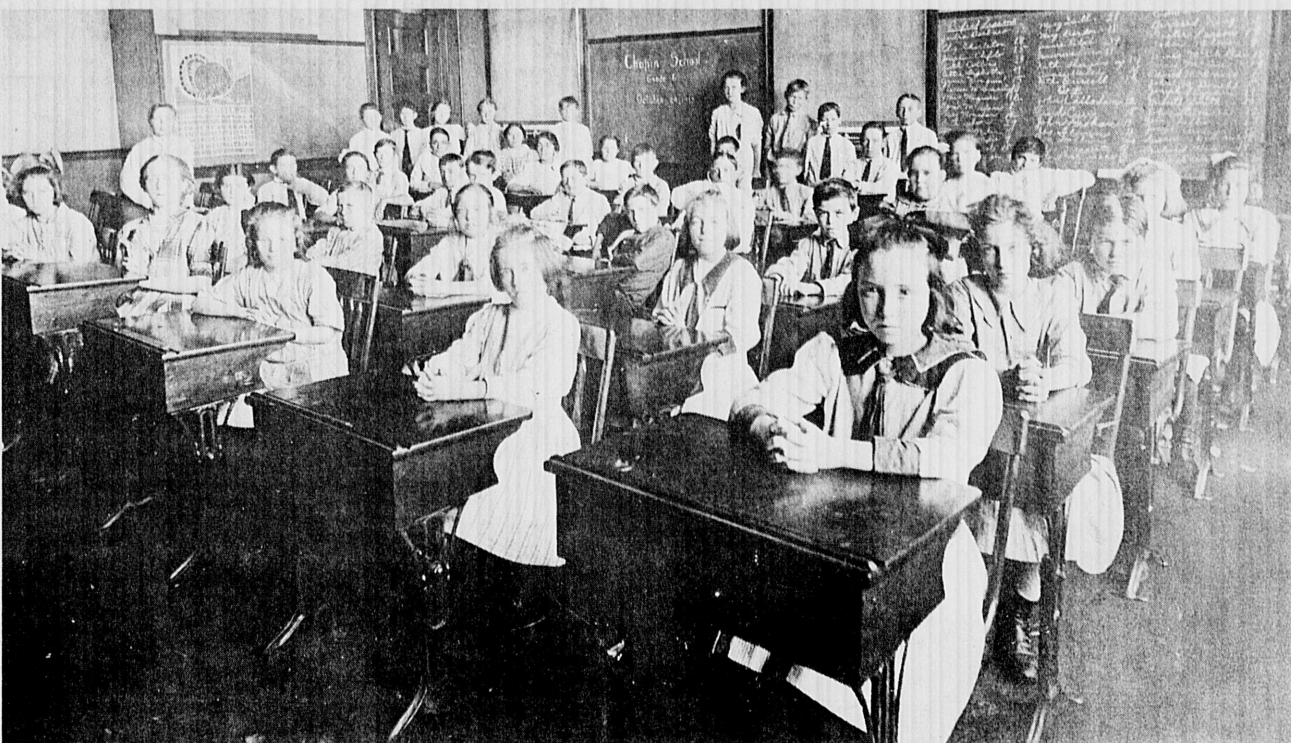

Instead, Keats sends out Florence Hritzay, Mary McKnight, Herb Edmands, Angela Dyson, Harry Chelaflo and Randy Bairns-Father for the information.

Curiously, one of the first tapes the group made was of one of their own, John Drohan.

"John was doing interviews for us, and from his comments during the interviews, we decided we'd better get him on tape," Keats said.

"He's one of the early Irish settlers in Winchester, he worked on the Symmes Apple farm and on all kinds of other jobs," she continued. "It's fortunate we got him on tape because he died suddenly the next year."

"My parents were Michael Drohan and Joanna Fitzgerald, and they came here in 1895 from Ireland, and they settled on Neslon st." Drohan's voice

"They were very strict in those days," he commented. "They used the rattan."

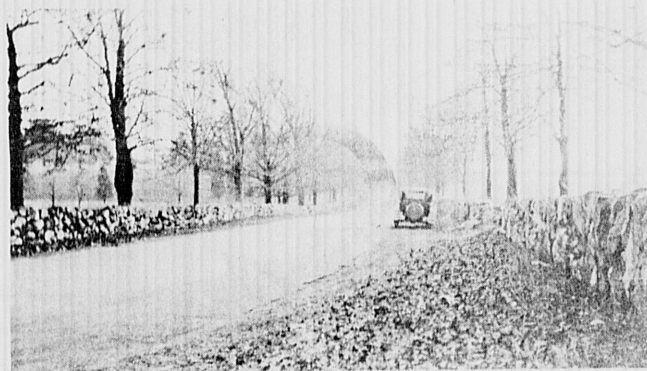

Like Drohan, 95-year-old Nicholas Rosa's parents were immigrants, coming to America from Avalino, Italy in 1885.

Rosa worked for many years with the Winchester DPW, and his tape is full of comments on building roadways, and plowing roads before the era of heavy machinery.

Keats said Town Engineer Jake Ciarcia still relies on Rosa's taped memory to find out how the roads in Winchester were built, if the town is going to rebuild one of those roads.

"It was hard work in those days," Rosa recalled. "When it snowed, we used to have 100 men in the square, picking up the snow with shovels and loading it onto trucks."

WHS Parent-Faculty Association Reviews The Past Year

The annual meeting of the Winchester High School Parent-Faculty Association was held on May 20 at the home of Betsey Spiller. Several teachers were in attendance and engaged in a dialogue with board members to discuss ways of improving communication and cooperation between parents, faculty and students.

Out-going President Betsey Spiller reviewed the year's activities and received reports from other officers of the Association. Highlights of the year included financial support for the new band uniforms, the Red and Black (student newspaper), the Aberjona (yearbook), Curtain and Cue, the German Club, and the Scholarship Fund.

The P.F.A. also provided refreshments for the annual Open House and the annual Awards Night. In February the Association sponsored the Classrooms-In-Action Tours which give parents an opportunity to see all the facilities available to their children.

A unique program on Adolescent Depression was co-sponsored by the P.F.A. and the Winchester Hospital on March 10. Approximately 200 parents, teachers, students and other interested citizens were in attendance.

Dr. John Carper, a pediatrician and the Director of the Adolescent Center at Boston City Hospital and Ms. Sarah Benet, Coordinator and program developer at the Adolescent Center, presented the program. A follow-up session for students and teachers was financed by the P.F.A., the staff and the Student Union.

Markey Listens To Public On Handguns, Taxes, El Salvador

The opinions of thousands of voters in the 7th Congressional District on topics ranging from U. S. foreign policy to financial aid for students have been tallied by Congressman Ed Markey as a result of a questionnaire distributed to district residents this spring.

The results, which are still coming into the Washington and district offices, so far show strong opposition to U. S. military aid for El Salvador and the Reagan Administration's proposed cuts in student financial aid programs. Residents are in favor of increased defense spending, the registration of handguns, and an accelerated depreciation tax for business.

"I have gained a valuable and useful picture of the views of the people of the district," Markey said. "We always monitor the returns of the surveys as they come in and I greatly appreciate the contributions so many of my constituents have made in an effort to keep me informed of their views."

Markey's survey asked residents of the 15 cities and towns in the district for their views on five topics. More than 2700 questionnaires have been returned as of May 26.

Asked whether they supported U. S. military aid for El Salvador, respondents indicated a three-to-one margin of opposition to such aid, with 71.5 percent opposed, 25.7 percent in favor and 3.8 percent with no opinion.

On another foreign policy issue — the question of whether or not to increase defense spending — voters also indicated strong feelings, with 61 percent in favor of increases, 36.5 percent opposed, and 2.5 percent undecided.

Residents of the district began receiving a newsletter which contained the questionnaire only one week after the attempted assassination of President Reagan, so the issue of gun control was particularly relevant. Nearly 90 percent of the people responding said they favored the registration of handguns at the time of purchase. Overall district results were 89.6 percent in favor of registration, nine percent opposed, and 1.4 percent undecided.

Financial assistance for students continues to draw strong support from residents according to the results of the survey, which indicates that 62.9 percent of the voters are opposed to the Reagan Administration's plans to cut student loan program budgets, 35.3 percent in favor, and 1.8 percent undecided.

By similar margins, residents generally supported an accelerated depreciation rate for taxes on business. Sixty-one percent supported such a move, 28.8 percent were against it, and 10.2 percent were undecided.

Responses to the questionnaires are expected to continue to come into the congressional office in Washington for the next month or more. As has long been his practice, Rep. Markey will continue to encourage his constituents to inform him of their views on these and other issues by sending out newsletters and questionnaires. More than 1,000 letters are received in the Washington and district offices each week in addition to the questionnaire responses.

Seventeen District residents may write to Rep. Ed Markey, U. S. House of Representatives, Cannon House Office Building, Washington, D.C., 20515, or may visit the district offices at 464-B Salem Street, Medford and Room 2100A, John F. Kennedy Federal Building, Government Center, Boston.

Children's Theatre Available For Bookings

"Have stage - will travel" is the motto of the Boston Children's Theatre "Stagemobile," which is available weekdays beginning June 29 through August 21. "The Wizard of Oz" will be performed.

For its season this summer, the Boston Children's Theatre "Stagemobile" will hit the road to perform for children within an 80 mile radius of Boston. Our colorful truck-mobile theatre travels weekdays to parks and playgrounds in suburban communities surrounding Boston.

Stagemobile sets are portable and may be taken indoors to be used on a regular stage facility. Admission may be charged by the sponsor to off-set costs or as a fund-raising event, as well.

George Giglio will direct the cast of youngsters trained by the Boston Children's Theatre. Sets are by Kim Sammis, costumes by Ida Ruzsits and Peter Whistler serves as technical director.

The Stagemobile covers a lot of territory and visits many parks and playgrounds during the months of July and August. Interested sponsors should contact the theatre now to book the remaining open dates.

For "Stagemobile" booking information, write or call the Boston Children's Theatre, 124 Holland Road, Brookline, MA 02146, 277-3277.

Winchesterites Hit The Road

Special to The Star

Got a spare hour? Then put down this article, get your shoes on and start running....

You're still here? "I can't run," you say. "Anyhow, it is just a fad. I couldn't keep it up. And I would never have enough time."

A surprising number of your neighbors feel otherwise. Why?

Dr. Robert Wolf, 29 Lakeview

rd., runs 100-120 miles per week, including an 18-mile round trip daily trek to work. A physiologist at the Shriners-Burns Institute in Boston, Dr. Wolf says that running can aid in cardiovascular fitness, weight reduction, lifestyle changes in dietary and other habits such as smoking, and a feeling of accomplishment, which benefits a runner psychologically.

Individual benefits of running seem to depend on the runner. "Running keeps me sane," reports Margaret Miller, 3 Marshall rd., who, at 46, manages an average of six miles a day.

"Running is a therapeutic outlet for me," says Representative Whip Saltmarsh, who averages three miles per day. "It allows me to unwind, sleep soundly, condition for other sports and keep my pulse low."

Taking to the streets can also be a family affair. Thomas and Frida Zoega, 246 Highland ave., often run with their three children, aged five to eleven. Five-year-old Helga Zoega began running races with her family "because she wanted to have a number like everyone else," says her mother. Dr. Zoega, a psychiatrist, says that running will probably benefit minor depression, though he adds that it probably will not help major psychological problems.

Edward O'Connell, Chairman of the Board of Selectmen and a U. S. National Champion runner, says running gives him forty minutes of undistracted time, time which he often uses to think about town government issues. State Senator Sam Rotundi says that, for him, running can be an escape from the public pressures of government service because "few people discuss politics with you as you're running by."

Taking up running as a sport has its comparative practical advantages.

Ted Rose, owner of The Running Racquet on Main st., cites the low monetary investment in the sport as one reason people take up running. Rose says that $30 will buy an excellent pair of shoes.

The only other investment required is your own time. And running is a sport you can do alone, at your own convenience.

It can also enhance your performance in other sports. Runner Margaret Miller also cycles and plays tennis. She thinks that the decision to run should not be based on a person's age. "Older people should realize that they can still build endurance by running," she says, "even though they may not build as much speed or strength."

Most runners seem to be more comfortable running than describing why they run or figuring out why they started running. "I guess I started as a joke," says Margaret Cade, 24 Ginn rd., who took first place in her division (age 50-59) in this year's Recreation Department Race. Cade says when she began running, she started very slowly and gradually built up distance and endurance.

Such a gradual build-up seems to be the most important guideline for a beginning runner, who wants both enjoyment and health benefits from running. The hazard of excessive ambition encountered by some who go from a sedentary lifestyle to rigorous running is the most prevalent caution heard from serious runners.

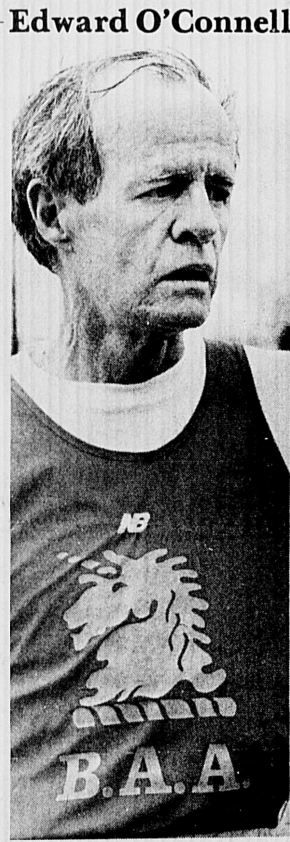

Edward O'Connell, a self-styled "purist in running," says he dislikes people who try to run marathons too soon. "After all," he says, "you wouldn't jump from the bleachers at Fenway into left field to play ball beside Carl Yastrzemski."

Serious runners also distinguish themselves from joggers in a number of ways. Runners like to compete — against themselves or someone else. A runner talks about "serious racing, a kind of lifestyle, competition and testing your limits." Runners describe joggers as "seeking fitness, relaxation and a regular form of exercise in their own neighborhood."

Whether you run or jog, there are plenty of interesting and suitable places to explore in Winchester. Ted Rose suggests the Winchester High School Track for beginners because the cinder track will help avoid injuries possible on pavement. Rose says that the Mystic Lakes provide a good 5-7 mile course for runners tired of the track, if they can go the further distance. And finally, long-distance runners usually design any number of routes from Winchester through neighboring towns.

Like any other sport, even careful enthusiasts can experience their share of physical

Edward O'Connell

He Runs For Office And Health

By DAVE LEECO

You all know Edward O'Connell's run for the Board of Selectmen (twice, and won) and maybe you know he finished the town race in 43 minutes, 3 seconds. (second in the Master's division.)

Did you know he's won two national championships — one in New York and one in Panama?

Did you know he's run every race distance one can run at — except, for some reason the 600 yard dash?

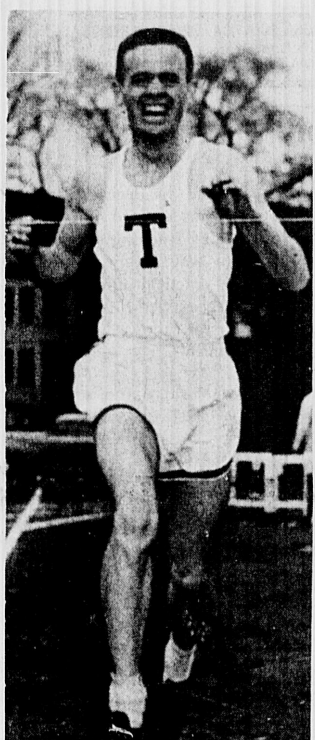

Needless to say, he's got some strong feelings about the sport he's been following since in 1941.

"Running's changed like you couldn't have foreseen since I was a mover in the sport," he said, sitting comfortably in his living room drinking a Shaefer ("runner's drink a lot of beer" he said.)

"In the old days, you knew everyone in the race. Now, there is not much chance that in a field of 200 people, I am going to find my old pal John Grey."

O'Connell speaks fondly of the days before racing became the thing to do. He recalls the races that don't exist anymore, like handicapped races, and the competition that existed between clubs in those days.

O'Connell ran in races all over the East Coast during and after a college (O'Connell - Page 21)

Rec Dept. Can Fill Your Summertime Schedule

All right, summer's here. You're out of school, or you've got some vacation time. The question is: What are you going to do with the time?

You can only lie in the sun for so long until you burn, and the cost of driving down to the Cape is astronomical.

The Winchester Recreation Dept. might be the answer. It's getting ready for the summer right now, hiring instructors, getting camps prepared, and raking the beaches.

The Rec. Dept.'s summer program will offer something for just about anyone this year — from tennis lessons to trips for seniors, from kindergarten classes to band concerts on the Mill Pond.

Registration

Registration for any of the courses begins June 6, at the Recreation office in Town Hall. Class size counts — if there aren't enough interested, the class will fold, and if there are too many you can't get in — so register early.

Registration will be held June 6, from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.; June 8 from 9 a.m. to noon; and June 9, 10, and 11, from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

If class openings still exist by Friday, June 12, a special late registration will be held from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m.

Program offerings for next summer range from band concerts to tennis lessons.

Actually, there will be two sets of tennis lessons — one for youths 16-18 and another for adults 17 and over.

Youth Tennis

The youth tennis program will feature three two-week sessions of technical instruction for beginning through advanced players.

The sessions, which will be held on the Packer Tennis Courts, will be June 29-July 10, July 13-July 24, and July 27-Aug. 7.

Lessons will be held Mondays through Fridays from 9 a.m. to noon. Registration fee is $5, and enrollment is limited.

Adult Tennis

The adult tennis program will run from June 22 to July 17, on Tuesday and Thursday evenings. Beginner's lessons are scheduled for 6 to 9 p.m., and intermediate lessons will be from 7 to 8 p.m.

The fee is $12 for eight lessons, and registration is limited.

Camp Superfriends

This camp, for Kindergarten through Grade 2, will feature a structured program of social games, dramatics, physical activities, and special events and trips.

There will be three two-week sessions, which will run Monday through Friday, from noon to 2:30 p.m.

The sessions will be on June 29 to July 10; July 13 to July 24; and July 27 to Aug. 7.

Registration costs $12. Enrollment is limited and on a "first come" basis. Repeat enrollments will be taken only after new enrollments have a place.

Mini-Camps

The mini-camp program, for 8-12 year-olds, will feature a series of one-week clinics and activities.

The camps will meet on Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays.

The program will begin with a Soccer Clinic, on the week of June 24. Next will be a Gymnastics Clinic, starting July 6. Beginning July 13, there will be a camp featuring new games and bicycle trips.

Cultural Arts such as sculpture, painting and printmaking will be the focus of the July 20 camp. Multimedia week will begin July 27, and the final course, beginning Aug. 3, will be an outdoors challenge program.

Registration requires a $6 fee, and individuals may sign up for any or all of the camps.

Camp Sunshine

This camp, for four and five-year-olds, will feature a variety of physical and social activities to improve social and motor skills.

Counselors will use movement, music, rhythm, games and group activities to improve basic skills.

There will be three two-week sessions, running Monday through Thursday from 9 to 11:30 a.m.

The first session will be from June 29 to July 9, the second will be July 13-23, and the last will be held from July 27 to Aug. 6. The fee is $12.

Special Needs Camp

This is a special day camp for physically or mentally handicapped youths aged 6-19.

The program will be combined with Lexington's to offer a comprehensive program of adapted physical, social and

Sachemettes Stomp Woburn In Track

The Winchester girls track team has never lost to the Tannerettes. And they didn't intend to start last week.

In the final meet of the season, the Sachemettes stomped Woburn, 80-38, with no less than four harriers posting their best marks of the year.

"The girls performed very, very well," said Coach Joe Cantillon. "Woburn's our traditional rivals, and our girls were up for it."

Alisia Tringale, Kathy Durante and Jackie Burke each posted high marks for the season, while Susanne Virnelli managed two bests — in the long jump and the 880.

Andrea deMars and Karen Twitchell took first and third in the first event, the 100 meter hurdles, with times of 16.6 sec. and 18.7 sec.

Then Tringale's came up with her personal best in the high jump, but the 5 foot leap was only enough for a second. DeMars took third with a mark of 4 ft. 7 in.

Virnelli posted the best leap of the season for herself and in the Middlesex league when she won the long jump at 16 ft. 3 in. DeMars took second this time, with a 15 ft. 25 in. leap.

Kathy Durante won the shot put at 38 ft. 10 in., and Joanne Burke took second with a toss of 34 ft. 7 in.

Durante then hurled the discus for her best distance this season, heaving it 133 ft. 3 in., and Burke came in second with a 103 ft. 8 in. throw.

Elaine Mortenson won the javelin at 99 ft. 5.5 in., and then the team started to clean up in the track events as well.

Burke's 11.9 sec. time in the 100 yd. dash was good enough for a second place, and was her personal high. Jill Maryanski came in third with a good time, 12.7 sec.

Virnelli won the 880 with another best of the season performance, at 2:22.4, and Sandy Jordan came in second third at 2:38.4.

Rachel Perlitch came in third in the 220 at 29.9 sec., Jeanne Senna and Dawn Ponti took first and third in the 220 (at 67.2 and 72.5 sec.) and Mary Boland, at 12:15.2, and Eileen Conley, 12:54, came in one-two in the two-mile event.

The Sachemettes went on to win both relays, with the 4X110 team of Maryanski, Senna, Louis Piazza and Burke coming in at 55.1 sec., and the 4X440 squad of Karen Serieka, Connolly, Weylman and Laurie Glynn setting a school record in 4:07.2.

The fact that both relay teams are made up of underclassmen, with the exception of Burke, has Cantillon looking forward to next year.

"We're losing a lot of good seniors, like Andrea deMars, who is one of our more versatile runners," said Cantillon. "She can run the distance events, the hurdles, or the 880 — you don't replace people like that talent like that."

Cantillon also noted he was losing the backbone of his field event team

Durante, Burke, Mortenson and Anne Purell.

But he feels his freshmen, sophomores and juniors will be coming along to fill the gaps.

"My assistant and I are cautiously optimistic," he said. "Cantillon's always a cautious man. Given the way the underclassmen have performed, I'm looking forward to a very competitive season."

Girls' Softball League Had Great First Half

Winchester's first girls' softball league has completed a very successful first half season with over 175 girls participating.

In the Junior Division, Coach Linda Barbutos' Angels are currently in first place and the only undefeated team in the league with a 6 win-no loss record.

Not far behind are Coach McNamara and Schwerin's Blue Jays, 5-2 with the Cardinals, Mets and Royals in hot pursuit.

The playoffs are approaching as quickly as the end of school with Barbutos' Angels favored to date.

In the Senior Division it's the talented Dodgers who currently hold down first place with a 7 win-1 loss record.

Led by the hitting of Mich Powers,

Ellen Clavin and Carey MacDonald and some fine pitching by Barb Delaney and Monique McClean the Dodgers are hard to beat in the stretch.

Mangaro and Bradshaw's Pirates hope to change all that currently in second place they play the Dodgers twice more in the regular season with a good chance of catching the league leaders.

Paula Russo, Kim Grano, Kathy Bowker and Dianne Struthers are playing super for the tough Pirate squad. With the Sultans and Red Sox in close pursuit and the playoffs coming fast we all know anything can happen.

Any girl interested in trying out for Winchester's Girls Softball Travel Team for the summer should pre-register at the Sports Shop this week. For more information contact Donna Tanner 729-6253.

Register For Summer Softball

The girls' summer softball team, after completing a successful season in the Middlesex, will again be giving girls the opportunity to try out and compete in the program.

Any girl age 12-16 years old can pre-register at the Winchester Sports Shop through June 9. Under the direction of second year coach Kelly Gately, the girls will try out Wednesday June 10 and Friday June 12, 4:30-7 p.m. at Leonard's Field.

This is the only girls competition softball program offered in Winchester and every girl is welcome and encouraged to try out.

A fee of $10 will be required for only the girls making the final team. It costs nothing to try out.

The team competes with surrounding communities such as Woburn, Burlington, Wakefield with tournaments, all stars and loads of fun.

If you have any further questions please contact Donna Tanner 729-6253.

Tennis Teams Challenge State

The spotlight is closely watching the Winchester High School tennis teams today. Both the Sachemettes and Sachems begin their tense competition against the best teams in the state today.

But the Sachemettes and Sachems are going into the quarter finals with nothing but optimism.

"I think and I hope our talent will hold out," said Coach Chris Scanlon. "And I hope I don't have to eat those words."

Both teams had a bye into the match so they start today in the quarter finals as the second seed. And the Middlesex champs will be playing until they lose. Which is not too likely!

St. Eulalia Juniors Edged In Season Opener

A young St. Eulalia Junior baseball team lost a tough 2-1 decision to a strong St. Joseph's team to open the 1981 CYO season.

With two out in the bottom of the seventh inning, Joe Pazant's one-hopper went through the St. Eulalia third baseman to drive home the winning run.

The hit broke a 1-1 tie that had resulted from a tight pitching battle between St. Eulalia's Steve Dionne and St. Joseph's Mike Ryan. Both pitchers held their opponents to only four base hits.

The St. Eulalia run came in the fourth inning when John Lowenstein singled up the middle, stole second, and scored on errors resulting from Mike Della Sala's grounder to shortstop. Both Dionne and catcher John Boyle reached third base when line drives skipped by St. Joseph outfielders, but both threats ended without a score. The game was held Sunday evening at Trum Field in Somerville.

career on the unbeaten Tufts team of the late 40s. In fact, he ran in enough races to furnish a household.

Prizes used to be split about 40-60 between merchandise and trophies," O'Connell explained. "After a couple of races, you had enough trophies, so you would go to the prize table to see what kinds of merchandise you needed."

"The year I got married I turned into a vicious runner."

O'Connell recalls that he went all the way to Brunswick, Maine for a race, and knocked himself out for a set of dishes.

"At the Yonkers, N.Y., National 20 km race, they were offering six sets of silver as a prize. I really wanted that silver."

"Halfway into the race, I was in 24th place, and by the time the race ended, I had moved up to sixth."

O'Connell's running career harks back to 1941, when he first started running as a freshman on his high school team.

Which brings up a point from O'Connell — "There's something about being 14 or 15 when your bones and muscles are just ready for running. I firmly believe high school is the time to start running."

O'Connell doesn't believe in starting runners at a younger age.

"They are pushing kids at a god awful age today," he said. "Even the bones are not ready for it. And by the time they get to high school, these kids are bored, turned off by running."

O'Connell went on to Tufts, where he often ran two races each week.

"In high school I was a pretty good 1000 yarder," he recalled. "And in college I was a good mileer."

"So I would run them mile, rest about 20 minutes, and then go back and run the 1000."

O'Connell recalled one quotation from Boston Herald sports writer Tim Horgan, "Eddy O'Connell's health looked precarious after running the winning mile, but he regained his health to win the 1000."

O'Connell was undefeated as a mileer at Tufts, and held the college record at the time. He was fast enough to run a leg of the 4x1 mile relay in 51 seconds. His best time in the mile was 4:14.

"Those were good times in those days," he points out. "If you compared the shoes today with the shoes we wore then, you would be amazed."

"They had this absolutely useless piece of leather on the sole, and they all had six spikes."

★ Running

injuries. Some runners find that their feet "pronate," i.e. land unevenly on the ground, wearing the outer part of the shoe quicker than the instep and causing pressure on the tendons. This painful side-effect of running can be avoided by wearing small plastic or styrofoam inserts called "orthotics" inside your shoes to balance the impact of your feet as they hit the ground.

Avid runners face a special set of hazards, according to Dr. Wolf: they do more than is necessary to get the maximum benefit from running, many times injuring themselves. In fact, Dr. Wolf says, runners who train heavily have some injury almost constantly — which, he adds, does not prevent them from running. It is also possible, according to Dr. Wolf, for a running obsession by one member of a family to become so compelling that it disrupts the entire family.

In addition to the risks of "overdoing" and pronation, down with some of his old running buddies and talks over old race.

Like the steep chase he ran against Olympic champion Horace Ashenfelter, just to prove he could stay close.

Or the time he missed winning the Canadian national championship by a foot, because he had been hit by a baseball and knocked unconscious the day before.

Or the race he's going to run tomorrow.

runners encounter the problem of road safety. A good precaution for night visibility is wearing a vest with reflector stripes. A better solution for both day and evening visibility on the road is wearing a material which is both fluorescent and reflective, such as the material in a fireman's coat.

If the risks of running seem to outweigh the benefits, and if you still think running amounts to temporary insanity or a form of mindless masochism, no one will be able to convince you otherwise. Like talking about living, no amount of intellectual discussion about running can take the place of doing it.

However, if it is inspiration from another source that will convince you to try running, consider a true story told by Ted Rose. An 84-year-old man in Florida was suffering from almost every disease known to man. This man was told that he had about 18 months to live. Dissatisfied with his doctors' prognosis, the man began to train for the Orange Bowl Marathon by walking along the beach, accompanied by nurses who monitored electrodes and equipment attached to his body.

This man "ran" the twenty-six mile marathon with a team of nurses alongside him who changed places every two miles. It took him four and a half hours to complete the race.

As of this past January, he was still running — in or out of marathons. But when he enters a race they wait for him to finish. And they give him a standing ovation.

Now, put on your shoes and...

With No Stars

No doubt about it. Getting aced out of the state tournaments by the same team that stopped your chances for a share of first place is not the best way to end the season.

But the fact that Winchester's lacrosse team even made it to the quarterfinals against Billerica means this was an unexpectedly good season for the Sachems.

The squad went into the season with only seven seniors, and no stars. Yet they finished with a 13-5 record, and won four out of their last five games to get into the states.

"We did pretty well," said Coach Gene Bouley with no little satisfaction.

"We didn't have the outstanding players, we didn't have that one man who could win the game."

"But we came along well as a team."

"Teamwork" has to be the phrase to describe this year's Sachems. With senior David Lawton leading the charge, with 24 goals over the season, every Sachem player scored well.

A typical box score for a match would have seven or eight players with goals to their credit.

And many of those players will be coming back next year as seniors.

Although Lawton is going off to the US Naval Academy, and Neil Frink, another Sachem high-scorer, is also leaving, two of Winchester's top goal-getters will be back.

Mark Steranka, who finished the season strongly with 14 goals in the last five games, will be back. And so will midfielder Bill Ferry, who accumulated 26 goals and 17 assists over the season.

There will be 18 other veterans returning to the Sachem ranks, including both goalkeepers, Mark Micicche and Joe Donlan.

"I have very good feelings about next year," Bouley said simply.

Next year, those talented juniors will undoubtedly be gunning for Billerica, the team that knocked them out of the tournament last week.

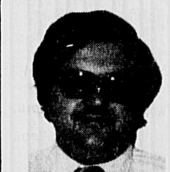

Despite the fact that the Sachems had given Billerica a run for the money in the last game of the season, losing by just two points, 11-8, Billerica handled Winchester easily Wednesday.

The Sachems managed only four goals to Winchester's Billerica's 11.

"In the first game, we played them well, in the second, we didn't," said Bouley.

David Lawton had two goals and two assists against Billerica. Ferry and Frink each got one.

Mario Scenna, Serv. Mgr.

The tools for specific jobs: torque wrench for tightening bolts to exact specifications; test light for checking electrical connections; grease gun with adapters for chassis lubrication; jack stand; work light; funnel for adding engine oil; flexible spout funnel for adding transmission fluid; fuse puller for the safe removal of burned-out fuses; rubber mallet for replacing wheel covers and hubcaps and for pounding out body dents; oil-filter wrench for removing slippery oil filters. Don't sacrifice quality to save money. Cheap tools wear out faster and may damage car parts. If you purchased all the tools mentioned your total expenditure should be less than $150....

REAL ESTATE

TAX-FREE CASH AVAILABLE

There is no better source of cash than the equity (cash value) built up in your own home or investment property.

Take the case of the Campbells who purchased a 10-unit apartment house about five years ago for $100,000 with a mortgage of $80,000. As the rent checks came in each month, some went for running the building and some went toward paying off the principal and interest. They needed $10,000 for college expenses and to redecorate their own home. The equity in their property investment was the answer. Their money had grown as the property increased in value over the five years plus by the amount they had paid off the mortgage.

Tricks For Holding Booze Will Backfire

So you think you know how to handle booze? You think you know all the tricks and can match anyone drink for drink.

Chances are, however, that all the tricks you think you know are really myths, tricks that will only end up tricking, or worse, killing you.

Myth No. 1 — "I can hold my booze tonight. I just had a big meal."

Fact No. 1 — If sufficient alcohol is consumed, a person will become intoxicated even on a full stomach. Otherwise, it is true that food in the stomach delays the absorption of alcohol into the bloodstream... often long enough so that you don't "feel" your booze until you get into your car. And then the trick is on you and your passengers.

Myth No. 2 — "It's so hot I'm sweating the alcohol out as fast as I drank it."

Fact No. 2 — It is almost impossible to sweat yourself sober. Only one percent of the alcohol in your body leaves through perspiration. Ninety-five percent leaves through your liver and, for example, it would take three hours for your liver to eliminate just half of the alcohol contained in five beers drunk in a one hour period. That's a long time. Longer certainly than you are likely to wait before driving.

Myth No. 3 — "I can drive. I put a lot of mixes in my drinks and concentrated on the punch."

Fact No. 3 — Regardless of what other liquids alcohol is mixed with, it continues to be absorbed into the bloodstream. Like drinking on a full stomach, the alcohol in mixed drinks might get into the bloodstream more slowly, but it gets there nonetheless and often more insidiously because the sweeter mixes disguise the taste of alcohol.

Myth No. 4 — "I can drink you under the table because I've had years of practice."

Fact No. 4 — The only thing your years of experience might have given you is the ability to mask drunken behavior. It also might have given you the need for higher and more dangerous blood alcohol levels to get the same high you once got from fewer drinks.

Myth No. 5 — "I know how much I can drink without having it affect me."

Fact No. 5 — You might think you know your limit, but as you approach it, you become less and less able to understand or admit what is happening to you. The organ you use to alert you to signs of intoxication (your brain) is the first organ to become impaired.

Myth No. 6 — "I can drive home now. I haven't had a drink in the past 45 minutes."

Fact No. 6 — Alcohol is eliminated from the body at a fixed rate — approximately one normal-sized drink (a 12 oz. beer) per hour. One drink per hour is the most that should be consumed through the evening if you plan to drive home. A half-hour or 45 minute wait is just long enough for the last drink to hit you on the way home.

Myth No. 7 — "When I want to sober up in a hurry, I get lots of coffee and fresh air."

Fact No. 7 — Those "tricks" simply do not work. They do not change the rate at which alcohol is eliminated from the body. They turn a drowsy drunk into a slightly less drowsy drunk who has the same problems performing in a variety of situations.

Myth No. 8 — "I have to drive so I'll only have beer, and light beer at that."

Fact No. 8 — It's still alcohol. And the difference between beer, wine and hard liquor is not all that great. One 12-ounce bottle of beer equals a five-ounce glass of wine which is equal to 1.5 ounces of liquor. Light beer is somewhat less potent, but three light beers usually equals two "regular" beers. And a mere five beers in one hour puts your Blood Alcohol Content at the "driving under the influence" level of .10.

So the only trick of drinking and driving is not to do both. It just doesn't work. And the consequences are too severe to gamble.

Water Shortage Could Spell Sprinkler Ban

By DAVE LEECO

Winchester is headed for another dry summer, and it looks like the town will have to consider water bans to conserve the diminishing resource.

Last year's record-low rainfall put an enormous strain on the town's water supply. And this year, the rain is coming down even slower.

"We've been keeping rainfall records for the last 106 years," said Water Supt. Richard Warrington. "Last year's rainfall was the second worst since we've been keeping records."

"So far this year, we've had less rain."

Warrington said the town's water supply will be in good shape, once the town finishes pumping 200 million gallons from the MDC-owned Spot Pond in Stoneham into the North and Middle Reservoirs.

Once the pumping is completed, the reservoirs will be filled to within two feet of their capacity.

But even so, Warrington said he will ask the selectmen to institute a ban on the use of lawn sprinklers from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

"Watering lawns seems to be the biggest waste of water in town," Warrington said. "Watering during the day doesn't do the lawns any good anyway."

"When people Water at noon, half the water evaporates before it even hits the grass," he continued. "And what does reach the ground literally burns the grass, because the water magnifies the sun."

The reason Warrington thinks the ban is necessary, despite the fullness of the reservoirs, is that most of the town's water doesn't come from those reservoirs.

The Metropolitan District Commission supplies 60 percent of the 2.5 million gallons of water used in Winchester each day. And the MDC is facing a water shortage.

According to Warrington, the MDC's two reservoirs are about 85 percent full, "which doesn't appear all that bad, but it could reduce rather quickly."

"Rather quickly means a number of years, because the MDC reservoirs hold so much water," Warrington continued. "But once they fall below a certain level, they're in serious trouble, because you just can't replace that much water overnight, or even in a year."

The MDC is facing two water problems — the dry year, and the fact that it is pumping more water than it should."

The MDC can safely supply about 300 million gallons to its member communities each day. But for the past decade, it has been committed to pumping 312 million gallons a day.

Last week, Metropolitan District Commissioner Terrence J. Geoghegan said that although "the MDC's water resources are large — they are limited."

"Our water use presently exceeds the amount that can safely be withdrawn from our system."

Geoghegan said that the combination of the over-supplying of water, two dry years in a row, and increased demand from communities made water conservation imperative.

"Now we have greater demands on the system, both from increasing population and from the pressure of this dry year," he said.

"We must conserve water," he continued. "The careful use of this invaluable resource must become a way of life."

Right now, the MDC is in a "Drought Watch" stage, which means the commission is looking for towns to come up with voluntary water restrictions, such as the possible sprinkler ban in Winchester.

But one indication of how seriously the MDC is taking the drought situation came on May 7, when the commissioners voted that no community will receive

Selectmen To Sell Town's Trash

By DAVE LEECO

The selectmen knew that by joining the Northeast Solid Waste project, they were taking a risk. But in the end, they decided it was worth it.

Monday night, the selectmen voted unanimously to sign a 20-year contract with UOP, the firm which plans to build a 1500 ton per day waste disposal facility in North Andover.

So for the next two decades, Winchester's trash will be hauled to N. Andover, sorted to remove the recyclable metals, and then burned to turn an electrical generator.

The electricity thus generated would be sold to New England Electric, and the metals recovered from the trash will also be sold. Winchester, and the other towns in the project, will get 89.5 percent of the profits from the electricity and 50 percent of the take from the metals.

Those are the benefits. And they are pretty considerable benefits — UOP has estimated it is possible that within 10 years, the firm will be paying towns for trash, rather than collecting to take it. But it was the risks the selectmen were worried about Monday.

At their June 1 meeting, the selectmen had raised three questions — how much will the town be charged per ton if the worst possible happens, how can the town control the operation of the facility, and what happens to the town when the 20-year contract runs out.

John Phillips, the UOP representative present June 1, sent the selectmen a letter through the chairman of the town's Solid Waste Committee, Thompson Lawrence, attempting to answer those questions.

Phillips didn't try to hustle the selectmen. He admitted that if UOP could only get the minimum 900 tons per day, it could cost the communities $30 to $40 a ton to bring the trash to the facility.

And he wrote that "It was never the intent the communities get involved in the actual operation of the plant."

And finally, he told the selectmen that while his firm would negotiate in good faith with the member communities after 20 years, any new contract would have to be "mutually beneficial" to both the communities and UOP.

Of course, there were some words of comfort in Phillips's letter — he noted that, as far as the cost per ton went, only a small increase in tonnage would cut the cost drastically.

And he pointed out that the state, as the communities' representative to the disposal plant's board, would have leverage in changing operating procedure and making sure the towns got a reasonable contract in 20 years.

After mulling over those answers for a while, and discussing what they meant, the selectmen satisfied themselves that they had as many safeguards as they were going to get.

"I find this a reasonable response," Board Chairman Edward O'Connell finally decided.

Selectman Wade Welch wanted to check everything one last time, however. He asked Lawrence, if he thought there were means for the communities to have day-to-day control.

Lawrence answered that there would be figures and documents detailing the day-to-day operation of the plant, which the communities' representative, in this case the state, could check. O'Connell agreed.

"I see this community group as more of an advisory committee rather than an operational committee," he said.

"Just as we don't go down to the Public Works Department and issue orders, I would not expect (our representative) to be into the actual operation of the plant."

Welch then moved on to point two, gauging how the selectmen felt about the town's protection once the contract ran out.

O'Connell said the words "good faith" meant enough to him that he felt comfortable with the contract.

"I'm not that pessimistic," he said. "By the year 2005, the communities will have been working together for 20 years, and they are bound to have developed some kind of political clout."

Alan Macdonald pointed out that in 20 years, it might be Lynn and not Winchester that had the political clout. But he too felt comfortable with the agreement.

"We're not going to get any special treatment in 20 years," he said, "but we will have gotten the benefits of this thing for 20 years."

O'Connell also pointed out that if the UOP-type project became so popular in 20 years, "caught on like Jello" was the way he put it, that other communities were trying to push Winchester out of the UOP facility, other facilities would be opening up.

"That's a good practical point," Welch conceded. "Not a good contractual point, but a good practical point."

After nearly an hour of discussion, the selectmen were ready to sign. And they hoped their signing would attract other communities into joining the project.

That's important, because UOP must attract enough communities to supply 900 tons a day, or all contracts are off.

"I'm hoping our example will move other communities to sign," said Welch. "I want to get those 900 tons fast."

Building Inspector Serratore Chosen As DPW Head

By CHRISTINE DEMKOWYCH

Building Commissioner and 18-year town employee Dominic Serratore has been appointed as the new Winchester Public Works Director.

On Monday, selectmen approved the DPW Director Search Committee's decision to select Serratore and finally fill the position that has been vacant since September, 1980 when Walter Tonaszuck resigned.

Tonaszuck resigned his position to take over the Public Works Department in Lexington, noting his decision to move to Lexington wasn't tied to criticism of his department concerning a flushing program underway in the town's water system or with his lack of state-required certification as a water supervisor.

Serratore, however, is not required to take the certification test as he will not be supervising water.

According to Serratore, "Tonaszuck left of his own volition. There was no controversy."

Despite past criticism, Serratore looks forward to his new position. "I'm excited and I feel I have a lot to offer," he said.

"Our primary concern this year," Serratore said, "is with the water system. I first want to become familiar with it and see what problems exist."

"I may find out the system is fine," he said. "It's a vote controversy and I just want to investigate it."

For the past two years there has been much controversy on whether the town should use the reservoir or MDC water. The proposal to connect the reservoir with MDC water for town use has been defeated in the past and has recently been defeated at the May Town Meeting.

"I guess we should use our own water system," Serratore said. "We have to consider the cost factor."

In his new post Serratore is responsible for all public buildings, maintenance, highways, streets, and sewer systems and he is responsible for keeping up the grounds of parks.

Serratore is a native of Winchester but currently lives in Reading.

"It's an exceptional town, with a great work force. I look forward to working here," he said.

At Monday night's selectmen's meeting, when Serratore was appointed, everyone seemed pleased with the choice.

"Here is a man possessed with credentials, experience, potential and, most importantly, the very excellent

Resident Resigns From State Commission Post

By CAROLYN KITCH

Alice Scanlon is a mother, a homemaker, and a Winchester woman who is concerned about the welfare of others like herself throughout the state.

And until last week, she was in a position to do something about the status and the lives of Bay State women. Last Thursday, however, Alice Scanlon gave up her post as chairwoman of the Governor's Commission on the Status of Women.

Why?

Scanlon's explanation is short and to the point: "I have been disappointed by the Governor's attitude toward displaced homemaker legislation and disheartened by his cutbacks in social services."

In the past, the Department of Social Services has done intervention work to prevent child and wife abuse.

"They had been specially set up to do this in order to keep the family together," said Scanlon. "Now, since the proposed cutbacks in the department, they'll be short of help. And it will be

Winchester Awarded Money For Leaky Roof

The town has finally received the spoils from its five-year battle over who is responsible for the leaks in the high school roof.

Monday night, the Board of Selectmen accepted $525,000 from the contractor who built the school, White Construction Company of Burlington.

The town brought suit against White Construction in 1975, charging the firm was responsible for the leaks in the school's windows, roof and walls which have plagued the building since construction.

The town had to pour $1,175,000 into rebuilding the roof since Town Meeting approved the expenditure at the Spring 1980 session.

To recover some of that cash, the town brought suit against White Construction and the buildings architects, Brown, Fisher, and Nickerson Inc. That firm has since gone out of business.

The town reached an out-of-court settlement with the architects in 1979, and received $125,000 from the firm.

No, the photographer didn't reverse the negative on this week's mystery photo. Somewhere in Winchester, there is a street sign with the "N" painted backwards.

Your job, of course, is to figure out where the street sign is. Our photographer, Noreen Murphy, doesn't think anyone will get this effort.

After all, she spent days looking at every street sign in Winchester for one with a backwards letter, so she figures it will take more than a week for anyone to find it.

But if you should happen to stumble onto the sign, fill out the form below and send it to Mystery Photo, The Winchester Star, 3 Church st.

Again, our accountant wants to remind you that there are no prizes. We, being the generous editorial staff that we are, were considering a limousine tour of the streets, and street signs, of Winchester.

HOSPITAL GARAGE HEARING — Washington st. resident Jacquelyn McNeill speaks out against Winchester Hospital's plans for a 305-car garage while neighbors look on.

Purity Plans Renovations Of Finast Building

Purity Supreme plans to do more with the former Finast building than put food on its shelves.

Purity officials and Winchester's Economic Development Coordinator, John Connery, have begun work on plans to refurbish the exterior of the building.

Connery said he hopes to move the entrance to the building from the Main st. side to the Skillings rd. side.

With the building turned sideways, Connery explained, the more parking spaces would be available near the entrance, and traffic coming on and off Main st. would be reduced.

The Main st. side of the building, Connery said, would be covered with a ribbed cement wall, and eight trees would be planted along the wall.

There won't be too much room for landscaping, however. The building's lot has just enough parking spaces to meet the zoning requirements, and a lot of landscaping would cut down on that parking.

"The parking is very tight," Connery said, "but it meets the requirements. On the button."

Purity Supreme officials declined to comment on the details of the refurbishing plans, except to note that all the plans were still very much up in the air.

The work will have to wait until the town approves the CARD plan, because Purity wants to apply for Massachusetts Industrial Finance Agency bonds to pay for the reconstruction.

But if Purity officials didn't care to comment on the plans, they were eager to voice their support of revitalization in general.

Purity Vice-President and Winchester resident Frank Giacomazzi noted that, "Purity Supreme is excited about joining with the Economic Development Committee to revitalize the downtown area."

Purity officials feel their project will become the cornerstone of the revitalization effort on that side of the downtown.

And Connery isn't going to disagree. He said he sees the Finast renovation as "the beginning of an aggressive attempt by the people and businesses of Winchester to revitalize and beautify downtown Winchester."

distributing the questionnaires.

All information will be kept in the strictest confidence and the survey conductors will view the results as a guideline only.

"We will be working with the Winchester merchants to improve the economic climate of Winchester Center," Connery said. "All help with the business surveys will be greatly appreciated."

New Plans To Revitalize Downtown Center

The Winchester Chamber of Commerce and the Winchester Economic Development Committee have devised a new strategy to improve the downtown Center.

Economic Coordinator John Connery, Town Manager Thomas Groux and Economic Development Committee Chairman Daniel LaGatta will be developing a retail market analysis and in the process conducting business and shopper surveys next week.

They hope to gain an indication of the type of person shopping in the center.

With this knowledge, they hope to have a better understanding of the type of services desired by downtown shoppers.

The Winchester Jaycee women and the League of Women Voters will be doing all the labor involved in

A Winchester woman is offering her time and energy to put an end to alcohol related car accidents among high schoolers. But she needs some help.

Program To End Drunk Driving

Disturbed by the recent car accidents Jean Williams, a concerned Winchester resident decided to organize a "Park It" program in Winchester.

Under this system each youth old enough to drive will receive a wallet-sized hand printed card with phone numbers and first names of people willing to drive people home if they do not feel capable of safely driving.

Williams thought of the idea after reading about Officer McKinley's offer to drive students home on prom night without asking any questions.

But Williams said she feels the program can work much more effectively if the drivers are not affiliated with law enforcement or school.

"This project stresses anonymity and confidentiality to keep a small mistake from turning into a potentially dangerous situation," she said.

Williams is seeking volunteers to print cards, distribute them and agree to be on call to drive when necessary. She needs some high schoolers to help out to really ensure effectiveness.

Jean Williams will be happy to hear from you at 729-7744.

Neighbors Clash Over Garage

BY SUSAN SCHNECK

East met west last week and the confrontation had all the characteristics of secular warfare.

Depending on where they live in relation to Winchester Hospital, neighbors voiced strong support or heated opposition at last week's hearing to the hospital's plans to construct a 305-car capacity garage on Maple rd.

Sides were delineated with residents living to the west of the site for the garage construction being opposed to it and residents to the east of the site favoring its enactment.

And the hearing moderators from the Massachusetts Executive Office of Environmental Affairs (EOEA) also had some complaints directed at hospital officials.

EOEA Director Samuel Mygatt and Associate Environmentalist Sandra Uytendaele accused Winchester Hospital Administrators and consultants of failing to fully complete the first draft of the hospital's environmental impact report (EIR) submitted last month.

They were not totally satisfied that all the available alternatives had been explored by Winchester Hospital regarding their proposed $19 million plans for expanding and upgrading the hospital by 1985.

But at issue at the hearing of about 23 participants was the proposed two-story parking garage.

Hospital spokespersons maintained that the garage would resolve the parking problem spilling onto Fairmount, Maple streets and Highland avenue to name a few.

Currently the hospital has 302 on-site parking spots but traffic consultants determined that Winchester Hospital has a demand for 393 cars during peak hours.

If the hospital receives the green light for the 305-car parking garage, there will be 465 on-site parking spots.

In addition to the 305 spaces in the garage, there will be 160 on-site spaces in the lots along Fairmount st.

Speaking out in strong support of the hospital's plans, Winchester Hospital nurse Carol Butz said she supports a sticker program of employee parking in a garage with only visitors parking in the lots. "But the sticker program must be enforced 100 per cent," she said. "It's awful to have cars parked in front of houses when the people who live there can't."

Traffic study engineer Robert Daylor said it was his impression that there was "a reluctance on the part of the police about selective ticketing in a residential area."

Ellen McNeill of Fairmount st. complained that Winchester police would not enforce sticker parking because of their reservations about ticketing near the hospital.

"In Winchester they have a mental block when it comes to ticketing," she said. "My neighbor called and said a car was blocking her driveway. The police officer told her he really doesn't like to ticket in this area because the car operator could have a sick parent he is visiting in the hospital."

Michael Last, a lawyer for Winchester Hospital pointed out that police and hospital officials would be more likely to enforce legal parking if there were a feasible parking alternative for employees.

Town Meeting and Ten Taxpayer group representative Sally Kincaid stood up and put a temporary halt to all debates concerning rerouting of traffic and parking during and after construction of the garage.

This discussion of stickers is secondary after the main question," she said. "The main question is whether or not the garage is really necessary. It is the concern of the neighbors that we are building a monolithic structure in a residential single-family neighborhood."

"This would be the only parking garage in Winchester of this magnitude," she emphasized.

"As a nonabutter I am concerned that this site is contrary to all planning and zoning in Winchester," she shouted. Kincaid wanted to know what steps hospital administrators have taken to ensure that the present parking space is being fully utilized.

Hunter told Kincaid he is sure that the hospital is maximizing all the space in its three lots. "As far as overflow of spaces on the streets currently available for legal parking I am in a bad position to tell people to go out and park legally because there just isn't the space," he said.

"The lot is physically full," agreed Daylor. "It can't handle any more cars. All three lots are at capacity."

But Uytendaele was not satisfied with the assumptions on the part of Winchester Hospital contending an unquestionable necessity for the garage.

"I don't think the EIR addressed the possibility of no build," she said. "Maybe something can be done without building the garage."

Town Meeting member Margaret Schlicher disagreed. "People are lazy and will park as close as possible," she claimed. "This is 1980 and we have to be realistic. I think the garage is the best alternative."

Kincaid also wanted to know whether the hospital had considered or implemented any carpooling programs.

"For volunteers we have an established carpooling program," Hunter said. "We do have a number of employees carpooling but not as many as we'd like. We're trying to encourage this."

Kincaid told Hunter that his assurances were not enough to allay her concerns.

"I hate to say this but Winchester is small and you know what goes on in this town," she said. "Through the years the expectations from Winchester Hospital have not been fulfilled. It will have to be more than just promises."

Mygatt said he was having difficulty reading a clear cut message as to what residents feel about the garage because of all the conflicting arguments.

"People are indicating that they would rather see proper on-the-street management of parking instead of building a monolithic structure," he said. "But I have also heard people say they want a sticker program to make sure hospital employees use the garage."

"What is the concern of priorities here?" he asked the group. That depended on what street people lived on.

Fairmount and Maple st. residents said they would rather not have the garage but if it had to be built they would support an on-the-street parking sticker program.

Bill Jones of Highland ave. said, "Frankly the parking on the street is the main concern for those on Highland ave. There is no way that parking can be managed and I'd prefer to have a garage."

That statement drew some quick response. "If Highland avenue wants the garage, let's give it to them!" shouted Elizabeth Henriques of Orient st. "I think we should put the garage at the corner of Fairmount st. and Highland avenue. It's Highland avenue that wants the garage."

Uytendaele was quite receptive to that suggestion. However, hospital an-

WILDWOOD ACCIDENT — Car driven by a 18-year-old Westland ave. man rests against a fence on Wildwood st. after being hit by a truck coming down Cambridge st. The driver of the station wagon was attempting to make a left turn from Cambridge onto Wildwood when his car was struck.

Washington St. Man Arrested For Assault With A Knife

An 18-year-old Winchester man was arrested and charged on two counts of assault for fighting and threatening his girlfriend with a butcher knife Monday night.

Paul Bacci, of Washington st., was charged with assault by means of a dangerous weapon and with assault and battery for fighting with a 16-year-old Winchester youth.

Both were injured in the fight. The 16-year-old youth was knocked unconscious and received cuts on his forehead. Bacci was brought to Winchester Hospital where he underwent surgery for a broken hand and wrist.

Police received three calls regarding the long and involved incident which began at 3 p.m. and finally resulted in the fight reported at 9:50 p.m.

Police reported the incident began when a friend of Bacci's girlfriend complained of a man chasing her with a gun. Simultaneously another patrol car received a call that two men were fighting on Norwood st.

Police found the 16-year-old youth lying on his back at Bacci's feet in an unconscious condition. Police reports said he was bleeding from his mouth and nose and his right eye was swollen shut.

Bacci was booked on two felony counts.

At the hospital he was examined by Dr. Warwick Potter and was placed under police guard until bail was posted.

Inspector Nash is in charge of the investigation.

Men To Grand Jury On Coke Charge

By Mary Beim

Drug charges against two Winchester men were bound over to a grand jury in Woburn District Court.

Stephen Johns, 23, of 245 Ridge st., and Timothy J. Carrigan, 18, of 2 Elmwood ave., are charged with conspiracy to violate the Federal Narcotic Drug Act. Johns is also charged with possession of narcotics with intent to distribute. Both men were arrested February 27 in the parking lot of White Hen store on Main st. following a surveillance of the store by Winchester police.

Police laboratory reports identified evidence seized from Johns as nine packets of cocaine, containing a total of 43.12 grams of the substance. Reports also identified a packet taken from the glove compartment of Johns' vehicle at the scene as containing marijuana.

Other evidence seized by police and introduced as exhibits in court Monday included $1100 in cash, an address book and a list of names — all taken from Johns' person; a change purse containing $2 taken from Johns' vehicle at the scene; and a plastic bag containing residue, 18 single-edged razor blades, an alabaster pipe with residue, a 3 1/2" by 4" glass square with residue, and a brown glass vial and plastic straw containing residue, all taken from Johns' vehicle at police headquarters.

Defense attorney Michael Natola asked District Court Judge Stanley J. Jablonski to dismiss the conspiracy charges against both men, arguing that there was insufficient evidence to warrant a conspiracy charge against Johns, and that the only evidence against Carrigan was his presence at the scene. Natola did not argue the possession charge against Johns.

Assistant District Attorney Karen Lasserson argued that probable cause existed for a conspiracy charge, stating that Carrigan knew of Johns' activities at the time of his arrest and probably facilitated them. Lasserson also argued that there was sufficient evidence for a

Shots Fired At Gas Station Manager

"Go away, I'm closing for the night," Frank Ballato told the couple pulling into his Cambridge st. Old Colony station Thursday night.

"I'm not going to stay open and have somebody shooting at me."

Only minutes before, according to Ballato, two white men in a Cadillac Eldorado had fired six shots at him from an automatic weapon.

Ballato told the Star that the two had been waiting in their car at the corner of the gas station lot for several minutes charge involving intent to distribute because of the amount of drug paraphernalia seized from Johns' vehicle and the sizeable amount of money and before the shooting. "At first, I thought they were just waiting for the traffic to die down, so they could get gas," he said. "Then I thought they were looking to start a fight."

Instead, the men drove out of the station, and as they were leaving, Ballato said he saw a series of flashes, gunshots, from the window of the car.

However, police at the scene could find no bullets or shells.

Sgt. Frances Manzie, one of the officers there, said if it was an automatic weapon, the gunmen would have held it out the window, and shells would have fallen on Cambridge st.

Ballato said the gunmen sped off towards Arlington on Cambridge st., but they were not seen by police speeding in the opposite direction towards the shooting scene.

Ballato told police that he thought he knew one of the suspects from his home town of Somerville. The shooting is still under investigation.

Four Men Arrested In Auto Arson Attempt

Three Winchester men and a Woburn resident were arrested by police Sunday after the four attempted to torch a disabled car in the Finest parking lot.

Winchester Police Officer Lawrence Hill was watching the parking lot early Sunday morning, when he saw a carful of youths pull up by the abandoned car at 3:35 a.m.

Hill reported he saw one of the men get out of the car, and climb into the disabled car, which is owned by a Wilmington man, "for about 20 seconds"

The man got back into the car with his companions, Hill continued, and then someone threw a "flaming article" from the first car into the disabled vehicle.

The suspect car then pulled out of the Finest lot, and Hill followed, pulling it over into a Main st. gas station.

The four occupants were placed under arrest, and according to Lt. Andrew Crawford, all have been charged with attempting to burn a motor vehicle, a charge carrying a possible three-year sentence.

Charged were Kevin O'Brien, 19, of Canal st., the driver of the car; Michael Del Greco, 18, of Woburn Anthony Vita, 20, of Cox rd.; and Michael Fitzgerald, 21, of Nathaniel rd.

Other police news last week included:

MONDAY, JUNE 8

—An Oxford st. resident reported that two bicycles had been stolen from his home during the night.

SUNDAY, JUNE 7

—The break-in of a Thornberry rd. home was reported by a neighbor, as the owners were away. Police do not know exactly what was stolen, but several hummels were missing from a display case, and a jewelry box was found empty on the floor, broken into while the owners were out of town. Police discovered there was nothing valuable left in the house, except for a large console television. However, a neighbor, who reported the burglary, told police the owners had been moving belongings from the house for several days.

—A 19-year-old Stowell rd. man was arrested for shooting off sparklers.

SATURDAY, JUNE 6

—A Waston pl. won an reported a $200 gas grill had been stolen from her back porch. The grill was chained to the porch, and the thieves had to cut through the chain to get the grill.

FRIDAY, JUNE 5

—A Winchester High School teacher reported her wallet had been stolen from her purse when she left her classroom for a few minutes.

—A Winchester woman reported the windshield of her 1974 Plymouth Duster had been smashed while the car was parked on Aberjona dr.

—A Washington st. woman reported four hubcaps had been stolen from her 1979 Thunderbird while it was parked in her driveway.

THURSDAY, JUNE 4

—A Mystic Valley pkwy. man told police a blue Monte Carlo had driven up on to his lawn and struck a tree in his yard head on.

The car backed up and headed down the street, he said, almost striking an elderly couple. The man gave police a license plate number, but a check by police showed the plate should have been on a station wagon owned by a Somerville man.

Dealing With Auto Repair Shops

Many car owners feel they are victims of their Auto Repair Shop. According to Debbie Doncov, Consumer Economist from the Middlesex County Extension Service, consumers can develop more confidence and become knowledgeable when dealing in auto repairs.

Many consumers ignore obvious tools like the car manual. If you haven't looked at it, since the day you bought the car, dig it out and read it! There is a suggested maintenance schedule, follow it. Good preventative medicine protects against costly repair due to neglect. Become familiar with the manual, it is a source of information, it is a guide to good performance of your car.

The Boston Consumer's Council offers some tips on how to communicate with your mechanic.

Do not be the mechanic! Do not tell the mechanic exactly what to do. Instead, describe the car's problem in detail. Describe drips, sounds, and smells if there are any. Tell the mechanic how long the trouble has been occurring. Using the troubleshooting guide in this manual, you can make suggestions to the mechanic, but let the mechanic's training and experience be the final guide.

Write it down! Especially when your contact with the repair shop is a service manager, give the repair shop a written description of the problems. The service manager will then pass the written description on to the mechanic who will actually do the work. If possible, talk directly with the mechanic do not go through the service writer unless the shop insists.

Tell the mechanic where your service receipts-bills are! Keep all the service maintenance receipts together in your car so the mechanic can check the car's maintenance history if necessary.

Do not sign a blank repair order! Get a written estimate of the cost to repair and put in writing what problems the mechanic is to work on. Agree on a time when the car will be ready. It's the law!!

Leave a phone number! Let the communication continue by giving the mechanic a phone number where you can be reached during the day. If the mechanic finds greater problems than anticipated, you will want to know about that. It's the law!

Boodakian Named At Rug Convention

At this year's Oriental Rug Retailers' of America (ORRA) convention held in Washington D.C., Steve Boodakian, a third generation of the member firm Koko Boodakian and Sons of Winchester was elected to serve a three-year term on the Board of Directors. In 1976 his father served as a director and later president of this organization whose members span the U.S. and Canada.

ORRA was formed in 1969 to monitor the activities of the oriental rug industry worldwide; educate the public; and provide a forum for dealers nationwide to exchange ideas.

Its newly elected president, Mason Purcell of Charlottesville, Virginia stated at her inauguration banquet, "With the recent renaissance of interest in oriental rugs worldwide, many less than scrupulous dealers and itinerant auctioneers have surfaced."

"It is our intention to accept for membership only oriental rug specialist firms who seek to educate the public, strive to fairly and accurately represent merchandise and are permanently established to service problems that customers may incur."

"We are particularly opposed to itinerant vendors who are here today and gone tomorrow. We maintain that 'The more you know about Oriental Rugs, the more you trust your ORRA dealer.'"

Five years ago Koko Boodakian & Sons hosted the convention during Boston's celebration of the Bicentennial. As a member firm, Koko Boodakian & Sons lectures to clubs and organizations and offers a six-week course held at their showroom sponsored by the Boston Center for Adult Education.

GUEST SPEAKER — F. Brooks Cowgill, of Lawson rd., vice president and treasurer of New England Mutual Life Insurance Co., was a guest speaker at the Insurance Industry Update Seminar at the Copley Plaza recently.

What You Need To Know About Security Deposits

During this time of year when many leases end, tenants should be aware of their rights regarding security deposits. According to Debbie Doncov, Consumer Economist of the Middlesex County Extension Service, landlords who collect security deposits are strictly regulated by Mass. General Law. These rights apply to security deposits received on or after September 1, 1978.

— A security deposit must be no greater than one month's rent.

— No later than 10 days after a tenant moves in a landlord must give a "Statement of Conditions." This statement is signed by the landlord listing all damages to the apartment that exist before the tenant moves in.

— No later than 30 days after receiving the security deposit the landlord must deposit the entire payment in an interest bearing account. The tenant must be provided with a deposit receipt stating the name of the bank, the account number and amount of the deposit.

Your security deposit must be returned 30 days after the tenancy terminates. The landlord can deduct the following:

— Unpaid rent which was not validly withheld by the tenant.

— Real Estate taxes due under a valid tax escalation clause in a lease.

— An amount to repair any damages caused by tenant which is above and beyond reasonable wear and tear.

If the landlord intends to deduct for damages to cover repair he must:

— Itemize the nature of the damages and state specific repairs.

— Included with list, proof that the amount being charged to the tenant is reasonable (written estimate).

If a landlord holds a security deposit for one year or longer they must pay 5 percent interest rate on the deposit accumulated to the date of termination. This does not apply for tenancy less than 1 year. This law on interest rates applies to all security deposits on or after January 1, 1972.

A landlord forfeits his rights to keep any portion of the security deposit if:

— The landlord is not claiming any damages, yet he refuses to return the security deposit with interest within 30 days from the end of tenancy.

— The landlord is claiming a portion of the security deposit as his, yet he fails to give the tenant an itemized list of damages and return the balance with 30 days from end of tenancy.

If the landlord fails to return the security deposit or interest on the security deposit you can:

— Sue the landlord in Small Claims Court or if you live in Boston call the Housing Court M-F, 9-5 p.m. 725-8485. You can sue up to triple the amount of your security deposit if your deposit is under $750.

For more information and to be more effective in Small Claims Court. (1) Call Small Claims Advisory M-F 9-3:30 p.m. 427-8782. (2) Send for copy of "How to Sue in Small Claims Court" by sending 41 cents in stamps to Mass. Consumer's Council, 100 Cambridge Street, Boston 02202.

Health Food Hits Winchester

Unobtrusively tucked away in a corner, partially hidden from sight to Thompson st. pedestrians and motorists is a health food store.

Winchester's only health food store came to town about five months ago but many residents are still unaware of its existence.

"We're not located where there is a lot of traffic," said Winchester Health Foods owner D'Este Hanson. "Lots of people tell us they don't know we're here."

But persons who do venture into Winchester Health Foods find more than just edibles in the usual form of bulk grains and packaged foods made without fillers or preservatives.

They find nutritional advice, information and tips about proper eating, dieting and health. In addition to carrying healthful nourishment in various forms, the store carries the 20 bestselling health food books.

But the real wealth of information lies with Hanson herself.

"I give many people advice and information about proper eating," she said.

Hanson said she has always found nutrition and the way vitamins and minerals work inside the body exciting and she is well read on the subject.

For instance, simply mention yogurt to Hanson and the person who uttered that word will quickly discover that yogurt not only provides the body with essential B vitamins, milk protein and calcium, but it promotes the production of vitamin B and aides the body with digestion. Vitamin B is important to soothe nerves, among other functions including growth and development.

"The object is to eat nutritious food that contributes to body building," Hanson explained. "When people are young and busy, there is a big temptation to eat quickly and dash off to the next tennis match."

But additives found in fast foods are actually counter-productive to good health according to Hanson.

"Additives that are in quick foods use up B vitamins instead of helping nerves and nutrition," she said. "Additives not normally found in food complicate the process of digestion and assimilation thereby increasing the need for other nutrients like vitamins C and E. Not only do additives fail to supply nutrients, they increase the body's need for more."

"After a few years of that kind of eating, it will catch up with people," she added.

Hanson is full of little "tricks" to promote good health. She will tell you that a little blackstrap molasses added to foods can fill the body's daily iron requirement and supply essential B vitamins.

She will tell an inquiring shopper the fruits, vegetables, whole grains and oils that contain the necessary unsaturated fatty acids and vitamins for healthy hair.

Hanson will also dispel many widely-believed myths.

"Many people think low calorie means good," she said. "But most things that are low calorie don't have nutritional value. It's hard to find things good for people that do not have calories."

Hanson said she tries to help people understand how foods work within the body. "People have heard sugar is bad but they don't know why," she said. "But it does catch up with them eventually."

Winchester Health Foods was opened to fill a need for local health food store for Winchester residents like its owners.

"Every time my husband and I wanted to go to a health food store we had to drive out of Winchester," Hanson explained. "We live here so we wanted a store here where it would be most convenient."

Confident that other residents would rather buy their health food in town, Hanson opened the store on Thompson st.

"People are watching their diets and thinking about natural foods a lot more than they used to," she said. "Young people are more interested than they used to be. They accept the idea of eating properly more than older people."

Although her shop is physically quite small, Hanson contends that opening it up and running it is no small task.

"Starting a health food store requires a lot of work," she said. "Most people in the health food business agree that it is hard to get one started. You have to find wholesalers that deal in the products you want to sell, estimate what kinds of things people want, go through paperwork, get your scales approved by the town and obtain overall approval from the health department."

Hanson is now trying to find the best distributor to handle a natural sandwich line-but it is a difficult task because of the requirement for freshness.

"It takes a lot of constant effort and research to find the right products," she said.

Winchester Health Foods also caters to special diets such as low sodium, allergy diets and wheatless foods.

"I'm interested in catering to people with special needs," she said. "I'm willing to give personal service."

What really holds her enthusiasm for the store, Hanson confessed, is that she feels health is such a fascinating subject.

"I thought having a store would be fun!" she exclaimed. And she still does.

Board Of Selectchildren

A couple members of the Board of Selectmen were acting like select children this week.

It was all over the letter the Chamber of Commerce sent out regarding the Tuesday Night night's CARD forum.

It seems Selectman Wade M. Welch was unhappy because the tone of the letter made it sound like the CARD plan was all the Chamber's idea.

"CARD is our baby," Welch said. "I don't like the tone of this letter, I don't like the way it's presented, and I for one am not going to the meeting."

With that, Welch tossed the letter and the invitation to the forum into the wastebasket at his feet.

Selectman Michael Saraco had an even more plicayune complaint.

"I don't like where it says the Chamber 'requests' the selectmen's presence at the forum," Saraco said. "You don't 'request' the selectmen to appear, you 'invite' them."

For that horrendous offense against the ghost of Emily Post, Saraco decided he wouldn't attend the meeting either.

"On second thought," Saraco reconsidered, "I might go just long enough to hear what Eddy (O'Connell, who was a panelist at the forum) has to say, and then walk out."

Now grown men don't usually take offense at such a minor matter as the tone of a letter, or the fact the writer chose the word "request" instead of "invite".

Welch's comment that the Chamber was trying to steal credit from the selectmen might be reason to get upset, if the selectmen weren't guilty of the same offense.

You see, it was the Planning Board, not the selectmen, who first came up with the idea of getting a CARD district for Winchester.

Early in the year, John Lane approached the board about getting a CARD district set up in North Winchester, so he could get funding for his proposed medical center.

Lane brought a retired Massachusetts Industrial Finance Agency official with him to explain the program. The Planning Board thought it was a good idea, and sent a note to the selectmen, saying the board thought it might be useful to set up CARD districts in North Winchester and the Downtown.

So much for stealing credit.

Now, it should be noted that not all the selectmen shared Welch's and Saraco's view. Alan Macdonald and John Williams did show up at the forum.

But it doesn't seem a good beginning for Winchester's revitalization effort when two members of the Board of Selectmen are already sniping at the Chamber of Commerce over who should be running the show.

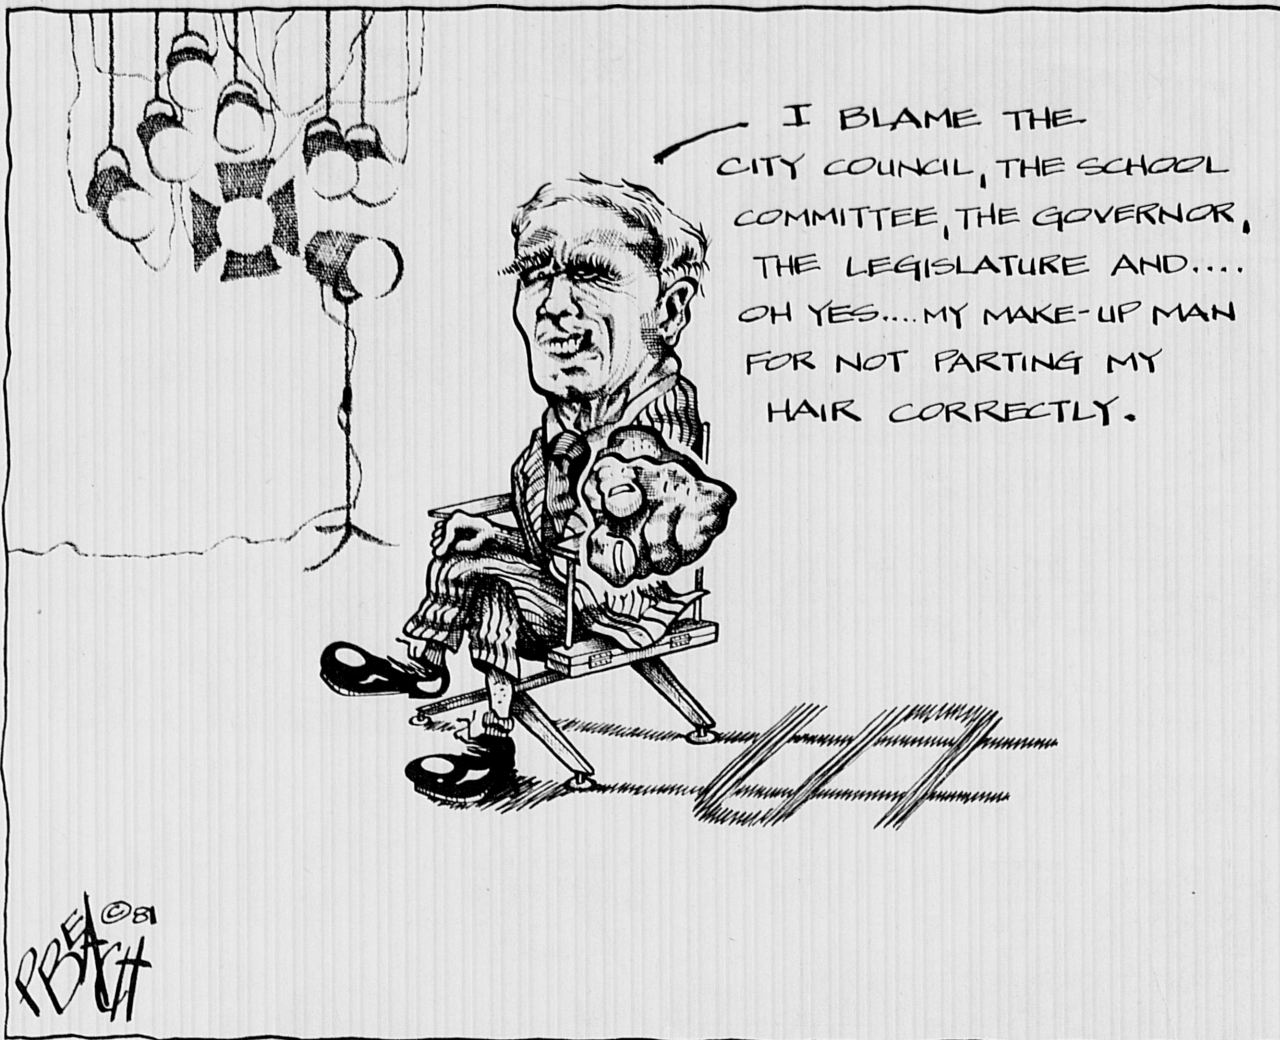

As a matter of fact, the selectmen have been very touchy recently over anything or anyone they think is usurping their prerogatives.

O'Connell's first statement when he took the chairmanship of the board was that he would be very upset at anyone who didn't realize the selectmen had final say in all town matters.

Which isn't wrong. The selectmen are the top political body in the town.

But they aren't the only political body in town. And if a project as large and difficult as going to take the combined effort of all those political groups — the Planning Board, the chamber, the Economic Development Committee, and the selectmen, to name a few.

If the sniping keeps up, everyone should get used to the same old downtown.

Students Address Graduation Audience

Class President Steven Rothman:

Members of the School Committee, Mr. MacDonald, Mr. Larocco, Teachers, Parents, Friends, and of course fellow classmates.

The main reason why I am standing on this podium alone speaking to you is not to provide you with five minutes of entertainment. The purpose of this speech is to introduce to you the partied-out seniors sitting behind me. So without stalling any longer, I will begin.

As most emcees say, it is my pleasure to introduce to you a class of winners, a class which I am proud to be a member of. Winchester High School's graduating class of 1981. I have been to two other graduation ceremonies and both times I have heard the Presidents say that their classes were really great.

Well, like my predecessors, I am going to say that the class of '81 has to be the best class in the history of Winchester High School. However, what I said is not just a platitude to make you parents feel even more proud about your son or daughter, but, on the contrary, it is a fact.

Mr. Larocco himself said, "This year's class is the best class, academically speaking, in recent Winchester High School history."

In other words, these young people behind me are not as dumb as they look. There are a few examples which can support my claim.

One is that 112 seniors were inducted into the National Honor Society which is the most ever in the history of Winchester High School.

Also, seven seniors were National Merit Scholarship Finalists.

These examples are the only explanations I have for my parents as to why I am not in the top ten of my class.

Although we are strong academically, the Class of '81 is also very athletic. If I don't mention a certain few teams, I can prove this point, too. Four teams were Middlesex League Champions and two teams did really well in the States.

Ten other teams enjoyed successful seasons. The Football team concluded its 8-2 season with an exciting 7-6 win over archrival Woburn.

Individually, two seniors had outstanding years. Kathy Durante broke school records in both the shotput and the discus and now holds the state record in the discus, while Gary Errieco was the All-New England wrestling champion.

After telling you that the seniors are both intelligent and athletic, you probably think the class only consists of smart jocks.

This is not totally true. Some of us have some culture in us and are, in fact, musically inclined.

For this reason, I have to mention to you the now famous Winchester High School Band which was led by some very talented seniors. The Band participated in Boston's 350th anniversary parade and provided some very exciting halftime shows.

The band was actually the toast of the town for a while, since they held a champagne reception in order to raise funds to buy new uniforms.

On the subject of art, I would like to congratulate Phil Baumann for his outstanding achievements in the field of art.

One last commendable quality of the Class of 1981 is its class spirit. Many people enjoyed the class cruise, the picnic, and Thursday night's Prom.

I was pleasantly surprised with the success the fundraising events had. However, the most important thing the class did, which was the happiest about, was that most everybody paid their dues.

If you are still skeptical about the talent this class has, I could also mention that the Red and Black, the school's newspaper, won the Columbia medal for being the best school newspaper in its category.

And now that I have fulfilled my obligation of introducing this class and since I have nothing else to do, I would like to say a few words concerning life.

As you probably can tell, this class has a lot of potential, but when you think about it, what's the use of having a lot of potential if one never uses it.

One cannot sit back and expect success to come running to you. People who sit back and wait are the type of people that are stepped on. One has to go after what one wants.

For example, if one wants to be the president of a company one has to do well in order to climb up the corporate ladder.

If one's idea of success is to make a lot of money, then the only lazy way of succeeding that I can think of is to win the lottery.

But even then, the person has to be smart enough in order to find a way to shelter the money so the person would not lose it to taxes.

So my advice to the class is to utilize your skills in the best possible manner and go after what you want in an ambitious way, while not forgetting your obligation to society.

At this point, I would like to thank the faculty and staff for helping us reach this time in our lives, and our parents for putting up with us, especially the last few weeks.

Let me just summarize what I have been trying to convey — Life Is A Rock and We're out of here.

Student Union President Marybeth Fennell:

Superintendent McDonald, Members of the School Committee, Members of the Administration, Rev. Ferguson, Parents, Invited Guests and the Class of '81:

To achieve success, to be successful has become the American Dream. A successful person often learns in his quest to achieve his dream he must compromise his values, be a little less human and a lot more selfish. America is saturated with these successful people who have found it easier to ignore their emotions and sense of right and wrong if it will bring them closer to their goal.

The Class of '81 is a successful class which has attained many goals academic, athletic and social throughout this year. Yet, the class of '81 differs from the stereotypical definition of success.

The trait which gives this class its personality and unique character has little to do with academic or athletic achievements. The class of '81 is different because it appreciates life with spirit and courage in its quest to move forward.

Perhaps some had an inkling that this class would be special when in the fall at a school pep rally the co-captains of the 1980 football team demanded a moment of silence in memory of 'Mr. P.' At that time it was also revealed that the entire season had been dedicated to Mr. Frank Provenzano, the trainer who was loved by all.

And if anyone believed the team had made an idle pledge they soon learned that this football team had made a dedication not for publicity, nor for anyone's approval, but because in their hearts they felt instinctively it was right.

It was right to honor a man whose spirit had made them successful in former years. The team knew if they were to be successful this year they must capture the spirit Mr. Provenzano had taught them to appreciate.

Before the football season had ended at Winchester High School, the class of '81 found themselves coping with the trauma of death. We did not know at the time we would have to cope with death again and again throughout the year. No member of our school or community — students, teachers or parents were left unaffected by the death of a relative, friend or former classmate.

The Class of '81 was watched closely by all — underclassmen and adults alike — to see how we would react.

We cried, we cried in public, and we were unashamed. It was not an unfamiliar sight this year to see students comforting students or teachers comforting students or students comforting teachers.

It takes a special kind of courage to put your own grief aside and help another deal with his grief. Helping another in need is an unselfish act which the class of '81 did not shirk. Sharing our hurt as we did made us closer and stronger more appreciative of our own life.

Later during the year the class of '81 decided to dedicate their year book to a lady whose courage and strength had been an inspiration to us all. Mrs. Kirk, the "Lady in the Math Department", who loved us without limits, who worried about us, who listened to our fears, hopes and dreams represented to us what it was to be strong and alive.

Not until winter did we pick up the routine of school which had been broken so many times in the fall. Struggling with books, papers, jobs, athletics and extra-curricular activities, the Class of '81 moved on quietly.

But we shared a serious sense of commitment to succeed whether it be an academic, athletic or personal success. Success became to us anything which was a step forward, no matter how small the step. Success was receiving an 80 instead of a 75 on a math exam; success was the basketball team's improved record, success was finding a job and holding it long enough to get a raise.

Finally, spring arrived. April was upon us and decisions about the future had to be made. Once these decisions were behind us we could enjoy the last day of high school: the cruise, the picnic, the prom. All of them are now very special memories made more special because we realize we never again will be together as a class.

We would seem to some quite ordinary, but the class of '81 is unique. We emerge today with a maturity and strength achieved by students who are aware of their mortality. We have learned to live each day to the fullest, never taking tomorrow for granted.

There is a great deal of concern about the future of America. The worry that future generations will be emotionally sterile. There is the fear that future generations will not have the guts or the strength to move America forward. T.S. Eliot's poem: The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock, is about a man afraid to admit his love for another human, afraid to take that step forward.

He asks of himself, "Do I dare disturb the Universe?"

I believe if you were to ask the class of '81 this same question, the answer would be unanimously, YES.

Letters To The Editor

Drinking And Driving Condemned

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I plead with you to print this, and hope everyone understands this.

I just want to leave some unfinished words. I realize what is trying to be said about drinking and driving, and hope everyone else understands. I knew Wayne Capone, and liked him as a friend very much. I have to admit I think he had more friends than anyone in town. We all understand he is gone now.

He shouldn't be forgotten, but shouldn't be made a total example of. If we all don't start to realize what is happening around us, there is something definitely wrong.

To begin with, most kids in Winchester are spoiled, they get what they want, and do what they want. There isn't many places for us 16 to 19 year olds to go, but driving around drinking isn't really doing something.

Each person is an individual, and shouldn't become a follower. I myself, was in a tragic incident, involving alcohol. I don't want to preach, because anyone who reads this should be able to understand what is trying to be said.

I am sure I can speak for all Wayne's friends. We send our deepest sympathies to the Capone's and our love to Wayne always.

And, no matter where Wayne is all his friends will always be thinking of him. Thank You Just One Sad Friend

A Thank-You

Perhaps you sent a lovely card, Or sat quietly in a chair, Perhaps you sent a floral piece, If so, we saw it there.

Perhaps you spoke the kindest words, As any friend could say, Perhaps you were not there at all, Just thought of us that day.

Whatever you did To console our hearts, We thank you so much Whatever the part.

The Family of Wayne A. Capone

Whip Courageously Opposed Move To Destroy Prop. 2½

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

On April 30, Representative Sherman W. Saltmarsh voted "no" on a motion to admit a bill that would destroy Prop. 2.5 and increase taxes by more than one billion dollars. This bill was filed by the Mass Teachers Association, whose powerful lobby placed enormous pressure on the legislators to support it.

Your state representative courageously opposed this cynical attempt by the MTA to repeal the Prop 2.5 mandate. CLT is grateful for the negative vote and will credit it in our next Legislative Rating.

Barbara Anderson Executive Director, CLT

A Nice Service Marks Church's Centennial

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The Second Congregational Church on Washington St. in our town had a nice service by the nice pastor of this church on May 10, Mother's Day.

It was the one hundredth year of this small church and its Sunday school. Most of all, many of the old church members from all over were there with children, grand-children and great-grandchildren.

We also had a lovely luncheon (buffet style) which members supplied. Good luck to this small neighborhood church where most of this neighborhood's children were brought up.

Also, best of luck to the pastor who has worked so hard to make it a nice church. The Pastor's name is Alan Ferguson of Washington St.

P.S. This Second Congregational Church had a one-room church on Cross St., also one hundred years ago.

Sincerely, Louise Chase

Parents Seek Answers On Teacher Transfers

By Christine Demkowich

Teacher layoffs and transfers sparked heated discussions as the School Committee briefly delved into the thorny issue of who stays and who goes.

After pleas from parents concerned over specific layoffs and involuntary transfers, Personnel Director Diane Hall assured parents that the criteria for teacher transfers and layoffs is not based on sex and participation in extracurricular activities.

"We consider training experience, evaluation, performance, past performance and lastly seniority," Hall said.

Two parents berated the committee over the transfer and lay-off of two teachers in particular. Catherine Rielly, a fifth and sixth grade math teacher, is scheduled to be involuntarily transferred from Vincent-Owen school to Lincoln school, and Bob Lynch, an upper grade teacher at Lincoln school, is scheduled to be laid off.

Rielly is scheduled to be involuntarily transferred from Vincent-Owen to Lincoln where there are three vacant slots. Bill Warnock, a fourth grade teacher at Muraco school now on sick leave, was selected to replace Rielly at Vincent-Owen based on the school committee's formula for transfers.

Warnock, a former principal at Lincoln, was assigned to Muraco school in September when the school committee was forced to close two of the eight elementary schools and needed to give both former principals teaching positions. "We didn't want to assign Warnock to Lincoln because he had been a principal there," Hall said.

"Warnock was selected to replace Rielly because enrollment at Muraco school goes down next year and we need a reduction in staff," Hall explained.

Despite parental requests to keep Catherine Rielly at Vincent-Owen, the decision apparently is final. "The decision was made in the best interest of the six schools," Hall said. "Sometimes lay-offs don't always mesh with where we need to have the teachers."

However, a statutory appeal process was extended to teachers at the hearings, Hall said.

"The situation is tragic," a concerned parent, Mimi Black said. She continued to argue her case despite the decision because she claimed it is ridiculous to create a spot for a teacher whom Black insists does not plan to return.

"Before Catherine Rielly is involuntarily transferred, please ask yourselves if Warnock needs a place," said Black. "If not, please keep Kay Rielly. She's been a real trooper and we desperately need her."

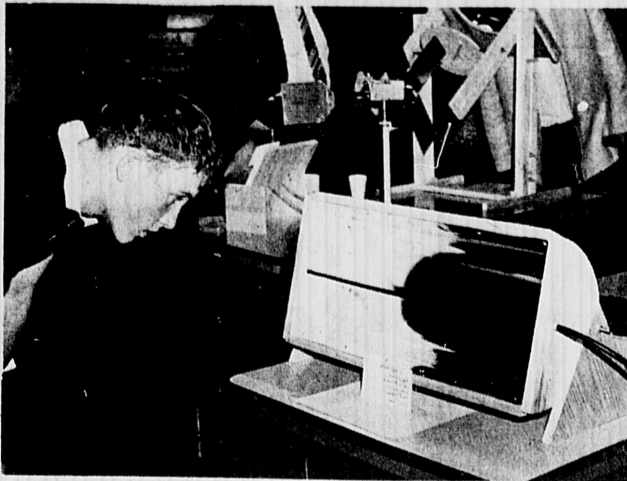

In a telephone conversation Tuesday, Catherine Rielly commented on her transfer. "I was told they needed to create a vacancy in this building for another teacher," she said. "I'm personally disappointed to say the least."

Another parent, Kathy Rath, was concerned with the elimination of male teachers at Lincoln school. (Four of the ten teachers unofficially RIFed at Lincoln school were males.) "This school serves children from a lot of single-parent families and we need male teachers," Rath said, speaking on behalf of Bob Lynch, an upper grade teacher at Lincoln.

Committee Chairman Roger Bauman replied that the option to vote on who goes or stays does not exist because of the contractual agreement to base layoffs and transfers on the previously listed criteria.

Weylman defended other school committee members, saying, "The School Committee had fought hard not to go by seniority."

"It's a system-wide consideration, not a school consideration," Hall said.

Art And Music Featured At McCall

A BIG NIGHT — The McCall Junior High Concert and Art Show last week was a big success, drawing hundreds to listen to the orchestra and marvel at the student art works ranging from paintings to industrial art projects. School News

The School Committee voted to create new, paid positions representing next year's non-athletic extracurricular activities.

Four positions and newly created clubs will receive portions of the $17,933 High School EAC allocation. The committee approved the creation of four organizations operating with voluntary advisors. They are: the Computer Club, Science Club, Ski Club and the Winchester High School Sailing Club.

A job and program description for a junior high Computer Lab course was approved by the School Committee Monday night.

The course, entitled "Computer Lab" will provide an introduction to computer programming for all seventh graders in 1981-82. The course will consist of eighteen weekly sessions.

"It will provide a fine opportunity for Winchester students," Director of Curriculum, Dave Ackerman said.

MATH WHIZZES — These six Vinson-Owen pupils earned top scores in a recent New England Math Meet. All six were in the top five places in the region.

V-O Pupils Shine In Math Meet

The six Vinson-Owen students obviously enjoy learning math from their teacher Kay Rielly. She turns it into a game.

"On your birthday, you're going to be seven squared, right?" sixth grader Colin Stryker kidded Rielly.

"That's right," she replied. "But it will be a long time before I'm prime." In fact the six pupils, Stryker, sixth graders Andreas Coppi, Steve Goudsouzian, Jarrett Williams and fifth graders John Golden and Mark Lundin, learned their math lessons extremely well.

As a team, they managed to bring the seventh highest ranking in the Northeast to their school, when in the recent New England Math meet, they scored 171 out of a possible 200.

Individually, the pupils earned second, third, fourth and fifth places in the meet.

And Stryker, who answered 38 correct out of a possible 40, tied for third best math pupil in the country.

"These were not your basic math questions, they tried to trick you," Rielly explained. "The students had to keep cool, and keep their heads."

"There was no way for the kids to prepare for this test. They just had to know math," she added.

The six students didn't think the test was so tricky — they wouldn't even admit to being nervous, except for Williams, who admitted he was a little tense before the test started.

But they could think of one or two questions that were maybe just a little trickier than the rest.

Williams said the toughest question he remembered was one that asked how many palindromes (a number the same backwards as forwards) were in the numbers between one and 1000.

Once they thought about it, the kids did say that the test was a bit different from the usual school exam.

"Usually," Stryker said, "The questions on a test all say the same thing."

"And you already know the answers," Golden added.

Lands Of Make-Believe

Muraco Goes Japanese

BY SUSAN SCHNECK

By the end of their three year stay in Winchester the Nishida family was so impressed with the town — its schools, culture and people — they wanted to share their own country with Winchester.

Dr. Teuro Nishida wanted to mail his country over to his children's school to show his appreciation for the quality education his two children received there.

But Japan could not fit inside Muraco Elementary School so Nishida did the next best thing.

He gave Muraco second grade teacher Susan Bokil $300 to create a school program about Japan. Through this unit, Nishida could show his appreciation of Muraco School and fulfill his wish of bridging a cultural gap between the two countries.

But he did not entirely abandon the idea of sending over Japan.

Since then he has been sending over bits and pieces of his country. Bokil has received numerous books, stamps, dolls, toys and other artifacts from Japan. It is Nishida's wish to fill a large box which would then serve as the "Japanese unit" for the second grade and remain an addition to Muraco school.

And in the midst of all this good will, appreciation and sharing, the Muraco second graders have delighted in discovering more similarities than they had ever imagined all about children in a faraway land.

Bokil focused on differences and similarities between the Japanese and Winchester children. "It's a unit about children for children," she said. And her pupils were just as enthusiastic towards learning about Japan as she was.

"They write differently from us," exclaimed eight-year-old Courtney Manning. "I learned to write like them," she continued while proudly exhibiting her name written in Katakana (a Japanese phonetic alphabet for English sounds.)

Comparisons between Japanese and American sports are what most intrigued seven-year-old Tommy Musto.

"Some sports are the same, like basketball and baseball," he said. "And some are different like judo and kendo (sword fighting)."

The second graders had researched through many picture books and the room was filled with cultural differences and similarities.

Ericka Gannon, portrayed the role of the daughter

Deborah Parsons played the mother at the Japanese family head table

Pictures of similar jobs like newspaper carriers and ice cream men hung on the classroom walls side by side with oyster harvesters and rice field workers.

"He wanted to leave a remembrance for his family and buy Muraco school a gift," Principal Dick Young said. Instead, Young, Bokil and Nishida decided this would be the perfect opportunity to work a Japanese program into the curriculum.

That was one year ago. Now the program has been in full swing and last week was "Food Glorious Food" day — the culmination of the Japanese learning experience for the second graders. On the same day a brass plaque from Japan arrived to be the grande finale for the box of culture, culture.

The inscribed plaque read, "With deep appreciation for the education of our children, Hitoshi and Chikako. May our two countries grow even closer."

Food is always a unifying and enjoyable similarity between cultures and the food day was a definite hit.

The Muraco second graders could have almost passed for Japanese pupils — almost. They were wearing "uniforms" of white shirts and navy shorts.

Long tables had been set up on the floor with large square pillows serving as seats. A rather large pile of shoes sat in one corner of the room. Authentic Japanese delicacies of every shape, color and flavor had been carefully prepared by many of the pupil's mothers.

As the mothers doled out the egg drop soup, chicken teryaki and steamed ginger cake, Young shook his head in wonder at Bokil's efficient operation.

"How the heck she got all these people to do all this work is beyond me," he said.

Somehow she did. And the food was not just haphazardly heaped onto plates either. Each dish was described by Bokil and the explanations were followed by loud choruses of oohs, aaahs and mmmms. Then the pupils stood up and sang out, "Thank you Mamasan (mother.)"

A pseudo head family with a mother, father, two boys and two girls had been established and they were sitting apart from all the other "Japanese" students. This table was served first and the males were served before the females.

The rest of the group patiently waited for the head family to begin. Bokil had strongly emphasized how well-behaved Japanese children were and the second-graders were determined not to break the magic of the moment.

This determination could be seen as the pupils ate their meals. Chopsticks were set up at each place but forks were close by for emergencies.

Each pupil did try his or her hardest to eat the entire meal with chopsticks even if it meant eating one grain of rice at a time. In some cases, however, the food aromas were too overwhelming to maintain self discipline and the forks won over the chopsticks. But over half the pupils made it all the way to the Japanese cookies using chopsticks while their mothers anxiously eyed the leftovers.

Although many second graders said food day was the best part of their unit on Japan, they admitted that learning about Japanese customs was also enjoyable.

The class had celebrated Dolls Day (a holiday for girls where they make dolls) and Boys Day (a holiday for boys where they fly kites which consist of a stick and paper carps attached to it).

Each child made family portraits drawing the animal that corresponds to the birthdays of family members. This involved research by students and parents.

"The whole community has been working to make this project a success," Bokil exclaimed referring to the large amount of input from the parents.

Kindergarten through 12 grade social studies Director Bill O'Connor, looked at the barefoot, chopstick-holding pupils and beamed. "I think this has really been a good experience for the kids," he said. "It covers a variety of disciplines — not just social studies — and it's nice to have a cultural program that grew out of a family that was here."

In a letter written to Young and Bokil, Nishida said that his family has missed Winchester ever since they left the town last June.

"Whenever we show slides of Winchester the family wants to come back," he said. "Another problem is that I don't have enough time to spend with my children in Japan."

"In Winchester I spent a lot of time, especially evenings and weekends, with my children," the letter continued. "But the life here in Japan does not permit me to go home before they fall asleep. Maybe I work too hard. That is how we survive in Japan."

The Muraco second graders also made observations comparing life in Winchester with Japan.

"I learned that Japanese people make very delicate things," said eight-year-old Michelle Sullivan.

Sundy Johnson, seven, said her favorite part of the unit was the trip Bokil took the class on to the Children's Museum in Boston.

"We saw a Japanese house," she said. "You had to take off your shoes and it had bamboo floors. We learned things about clothes, sports, gardens and stuff like that. I liked how to write our names in Japanese and learn how to say Mamasan and that means mother."

Seven-year-old Krista Scott enjoyed making dolls. "I liked Girls Day the best because I'm a girl," she explained. "I learned how Japanese girls are different from us."

Eight-year-old Debbie Parsons said she liked studying about the calendars. "I liked that they were written funny," she said.

Second-grader Jeffrey Russo was fascinated with Mt. Fuji. "I learned they have Mt. Fuji and that it doesn't erupt," he said. Jeffrey summed up his learning experience quite matter of factly. "I liked everything," he exclaimed.

Students Run Town Meeting And Fight Just Like Adults

By DAVE LEECO

Town Meeting restored the town's mini-bus and shot down garbage collection once again at a special session held last Thursday.

Unfortunately for mini-bus proponents, or garbage collection opponents, what made this Town Meeting "special" was that it was held by Ambrose School pupils.

The kids were learning the ins-and-outs of town government by holding their own Town Meeting, complete with an Ambrose Board of Selectmen, School Committee, Finance Committee, and all the other town groups that turn out for the bi-annual event.

The class did bring in a ringer, former Moderator Harrison Chadwick, to run the meeting, but that's about all the help they needed.

The pupils managed to get through ten articles in an hour, which is something the grown-up Town Meeting never accomplishes. And they did so with complete attention to the rules of the game.

The fourth, fifth and sixth graders had been studying Town Meeting for over a month, reading the charter, holding their own elections, and listening to a series of guest speakers.

Selectman Wade Welch, Finance Committee Chairman Robert Frank, School Committee member Cathy Alexander, Moderator John Sullivan, and Town Manager Thomas Groux had all been in to explain their jobs at Town Meeting.

The Ambrose pupils managed to fill all those slots. In fact, they did a pretty good job of re-creating all the characters at the regular Town Meeting.

There were cost-watchers, socially aware Town Meeting members, and school supporters at the Ambrose Town Meeting.

And this bunch argued and haggled over issues ranging from the fate of the mini-bus to whether the town should build a recreation center, provide after school sports, or serve hot lunches in the schools.

And just to keep the meeting authentic, the kids used such tried-and-true tactics as indefinite postponement, moving the question, and calling the moderator on a point of order.

In fact, the kids caught Chadwick once, much to his chagrin, when he failed to get a second on one motion.

The first article taken up by the pupils provided for the building of a recreation center, complete with pool, arcade and movie theater.

Town meeting member Eddy Barrow thought the whole thing would be a good idea. He told his fellow members that "we should have a recreation center because in the summer, it gets very hot and some people can't go away on vacation."

However, other Town Meeting members were less enthusiastic. Peter O'Brien was against the center if it didn't include a tennis court and a football field, because, "it's too much money for just three things."

These kids were obviously listening to the budget-conscious Spring Town Meeting when it was broadcast on WHRS.

Harrison Chadwick

The students caught Chadwick once, much to his chagrin, when he failed to get a second on a motion.

O'Brien was joined by School Committee member Amy Derry, who felt "it cost too much — you're going to have to pay for lifeguards for the pool, and to clean it up."

But the majority went along with Town Meeting member Seth Rosenberger, who felt the recreation center "would keep kids out of mischief."

"Some kids go along vandalizing things," he warned his fellow members, "and that's no good."

These fiscal conservatives kept plugging away, even though they lost on the recreation center.

When the article to reinstate the mini-bus came up, Heather Frank, daughter of the FinCom chairman, stood up to say the bus cost too much. Like father, like daughter.

"The mini-bus doesn't really take you very far, just downtown," Frank pointed out. "It costs gas, and everybody could walk or ride their bike."

But teller John Colantino defended the bus, successfully, noting that he had "read in The Star that the elderly were very disappointed over the stopping of the mini-bus. It is very convenient for them."

The budget-cutters did win out on a move to give residents back garbage collection, much to the dismay of Chadwick, who regularly fights for collection on the floor of the grown-up Town Meeting.

In fact, the pupils forced Chadwick to count the votes against his pet article, as they had learned that, when they doubted his gauging of the voice vote, they could stand and get a head count.

They learned a few other tricks to Town Meeting as well.

For example, an article calling for an increase in library fines was ruled out of order by Chadwick, after School Committeeman Chris Locasio pointed out "this is not a legal motion. It is a question for the library to decide, not the Town Meeting."

The pupils also knew that they could amend a motion.

On an article which would have provided for an after-school sports program, Melissa Caci amended it to provide for both an after- and before-school sports program.

Chadwick commented after the meeting that he was amazed at how much the kids knew about made every motion, and argued every point ever seen at Town Meeting.

Except one. And it did take the kids a few minutes to figure out what that final motion should be. But it's not really their fault.

You see, at the grown-up Town Meeting, Clarence Borggaard always moves for adjournment, and he was nowhere near the Ambrose School Thursday.

So it took a minute or two before one pupil, grinning at the prospect of getting out of school, got up and said, "I move that the Ambrose Town Meeting be adjourned."

There were cost-watchers, socially-aware members and school supporters at the Ambrose Town Meeting.

Buzzotta is a graduate of the Art Institute of Boston and has studied for many years with a number of New England artists.

The exhibit will be judged by two prominent local artists. Charlotte Davidson is a past President of the Arlington Art Association and a former officer of the Lexington Arts and Crafts Society where she was accorded a Master Craftsman rating.

Rosalind Lynch is a recent past President of the Winchester Guild of chitects said they had previously considered that option and the present site designated for the garage had been found to be much more advantageous from a cosmetic and structural standpoint.

Uyerhoeven questioned whether the hospital could resume the mini bus services.

Jacquelyn McNeill of Washington st. picked up on that idea and suggested the hospital implement a program similar to the one at Logan Airport where she works.

"They have busses that transport us from our cars to the door and it's very effective," she said. "One little bus handles over 30,000 employees."

Butz said that a program of that nature may work for Logan airport employees who have set hours but that it could not possibly work in a hospital where employees have unpredictable shifts.

The suggestion for a satellite garage frequently surfaced but always got shot down for various reasons.

Some residents said that putting the parking in another area of town would cause the same problems with different neighbors.

When MyGatt suggested that the satellite parking area could be situated in a more commercial location, everyone shouted, "Where?"

That had him stumped.

There is not available commercial area in Winchester for parking, said Town Meeting member Michael Connolly. "There is only 12 acres of land in Winchester left for developing. It's time to get the cars where they belong — on the hospital property!"

Now the hospital may not obtain their determination of need license until October. This delay could feasibly cost Winchester Hospital about $500,000 since the cost of the project was based on September 1980 dollars.

Until EOE issues their report no other state agency can approve the hospital's proposal. The Department of Health was scheduled to rule on the expansion proposal by the end of June but EOE's involvement seems to guarantee a delay in the plans for about three months.

Board Chairman Edward F. O'Connell pointed out Monday night that with the settlements from both the architects and the contractor, and $96,000 the town appropriated, but never spent on the original construction, the town "had not done too badly."

And that pot was sweetened by nearly $100,000 in interest earned by the $96,000 over the past ten years, according to Comptroller Alphonse Faggiano.

So, with settlements, left-over cash and interest, the town has received about $851,000 to offset the cost of repairing the roof.

human characteristics we seek in filling this position," said Board of Selectmen Chairman Edward F. O'Connell.

John McElwee, the chairman of The DPW Director Search Committee, explained his committee had spent 306 member hours, 17 meetings, and $2500 for advertising seeking a new director.

In the course of the search, McElwee said, the committee received 77 resumes, and interviewed 16 applicants before settling on Serratore.

This information prompted O'Connell to ask if the search was really worth it in effort and time, just to find "the guy in our own backyard."

"Yes, it was worth it," O'Connell answered himself. "Because you did such a thorough job, we know you're not settling on a compromise candidate with Mr. Serratore."

"We know he passed the most exacting test."

difficult for them to function," Scanlon commented.

"I truly believe that the Governor does not understand how serious this (the cutbacks) can be for many families," she said.

"Of course, these are only my thoughts, not those of the commission," she added. "I can't speak for them."

Scanlon added that she "couldn't say" how much more success her successor as chairwoman, Betty Aldrich of Weston, will have in working with Gov. King.

She commented on her own lack of success in reaching her goals of three years ago. "I think a lot of people don't consider Social Services a women's issue," she said. "But I think it is a women's issue."

"A great number of the elderly are women, who will have to go into nursing homes rather than have home care, and a great number of women who will not get day care are single heads of households," she said.

"I would like to feel that I had been able to advise the Governor about that, but I didn't," she said. "I don't know."

level. Her husband, James, was in between jobs and it was then that I took a good look at what it would be like for my family if they had to depend on me," she said.

Money for displaced homemakers programs come from the Division of Occupational Education, a federal fund, and from CETA funds, but to be eligible recipients must maintain a certain income level.

"There are many women who have a little bit of money after they are divorced or widowed," she said. "Their amount of money puts them above the eligibility level for CETA, but it still places them in the crack between that level and being able to afford an expensive women's program for re-entry into the work force."

One of the biggest barriers to dealing effectively with this particular problem, she added, is that most people don't understand that displaced homemakers are not "a low-income problem."

"There are displaced homemakers living in expensive homes who don't

'Maybe somebody else will do a better job'

maybe somebody else will do a better job."

She had been a member of the Commission on the Status of Women since 1979 and chairwoman of that group of 30 women for the past 18 months, trying to transform her hopes for improving the lives of Massachusetts women into legislation and specific programs.

On Friday, Scanlon sat back with hands calmly folded, on a patio chair behind her home at 5 Alesworth st., and recounted her original plans when she started working on the commission.

"We were looking for a coordinated system of service delivery for displaced homemakers in the state and were particularly interested in the 40,000 or so women who were not eligible for CETA assistance," she said.

"We were asking for three centers throughout the state for displaced homemakers, where they would get counseling, job retraining, and, most importantly, peer support."

"As of now, there are no such centers in Massachusetts," she said. "We have programs, but the problem with the programs is that they have start-up costs and mere performance is no guarantee of success."

Scanlon recalled the first time she thought seriously about the plight of displaced homemakers on a personal know how to get food on the table, who have no medical coverage, and whose self-esteem couldn't be lower," she said.

But the problem extends also to the lower economic classes. "My feeling is that if you help the displaced homemakers, you will be helping to limit the rising demographic figures of elderly poor who are mostly women."

"The option of staying at home to take care of your children really shouldn't have to turn out to be a serious economic mistake," she added.

Another of her main goals in heading the commission was to try to help prevent family violence. The Commission has worked with the Coalition for Battered Women, trying to represent that organization's needs to federal and state agencies.

"We were doing advocacy work in that area, but I don't feel we were able to do very much for them," she said.

Scanlon, a former Walpole elementary school teacher, has been a resident and homemaker in Winchester for 18 years. She keeps busy by caring for her three children, Maria, 16, Jamie, 14, and Alicia, 11, by participating in musical activities at St. Eulalia Church, and by teaching religious education.

Although her resignation as chairwoman of the commission will be effective June 15, she hopes to remain as a member of the group.

Never use a metal or other stiff-bristled brush to scrub your vinyl roof. Though the vinyl is rugged, it still is only a relatively thin sheet stretched over the steel top of the car. Use a soft brush dipped in mild soapsuds. Rinse with clear water to remove all soap. For stubborn stains or streaks use a commercial vinyl-roof cleaner. For discolorations, use a vinyl restorer (available from your dealer or an auto-supply store) the same color as your roof. Wash vinyl upholstery with a mixture of mild household detergent and warm water. Rinse off with a cloth dampened with lukewarm water.

A Tough Way To End 'Awesome' Season

SKULL SESSION — Sachemette tennis coach Marge Harvey gives her team some strategic tips

Lincoln-Sudbury Takes Match

By SUSAN SCHNECK

The Sachemettes were phenomenal this year. Until they finally met a team that could beat them. Now they're only excellent.

Although the Winchester netgirls lost the State Semi Finals 2-3 against Lincoln-Sudbury, they celebrated some stunning victories in the states along the way.

In the Quarter finals against Lexington Sachemette Sheila Gray pulled off the unbelievable and beat the top Middlesex league player Wendy Wood 7-5, 4-6, 6-2.

A victory over Wood is unprecedented and something to be proud of. Gray was proud although she did not go crazy. Coach Marge Harvey compensated for Gray's modesty.

"It feels good," Gray said. "I'm playing consistently and I'm not making too many stupid mistakes. Wendy played well and when I keep her back and get her running I'm fine."

She was more than fine. Only a freshman, Gray continues to astonish her coach. "Sheila is an up and coming tennis player," Harvey said shaking her head in amazement. "She gets harder and harder to beat each time."

The quarter finals match against Lexington had a lot of odds going against the Sachemettes but they tossed odds aside and beat Lexington again with cunning and skill.

The match took place on a sticky, steamy day right before the senior prom. The netgirls had plenty on their minds that day and their strained expressions revealed it all.

Between sets each Sachemette could be observed conducting a small inner pep talk with herself.

Prudy Horne and Jodi McNamara finished off their first sets beautifully with impressive scores of 6-4, 7-5 over Tina Reiling and Katy Page.

But they were not won easily. "It was too close," Horne said. "I started to choke at the end but decided that we don't want to play three sets. (The seniors were anxious to finish in time for their prom). So we set each other up. Jodi played awesome at the net and I didn't make any mistakes."

That just about summed it up but McNamara put it even more simply stating, "We were awesome."

Both said the weather was so hot they could hardly hold onto their racquets.

Therese Aylward swiftly and deftly creamed Emily Tuton 6-2, 6-0 in third singles.

"Therese played very well," said Harvey. "She's a very graceful, beautiful player. She was very deliberate and won all the points she needed to."

All of Lexington's strength this year was in their first singles and two doubles teams.

Lexington's second doubles team of Sonia and Marta Muellerman beat the Winchester power machine of Terry Elio and Diane Intravaia in three sets, 3-6, 6-2, 6-3.

Debbie Willing topped Rachel Levine 6-4, 6-2 in a tense, well-played battle. Willing attributed her victory over Levine to "playing smart enough to win," but added that she has never seen Levine play as well as she did today. Apparently it wasn't good enough to beat Willing though.

That game made prom night quite an enjoyable one for Seniors Debbie Willing, Therese Aylward, Jodi McNamara and Prudy Horne.

But the taste of sweet success did not stay with the Sachemettes for long.

Lincoln-Sudbury pulled off what all the Middlesex teams have been dying to do all season — they beat Winchester.

The Winchester netgirls were defeated 3-2 in the EMass Class A girls' team tennis semifinals.

McNamara and Horne were defeated by Lauren Oasis and Dianna Fischer in three tough sets, 7-6, 4-6, 6-2. That was a surprise for Winchester. But they had not counted on Lincoln-Sudbury dropping Oasis from third singles to first doubles.

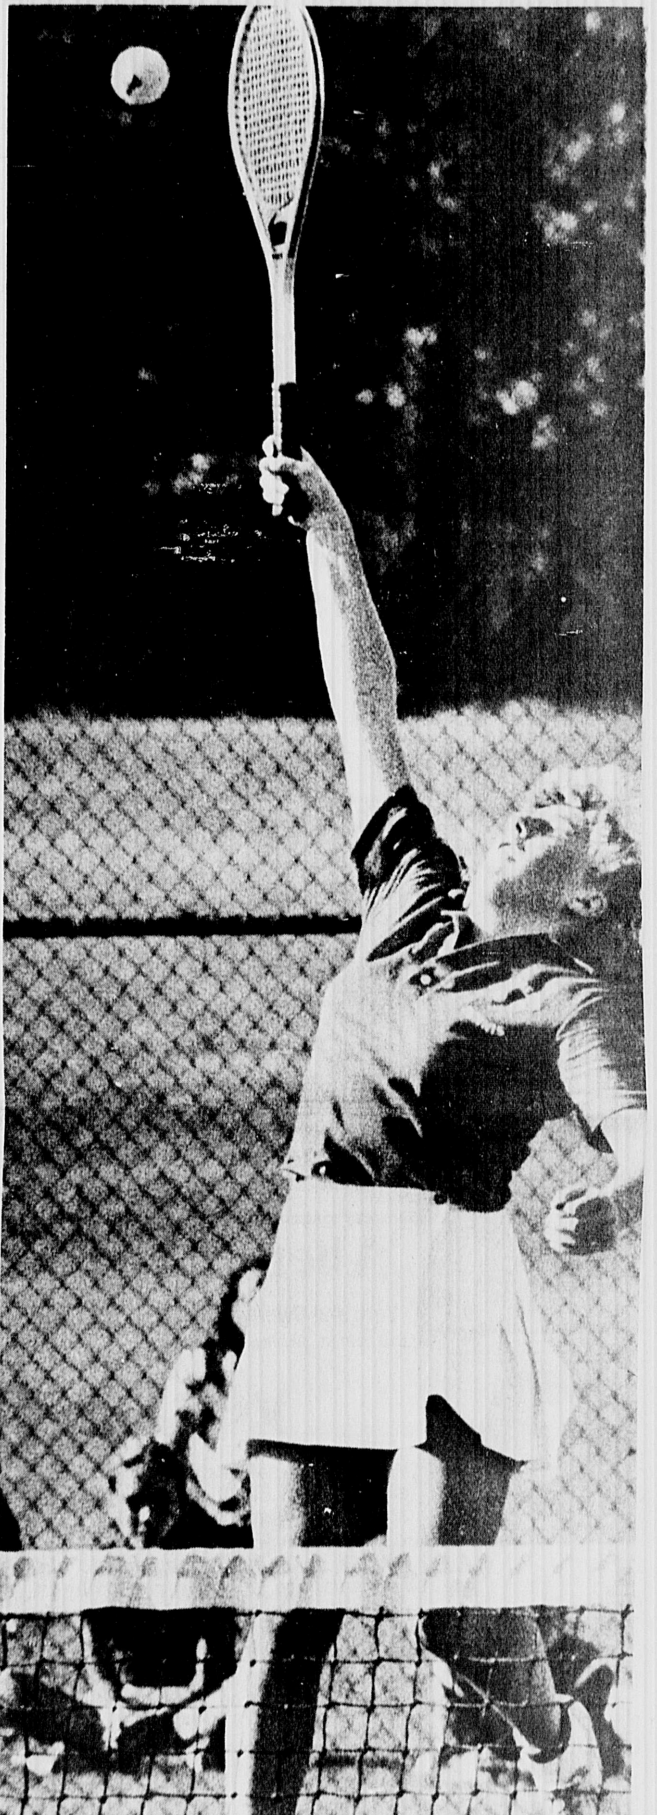

Linda Oechsle beat Winchester's star, Sheila Gray 6-2, 6-0 in first singles and Oechsle's sister Tina beat Debbie Willing soon afterwards in a grueling close match in second singles.

Then came a glimmer of hope when Therese Aylward blasted Debbie Hephpenstall 6-2, 6-2.

Winchester's second doubles duo of Elio-Intravaia also won easily over Lincoln-Sudbury's Martha McNamara and Donna McDonald 6-1, 6-3.

Horne and McNamara played some beautiful tennis but they just could not stop the tough team they were up against.

And once again the Sachemettes ended their beautiful season as the Middlesex League champs. This is the third consecutive year they have held that title. What a season!

GOING FOR IT — Prudy Horne, half of the Sachemette No. 1 doubles team, goes high for a shot in Monday's loss in the state tournament.

Durante Advances To New England Meet

Winchester track star Kathy Durante will go on to the All New England track meet on the strength of her winning performance at the AllStates Saturday.

The harriers sent four athletes to represent Winchester in the All-States at Gardner. Along with Durante, Laurie Glynn, Laura Weylman and Eileen Conley qualified and competed.

Durante's individual performance winning the discus and scoring 10 points for Winchester earned her a spot on the Globe's All Scholastic team, a conglomeration of the top performers in all the state meets.

"This is the first time I won the states," Durante exclaimed. "There has always been someone better than me."

Her performance Saturday brought Winchester 10 points and track star Laurie Glynn came in second in the mile bringing home eight points and leaving Winchester with a total of 18 points for the meet.

Winchester scored fifth in the state. Durante feels confident that she will have a shot in the all New England meet this Saturday in Concord, New Hampshire.

"I should be worried because I'm competing against Michelle Millande of North Quincy who has beat me before," she said. "But I'm hoping she'll choke since she has before." Millane is reputed to have thrown 135 feet and Durante's record throw is 133.3 which she earned in last weeks meet against Woburn.

The harriers faced stiff competition Saturday against the top five individuals in the eastern, western and central Massachusetts divisions. The girls performed spectacularly and coach Cantillon was not the least bit surprised.

"I expected them to do well," he said. "When you get to this level of competition though, it gets hard to predict. But I'm optimistic and I thought they would come in first or second."

"I'm very proud that we had five girls that qualified. (One did not run), Cantillon continued. "To win a medal and be in the top six is that much more of an accomplishment."

Durante said she was surprised as she did not know what kind of competition

Sachems Dump Concord-Carlisle, 3-2

BY SUSAN SCHNECK

The Middlesex gods were shining down on the State Semi Finals tennis championships sending two long-time rivals to battle it out once again. But this time Winchester will face Lexington in the State Finals.

The Sachems clipped the Semi Finals in what was probably their closest, most tension-filled match ever!

Overall and individual scores ran neck in neck until the last decisive minutes.

The future of the Sachems rested on second singles player Glenn Ciotti. It couldn't have happened to a more capable player. Ciotti cut through the tension and the odds carrying his team to victory.

After three grueling hours the overall score was tied at 2-2 and Ciotti was still battling it out against Bill Frizzell.

Although suffering from asthma,

Ciotti maintained his usual perfect form and consistently placed the ball where Frizzell wasn't.

But Frizzell's middle name is consistency itself and as they traded points for point the crowd went into a frenzy.

Everybody was clutching their stomachs and as the moment of reckoning approached and tempers were on edge.

Each time Ciotti and Frizzell called the ball out, other team members openly showed their disapproval.

Ciotti was firing rocketships for serves but Frizzell was smoothly returning them.

It was all up to Ciotti and the Sachems were silently praying for his victory. "Do it baby. You can do it, Glenn," was buzzing through the air.

When Ciotti's skill released the Sachems from their tortuous uncertainty the Sachems went screaming onto the courts to release all their pent-up emotions on Ciotti. They literally smothered him.

Coach Scanlon had been on such an emotional seesaw all afternoon, it took him a while to enjoy the victory.

"I was so gutted out when the first doubles lost that it's hard for me to be overjoyed," he said. But that did not last long. And soon Scanlon was beaming with pride over Ciotti's performance. "To come from behind like that is amazing," he said. "I'll sleep a heck of a lot better tonight after seeing that. This is the greatest coaching achievement I've had the pleasure of being a part of!"

Ciotti's final score was 4-6, 6-2, 7-5. "I just can't believe Ciotti won that match," Scanlon exclaimed shaking his head. "I'm shocked and thrilled."

Ciotti said he knew throughout the match that the future of the Sachems rested on his shoulders.

A TOUGH LOSS — It was a close and hard-fought match Saturday afternoon but when it ended, the Winchester youth soccer team had come out on the short end. The 1-0 loss at Lynch field to Arlington put the Arlington club into first place after having been tied with Winchester for the league lead. In the photo above, coach Jack Curtin gives his charges some tough half-time talk in hopes that his team would break the scoreless half-time deadlock.

Clinic, Mixed Doubles At Tennis Center

A free tennis instructional clinic for players of all abilities will be held June 28 at the Winchester Indoor Lawn Tennis Center, as part of National Tennis Week. "Our clinic is designed to introduce the sport to new participants and to improve the games of those who already play," said Lloyd Thomas Jr., the center's tennis director.

The center will also host the Lipton

Iced Tea Mixed Doubles Tournament beginning June 22. Entry blanks may be obtained at the Tennis Center, or by calling 729-4040 to have one mailed.

The Lipton Iced Tea Doubles Tournament in Winchester will be part of a nationwide tourney, held during tennis week, which is America's largest amateur tennis program.

★ Tennis

got him tired early and I think that was important because he's out of shape. He doesn't last long.

Capel did not appear too ruffled over that assessment of his abilities. "Maybe I'm not in good enough shape," he said. "I couldn't play up to my abilities. He played almost flawless tennis."

Chris Julian blasted Bill Diegaan 6-2, 6-3 and he played his game as if his life and that of his teammates depended on it.

"Everytime I saw that ball it was like it was (Diegaan) head and I hit it as hard as I could. At 4-0 I tightened up — it was close but in the second set I was very confident and I pulled it off.

"He wasn't clutch when he needed to be," Julian continued. After the first two singles matches were history the crowd hovered behind the second doubles match where the Palumbo-Cosentino duo was battling it out with Frank O'Neil and John Lynch. They had split sets, 4-6, 6-4 and the lines on every Sachem face spelled tension. Each error made by either side received loud jeers and cheers and the players closed their eyes and silently chastised themselves after each mistake. But just as quickly as they berated themselves they would turn around and hug each other when the team scored. It was definitely war.

When they finally won the third match 7-5 the Sachems allowed themselves a quick moment of glee before focusing all attention on the first doubles match.

The Green-Fuchs machine was coaching each other as they always do, calming one another down when the going was rough and providing necessary encouragement.

As the match got closer and closer one mother muttered, "I can't take much more of this tension. I just can't stand it."

When the first doubles lost to Steve Temme and Dean Pallozzi it did not help any newly formed ulcers one bit.

JV player Mark Herlihy's mother, a spectator, said, "I'm glad I'm not watching my son or else I'd have a heart attack."

Scanlon just stood behind the fence silently praying, "Collin, please meet your challenge."

When Fuchs and Green finally lost the Concord players went wild and the first doubles teams's shoulders could not have slumped lower.

"It was just one of those things," Fuchs said. "The ball hit the net. I just went for it but I caught the tape."

But nothing could undercut the teams victory. "This match victory makes all the time we have been out there worth it," said Scanlon.

The Sachems topped Needham in the quarter finals 4-1.

Steve Capel bested Victor Milligan 6-2, 6-4. Glenn Ciotti lost in a tie breaker to Andy Pazmany 7-6, 3-6, 6-4.

Chris Julian blasted Mark Zabbatsky with two very successful matches 6-2, 6-0. In the most exciting match of the day,

SEX DISCRIMINATION OUTLAWED

The Equal Credit Opportunity Act is now in effect. It forbids creditors from discriminating against applicants for loans on the basis of sex or marital status. Its goal is to guarantee credit to everyone (if you're a bad credit risk, your loan can still be refused) but your access to credit is now based solely on your ability to pay.

The law does not prohibit a creditor from knowing your marital status; in some cases he has to know it to protect his rights as a creditor, in liens and title transfers, for instance. The law aims at such things as making sure a woman's creditworthiness is judged on the same basis as a man's and that husband and wife joint credit accounts will provide each of them with an independent credit history. The new law will also prohibit practices that would make married persons more credit-worthy than unmarried or separated persons, require credit application to reveal information about childbearing plans, exclude alimony and child-support payments in evaluating creditworthiness.

CIVIL WAR Unit looking for members. The 5th Massachusetts Battery is made up of people in the Greater Boston area interested in the Civil War. There are two divisions: (1) competition shooting divisions which is a North-South Skirmish Association unit that competes in team matches with a full-sized muzzleloading cannon as well as with muskets, carbines and revolvers of the pre-1865 era. And (2) the "chowder and marching division" which takes part in parades, battle re-enactments, and authentic living history demonstrations. You can join either or both depending on your interests. The musket and carbine shooting events involve team shooting at breakable targets with the shortest elapsed time determining the winning team. It's fun if you're interested in black powder shooting. For further information contact 5th Mass. Battery, John Humphrey, 195 West St., Reading, or Al Gosciniak, 27 Washington St., Charlestown, by phone or mail.

Women's Club Juniors Toast To Busy Year

HELPING — Mrs. Gilda Lopez, Fashion Show chairman of the Winchester Woman's Club Jrs., prepares a $500 check which will go to help fund special education in the Winchester schools. The Woman's Club is again sponsoring the Special Needs Summer Camp, which enables qualified special needs children to join a stimulating summer program.

The annual banquet of the Winchester Woman's Club Jrs. was held June 2 at Pages at Colonial in Lynnfield.

The banquet was the grand finale to a year of hard work and dedication, touched with immeasurable reward.

Out-going President Nancy Clarke handed the gavel to new President Elaine Lundin, during installation ceremonies which also included naming Barbara Tomasone as vice-president, Mary Ellen Falcone as corresponding secretary, Vivian Aswad as recording secretary, and Diane Phillips, as treasurer.

The Winchester Woman's Club Jrs. was formed in 1974 under Rose Capocceffalo's leadership as the first club president.

Since then, the women have assisted in the immunization program in schools, as well as the Scoliosis screening. They also participate in the ABC snack program.

The club has sponsored many interesting programs open to the public, such as "Lupus Awareness" night, chaired by Susanne Wyler, and a program on breast cancer, which included instruction on self-examination and was chaired by Eileen Regan.

The club is now planning a program on gifted and talented students, with guest speaker Marcia Greenman LeBeau, who is a consultant on teaching gifted and talented children.

This program will be held in September, under the chairmanship of Lundin, and will be open to the public.

The Winchester Woman's Club Jrs. is open to any Winchester woman who feels like belonging. Call Mary Perra, membership chairman at 729-4987 or President Elaine Lundin, at 729-2954 for information.

Winton Club Holds Annual Meeting

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Winton Club was held on May 13, at the Winchester Country Club.

Mrs. Regis Pelloux, club president, announced the name of a new honorary member, Mrs. James F. Dwinell Jr. This honor comes with 50 years of service to the Winton Club.

Also honored were eight members who have completed ten years of service. They are Mrs. Frank Bates, Mrs. Jerome Flanagan, Mrs. Stanley Harms, Mrs. Richard Norris, Mrs. Regis Pelloux, Mrs. Edward Pepper, Mrs. Robert Quinn and Mrs. Allan Ruggles.

Eleven new members were greeted at a reception before the meeting. They are Mrs. Eric Bradley, Mrs. Stephen Danforth, Mrs. James Jones, Mrs. Shibley Malouf, Mrs. John Meade, Mrs. Donald Peck, Mrs. Roland Robison, Mrs. Paul Rutherford, Mrs. William Ryer, Mrs. Nancy VanKooten and Mrs. Frank Wilder.

Reports given by committee chairmen announced the many hours of service given in the hospital coffee shop, the gift shop and on the gift cart by members. In addition, a small group met several times to sew specially requested hospital linen. Estimate of service, in hospital hours, was 5550, accomplished by 119 members.

Mystic Parents Hold Coffee

Jean and Robert Kidder opened their Brooks st. home June 3 for the Mystic Parents Association (MPA) Old-New Board of Directors Changeover Coffee.

Dr. Martha Grenzebach, principal, and board members were introduced at a 9:30 a.m. meeting. Coffee and refreshments were served.

The board presented a gift to Mrs. Kidder in recognition and thanks for her work during the past year.

Dr. Grenzebach, staff, and parents expressed the opinion that the Early Bird Coffee for Parents, held recently at the Mystic School, should be continued on an annual basis.

The coffee allows parents to observe their children being taught in a classroom

Last year's Cabaret chairman, Mrs. Richard Swanson, announced that "Sea Scape" raised over $18,000. This added to the sum of $22,000 raised by the gift shop, enabled the Winton Club to donate over $30,000 to the Winchester Hospital linen and equipment supply.

Mrs. Pelloux reported that in honor of Winton Club's 70th year, the Club, this year, will assume the entire linen needs of the Winchester Hospital. Working towards this goal, Mrs. Richard Santos, 1982 Cabaret chairman, announced that plans for this year's show, "Bravo, Broadway!" are well under way.

Election of officers for 1981-82 closed the meeting. The following slate of officers will be working with Mrs. Pelloux who begins her second year in office: Mrs. Roman DeSanctis, vice president; Mrs. John Heffernan, secretary; Mrs. Frank Gunby Jr., treasurer; Mrs. Ronald Skates, Membership; Mrs. Joseph Twichell, Nominating; Mrs. Paul Gleason, Activities; Mrs. Frank Oddi, Gift Shop Volunteer chairman; Mrs. John Sexton, Gift Cart Volunteer chairman; Mrs. Hiram Smith Jr., Coffee Shop Volunteer chairman.

Winchester Wellesley Club Holds Spring Meeting

The sunny garden and cool home of Mrs. Robert Stone was the setting for the recent Spring Annual Meeting of the Winchester Wellesley Club.

Those attending welcomed Mrs. Aurora Leydon, mother of Maria, class of '82. Club members were also informed that two Winchester high school graduates, Laura Nigro and Melanie Melzar, will be entering Wellesley College in the fall freshman class.

President Maggie Russell announced that the fall benefit would be held on October 15 at the Parish of the Epiphany Church. Co-chairmen Nancy Hudson and Alice Mirak have chosen "An Introduction to Theatre" as the theme and members of the Boston Shakespeare Company will perform.

Ceci Bradlee will direct the well-known salad bar luncheon and Ann McGovern plans to repeat her outstanding performance as ticket chairman.

Plan to come — the admission will be $7.50 (seniors $6) for a morning of live theatre and ample luncheon.

Following dessert and coffee, members viewed a slide-tape show of college scenes and songs, presented by Shelia Marion.

Club Readies For Boston Five Classic

Envisioning even greater success this summer than in the inaugural of the $150,000 Boston Five Classic a year ago, Robert J. Spiller of Prospect st., president of the Boston Five Cents Savings Bank, is proud of his home town's participation in this great golf event.

More than 20 members of the Winchester Country Club, most of whom also live in Winchester, have volunteered their services in various capacities for the July 30-Aug. 2 event at the Radisson Fencroft Hotel and Country Club in Danvers.

"I'm extremely happy," said Spiller, "that we are able to bring back to the area 100 or more of these great women professional golfers."

"New England fans deserve to see the best. With such stars as Pat Bradley, Kathy Whitworth and Donna Caponi, we're assured of seeing most of the best in the world of women's golf."

The tournament's three charities were enriched by more than $25,000 from last year's Classic and hope to get even more this year. Greater Boston youths will benefit from the Boston Five Classic through The Big Sister Association of Greater Boston, Inc.; The Boys' and Girls' Clubs of Boston, Inc.; and The Patriot's Trail Girl Scout Council.

Set in the spectacular panorama of natural beauty, unspoiled by man or machine, the Radisson Fencroft Hotel and Country Club course is being precisely manicured for the LPGA event which the women so enjoyed a year ago when Dale Lundquist won by three strokes over Amy Alcott.

The challenging 18-hole course was designed by the internationally famous golf architect, Robert Trent Jones. It is a masterpiece of variety ranging from wide open par 5's to treacherous par 3's played over coiling water hazards.

League Elects Officers

Over thirty-five members of the Winchester LWV met on Wednesday, May 27 over a pot luck dinner at the home of Secretary Marjorie Gibson to elect officers and Board members for a two year term and to adopt program for the coming year.

President Judie Muggia, having finished one year of the previous two-year term of a former president, was elected for another two-year term with First VP Betty Small, Second VP Barbara Adams, Secretary Gibson and continuing as Treasurer is Marlene Rothman.

Joining Pat Mahon and Cynthia Turquist on the Board are Marcia Wood, Marjorie McCann-Estridge, Alice Madio, Pat Wells and Francine Lee.

The League has just completed a very busy year and looks forward to more of the same.

The fall program year will start with an Energy House Tour and related Energy Fair, participation in the Jayceettes Flea Market, general meetings open to the public on issues of broad interest, and study units on designated topics.

Last year the LWV unit involving a needs assessment of after school programming for children in grades Kindergarten through 6th was completed and this year the League will study the needs of our youngsters at the Junior High School level.

Parents who do not currently belong to the League are cordially invited to join

Library Board Hires New Director

Miniatures Shown At Library

The complete miniature work of two Winchester women is included in an exhibit of miniature period furniture that is being held during the month of June at the Winchester Public Library.

Mrs. Virginia Merrill, who has co-authored two books, "Needlework in Miniature" and "The Complete Book of Needlework in Miniature," has written another "Reproducing Period Furniture and Accessories in Miniature" with her daughter, Susan Merrill Richardson. It is included in this display, which has in it some pieces by both of them.

Mrs. Richardson, who set up the exhibit at the library, began her miniature work seven years ago, started giving slide lectures more recently and has gotten so busy she has not much free time. Miniatures, as an artistic craft, have mushroomed in popularity during the past decade.

The exhibit contains a gardener's tool shed by Virginia Merrill, a clock case filled with ballroom scale miniature rooms (a bedroom and a sitting room) made by Carol Dinkie and a Queen Anne style crib by Noah's Ark design made by Susan Richardson.

Mrs. Merrill and Mrs. Richardson have done extensive research to insure their miniatures are historically accurate. A grouping has been included which has a Chippendale pie-crust tilt-top table and a Martha Washington (telling) chair with needlepoint upholstery. The table has accessories of blown glass, a hand-dressed, a candle screen, and a miniature book with the story of "The Three Bears."

There is a glass enclosed 16th century William-and-Mary period setting which features several needlepoint-embroidery items, among them the 16th century table carpet. Dr. Robert Millican's silver candle cups and sterling silver candlesticks; a Delph porcelain Monteith bowl, which was the work of both Deborah McKnight and Priscilla Lance, and several other choice items are featured.

Another grouping includes a miniature painting by George Schlosser, a caladium plant by Rosemary Dyke, a copper bottle by Leslie Ramatulla and a handpainted bandbox by Mary O'Brien.

A backgammon table by Paul Runyan with a backgammon needlepoint insert, featuring mother leopards and elephants with their babies, rounds out this exhibit.

Curriculum Director Ackerman Earns P.H.D.

A Doctor of Education degree was awarded to David B. Ackerman, Winchester's Director for Curriculum, during the Harvard University commencement exercises on June 4, 1981.

Dr. Ackerman's field of concentration at the Harvard Graduate School of Education was Administration, Planning, and Social Policy, and his minor was Philosophy of Education.

His doctoral paper was entitled "Administrative Issues Raised by the 'Programs for the Gifted' Movement: Conceptual Analysis and Case Study."

Ackerman received a B.A. from Harvard University in 1968, graduating Cum Laude in General Studies. Since that time he has taught in the Boston and Acron Public Schools and worked as an Administrative Assistant in Newton, before coming to Winchester.

THE SOUND OF MUSIC — On Friday night, the rafters of the Vinson-Owen School resounded to the strains of the 12 songs from John Carter's musical "Wheels" as the 4th, 5th and 6th graders danced, pantomimed and acted their way through the history of the wheel. Under the direction of Mr. Herman Greene, assisted by the staff and children, the audience witnessed the invention of the wheel by the caveman, its use in Roman times, the Industrial Revolution, Wagon Wheels, Henry Ford, Baby Buggy Boogie, Ten-Speed (Bicycle) Wheels, the Ferris Wheel, the Wheaton Fortune, and Wheels on the Road. Michael Chen (above) helps provide some of the music.

Soil Test Offered

Many homeowners have availed themselves of the Soil Test Service at the Suburban Experiment Station in Woburn and the Middlesex County Extension Service operated through the Cooperative Extension Service. According to Dr. Clark W. Nieldow, many homeowners are not aware of the high lead content in the soil surrounding their home.

The fee is now $2 per sample, and an accurate analysis for lead is done, as well as fourteen other elements of each soil sample coming through the laboratory. Of the fourteen elements, lead, cadmium, arsenic and aluminum are metals which could be toxic to plants, and if some of these are high enough, human health protection must be considered.

Lead levels could be high near any home where a gas base point was once used on the home. This element has been known to remain in the soil where a house once stood, but since has been razed by fire. Most of the lead contamination has resulted from many years of weathering, scraping and/or sandblasting of the paint on buildings. The most important concern about these high concentrations is the health of children (especially 6 years or younger) who inhale or ingest lead from contaminated soils.

Youngsters Test Their Fishing Skills And Luck

FISH STORY — Despite unsettled weather, dozens of local youngsters, including (above, left) Keith and Dean McClearn, of Dean rd., joined in the annual Kiwanis Fishing Derby Saturday. The scene provided a healthy mixture of the calm and the confused as both parents and children struggled with the "art" of angling.

(Staff photos by Noreen Murphy)

DERBY DAYS — Amass of fishermen turned out for the Kiwanis Fishing Derby on Saturday. Chris Giso won the grand prize of a rod, reel and tackle box when he caught a 13-inch pickerel.

...Other winners in the contest, which was for fishermen and women in grades one through eight were: Michael Haggerty, Michele Lane, Jenae Cristler, Jennifer Farquharson, Edward Brown, Quyer Tran, Dean McLearn, Tony Rolli, Kim Shields, Chris Novak, Charlie Disitor, Sean Lyons and Shawn Powers.

Ghost Bicycle Rodeo Goes Off Sunday

The Community Schools Association and the Winchester Police Department are co-sponsoring a Ghost Rider Bicycle Rodeo on Sunday, June 14 from 1-3 p.m. behind the Police Station.

All interested children in Grades 1 through 6 are welcome to participate in what promises to be an enjoyable day of fun and learning bicycle safety habits.

As part of their crime prevention program, the Winchester Jaycees will engrave each bicycle with last name and telephone number. Arlington Lithograph, another "Winchesterite", has engraved bike licenses for all; and the Town Bicycle Committee will inspect each bicycle.

In addition, many Winchester businesses and professionals have generously volunteered their time or prizes for the event. Some of these are: Rotary, Kiwanis, EnKa, insurance companies, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Auxiliary Fire Dept., Winchester Police Explorers, Piantadosi Bakery, and Mystic Valley Wheel Works.

Safety officer John McKinley has planned this program to encourage safe bicycle habits for our children.

Hawley, a graduate of Yale University, and a holder of a Master's Degree from the Harvard Business School, will, besides directing the multifaceted program, teach business, featuring management and investment.

Miss Hawley, who is a graduate of Mount Holyoke College, will be substitute teaching in French and English.

Red Cross Blood Drive To Be June 18

The Winchester chapter of Red Cross is sponsoring a Red Cross blood drive on June 18 from 2 p.m. until 8 p.m. at the Chapter House. If you are in good health, have never had hepatitis, and are between the ages of 17 (with parental permission form) and 65, and weigh at least 110 pounds, you can help someone who needs you by donating blood.

The need for blood is crucial at this time — high schools and colleges, which provide many donors in this area, are not in session. The hot weather and summer vacations also contribute to fewer donors. The number of patients who need blood however, does not change. In fact, the need for blood becomes greater in the summer, due to an increase in surgery.

The donation process is safe and simple, and takes less than an hour of your time. The actual donation takes only about seven minutes, and light refreshments are provided afterwards.

Since whole blood must be used within 21 days of donation, and some of the parts within only a few hours, the need for a fresh supply of blood is constant. People are the only source of this supply and patients depend on volunteer donations from others to make sure that they have the blood that they need, regardless of the time of year.

For more information call the Red Cross at 729-2300. The Chapter House is located on Church st.

Storer To Give Sermon At Unitarian Church

"Of Thee I Sing" is the sermon topic of Dr. Robert A. Storer, minister emeritus of the Winchester Unitarian Church on Sunday morning, June 14 at 10:30 a.m.

Special music has been arranged by the choir under the director of Jonathan Barnhart.

There will be no church school classes but child care will be provided. Dr. Storer was called to the ministry of the Unitarian Church in 1950.

Archives Seeks Old Photographs

You know those old photos, gathering dust in the attic, showing Aunt Martha in front of the Winchester bandstand in 1923?

You might not want to have them in your living room, but the Winchester Archives needs them.

The Archivist is now looking for old photographs of Winchester to supplement the Winchester Historical Society's collection.

There are several volunteers who are eager to collect the photos, so if you don't want Aunt Martha anymore, and want to help record Winchester's history, call the Archives at 729-3063.

One way to help beat the cost of French high fashion is to visit the French owned Caribbean island Martinique. On this island of definite French influence, one can usually save 20 percent on bikinis, wine and fine clothing goods. Most famous designer labels are in evidence. Perhaps the finest collection of French goods under one roof, is that of Roger Albert on the Rue Victor Hugo in Fort-de-France. Crystal, perfumes, cosmetics, jewelry and watches all abound here. Beafrand serves up a nice array of leather goods, textiles, copper and ceramics. Cadel-Daniel, at 72 Rue Antoine Seger, offers up beautiful table settings and lovely gold jewelry.

When planning a trip anywhere in the world one way to save you time, aggravation and sometimes even money is to work through the qualified staff at McGRATH TRAVEL SERVICE, 14 Eaton Ave., Woburn, 935-0600. Provenzano Scholarship Established

Frank Provenzano died a year ago, but his memory is still fresh in the minds of the students whose lives he touched. Many people in Winchester donated to the Scholarship Foundation in his memory and now the Old Colony Bank has established a Frank Provenzano Memorial Scholarship.

According to William Crowley, Assistant Vice President, the bank has established this $1,000 annual and perpetual gift to be awarded to "the student who strives to the best of his or her academic ability and demonstrates by his or her deeds a sensitivity and concern for the needs of others."

The first recipient of this award is Gary Errico, well known to sports fans as a football and wrestling star. This first presentation is special in many ways, partly because the Errico and Provenzano families have known each other. Errico will attend the University of Lowell.

"Mr. P", as Provenzano was fondly known, graduated from Winchester in 1936 and was an all around athlete himself. He taught in the Winchester school system for 29 years. His interest in youth was known and felt throughout the town.

"What made him stand out?" a student who had him for gym at Lynch Jr. High School was asked. There was a thoughtful silence, and then "He was funny, but he sustained discipline. He was straightforward. He was very encouraging. He made gym a challenge but it was fun."

Frank Provenzano was the only individual to whom the high school yearbook has been dedicated three times, and the students have paid their respects in many ways — by praying at his grave before football games, attending a special mass in his memory recently, and in private gestures.

John Dilorio, President of Old Colony Bank and Trust Company, remembers Mr. Provenzano. Dilorio grew up in Winchester and knew the Provenzano family well. He knew Frank Provenzano through his work on Winchester playgrounds in the summer, and as a high school coach and trainer.

"He was a real pro as a person." "He went out of his way to be kind and to help other human beings — gifted athletes and those who weren't. He had qualities that we thought should be remembered" says Dilorio.

Provenzano's widow Emma Provenzano was consulted about the establishment of a scholarship in his name and she helped to outline the qualifications for eligibility. She feels too that the recipient should demonstrate the kinds of human qualities that her husband was known for.

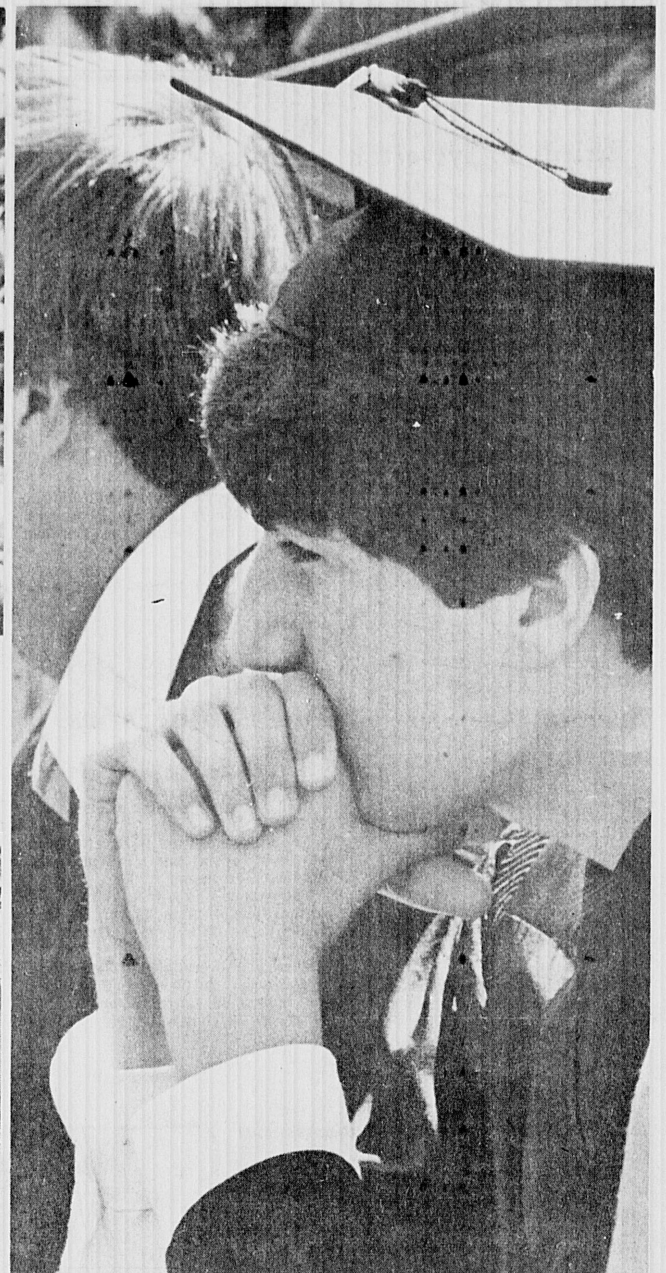

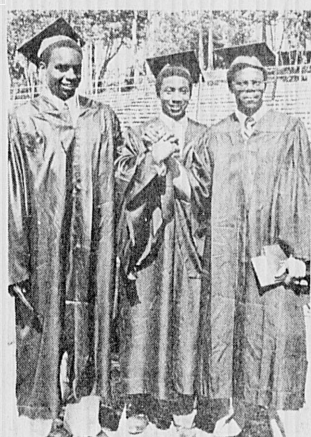

"We are honored to be able to add Frank Provenzano's name to the memorial scholarship we have established in other towns" says Dilorio. "He was special to a lot of people and ought to be remembered on an annual basis."

Mass-Save Plans To Increase Energy Audit Force

Marking completion of its 10,000th comprehensive, low-cost energy audit four months into the plan, the Mass-Save energy action program is increasing its force of trained auditors to meet the demand of over 32,000 requests. It is also beginning special follow-up programs to help consumers carry out the audit recommendations in an effort to realize the energy savings.

Mass-Save statistics indicate that implementation of the audit recommendations could yield annual savings of approximately $700 per customer. These savings would be even higher if implementation of renewable resources were to be included.

Each audit is a two-to-three hour examination of a home's energy efficiency by a certified auditor. Results are processed in the home with a portable computer terminal. The auditor then discusses with the occupant the comprehensive package of energy-conserving measures and practices documented by the audit.

While some of the audit recommendations require substantial investment, the most frequently called-for steps — such as caulking and weatherstripping — tend to be those which could be performed easily by the average do-it-yourselfer, with minimal cost and immediate savings. However, about 60 percent of the audited homes require replacement of the heating system-burner and 50 percent require insulation of attics and walls — costly measures with large savings.

Recent statistics show that 95 percent of those who have had audits are pleased with them. More importantly, nearly 90 percent of those who have had an audit plan to follow-up on some of the recommendations.

In addition to delivering audits, Mass-Save is testing its follow-up services in selected areas. There, tests include new home energy conservation loans, group buying of attic insulation, and special outreach programs for ethnic groups, minorities, and elderly.

"We are extremely gratified by this response to the program and will do everything possible to perform audits as quickly as possible," stressed Mass-Save Executive Director Jack Roll. "By late summer, we expect audits to be delivered less than 60 days after their request."

Shooting An Ad

Behind The Scenes

By MARY BEIM

Within two days, the Christopher Columbus Club, Columbus rd., staged a wedding reception, a board meeting and a bowling banquet.

"Staged," because the non-profit club, which frequently lends its facilities to charities, provided the backdrop for the shooting of a television commercial by the Advantage Group, a production company located in Wakefield.

Three scenes, lasting ten seconds each, were filmed two weeks ago in the upper hall of the club, which was chosen for its size, attached kitchen, dressing rooms and electrical facilities, according to Robert Frenier, Director of the Advantage Group. The commercial, produced for Luther Witham Catering Company of Lynn, included a scene with the president of Luther Witham, James O'Leary, playing the part of "Mr. Big," chairman of the board at the business meeting.

Other actors and actresses used in the commercial were "local talent," says Dennis Golden, 10 Robinson pk., the chief copywriter of Advantage. Frenier and Golden say that by keeping their costs low, they are able to deliver a quality product to smaller companies at a reasonable cost. The two men also write their own lyrics and jingles, sell ads and place air-time for their clients.

Golden, who is the only professional actor in the six-member Advantage Group, says he almost always makes an "Alfred Hitchcock cameo appearance" in their commercials, as a company trademark. In the Luther Witham commercial, Golden plays the perplexed father of two brides at the reception following a last-minute double wedding. In front of the cameras, Golden mugs his own voice, singing, "What do you do when the wedding's double? Extra guests mean budget trouble..."

Golden isn't the only local talent in the commercial. Golden's sister, Elaine Sacco, 60 Wedgemere ave., and his sister-in-law, Mary Golden, 10 Robinson pk., also appear in the commercial.

Sacco plays a harassed secretary whose boss requires her to provide food for an emergency board meeting. She calls her part "totally hammy... a great escape from reality." For ten seconds worth of the final product, Sacco spent four-and-a-half hours on location. "It shocks you, everything that goes into a thirty-second ad," she says.

Directions for Sacco's role as secretary included a request to remove her shoes so that her height would correspond to the camera angle. She was also required to change expression from smiling to exasperated and back to smiling within ten seconds, while lip-syncing the pre-recorded sound track.

LIGHTS, ACTION... — The "Advantage Group," an advertising production agency from Wakefield, set up shop in Winchester recently at the Christopher Columbus Hall to film a 30-second TV spot. businesswoman in the same scene. She describes her experience as "something I had never thought I would do," adding, "it puts you on the other side of the camera."

The seven children in the Golden family grew up performing musically. Sacco says she and her brother Dennis performed in local recitals and revues as children. Dennis was also in musical groups at Winchester High School. "Most of us grew up to be hammy," says Elaine Sacco, of her brothers and sisters.

The Luther Witham commercial is due to air on all major Boston television and radio stations in late June and early July. While it is impossible to tell that the Christopher Columbus Club is the setting for all three scenes, town members can be proud to know this little secret.

Police Nab Two Suspects In Highland Ave. Home

By SUSAN SCHNECK

Winchester police nabbed two men inside a Highland ave. home Monday following a tip from an alert neighbor. Arrested and charged with breaking and entering were John Walsh, 28, of 396 Beacon st., Boston and Ronald Cresta, 26, of 3600 Mystic Valley pkwy., Medford and 17 Bain rd., Dennisport.

Both men have extensive criminal records and are wanted for questioning about other incidents of breaking and entering by police in neighboring towns.

The suspects were held on $2000 bail and are due in Woburn District Court Tuesday morning.

Cresta, however, defaulted on his bail and there is a default warrant outstanding for him. Woburn Judge Francis Cullen raised the bail on Walsh to $5000 and put out an all points bulletin on Cresta.

After apprehending the suspects, police located a car at the corner of Forest st. and Highland ave. Inside the car, police found Persian rugs valued at $1800, a movie camera, jewelry and other items taken from a Main st. home between 12 and 2 p.m. Also found inside the car were burglary tools. The vehicle was registered to an Arlington resident believed to be Cresta's girlfriend. A search of the suspects revealed a quantity of jewelry and two stolen credit cards taken during a previous break-in in Cresta initially had given police a false identity but police later discovered he was using the identification of a Boston man whose apartment had been broken into last May.

Cresta's record ranged from stealing cars to armed invasion and Walsh's record consisted of extensive breaking and entering incidents.

After the stolen items had been sorted and returned, one victim noticed that a

Selectmen Join CARD Game

For years there's been talk of renewing Winchester's center, and last Monday night, the first step toward that revitalization was taken.

The Board of Selectmen voted unanimously to approve the downtown CARD plan, clearing the way for Winchester businesses to get low-interest, state-backed loans for redevelopment.

And it looks like the selectmen want to start in on developing another CARD district.

Looking into a second district was a compromise move to satisfy John Lane, of Bacon st., who pushed the selectmen to extend the CARD district to include Cross st. and the site of Lane's proposed medical building.

The selectmen, acting on Economic Development Coordinator John Connery's recommendation, were hesitant to extend the district, fearing state officials would turn down the expanded plan.

As Board Chairman Edward O'Connell put it, "I can't help but make the analogy to the goose that laid the golden egg — how far can we stretch this thing before we run the risk of losing it?"

With the selectmen's approval of the original CARD district, Connery is set to send the plan to the state for approval.

Connery said Monday he should have the application in the mail by Friday.

If the state approves the district, which covers the downtown from Skillings rd. down Main st. to the Mystic Valley pkwy., and from Converse pl. to Church st. in the other direction, businesses will be able to get low-interest loans for redevelopment.

The loans are sponsored by the Massachusetts Industrial Finance Agency (MIFA), which sells the bonds to banks in return for loans. The banks benefit because they get tax-free bonds, and the businesses benefit because the interest rates under the program can be as low as eight percent.

Connery told the selectmen there were six businesses ready to apply for

Signs Of Winchester Have Just One Problem

The Winchester Department of Public Works could have made up this headline.

It seems there are a few street signs around Winchester, which, like the headline, contain backwards "N's."

Last week, the Star ran a "Mystery Photo" showing a sign on Norwood st. with such a backwards letter. But as answers to the puzzle came in, it became obvious that more than one sign in town had a reversed "N."

The Holton st. sign by the North Atlantic Millwork Co. has a backwards letter. So do two signs along Highland ave. — on Prince ave. and Governors ave.

Fortunately for the future of the English language, some staunch defender of our letters has torn the "N" off the Governors ave. sign, and flipped it over.

There's one more blooper — a "No Trespassing" sign on Bushcliff terr. also has the mirrored "N."

Intensive investigation has shown that the whole business started when the DPW's sign crew ran out of "N's" while making up a batch of signs.

According to Paul Haggerty, who is in charge of signs for the DPW, "We tried to make our own 'N's, and it didn't come out too well — they all came out backwards."

But the DPW went ahead and used the "N's" anyway — there is serious deadline pressure to get those signs posted.

Unregulated Alarm Industry Fosters Abuse

By SUSAN SCHNECK

There is no way you can prevent a convicted felon from entering your home or business under the guise of an alarm company employee installing a system.

In fact, there are no regulations or screening processes that anyone must comply with before working in or setting up an alarm company.

"The way things are now, any Tom, Dick or Harry with a roll of wire and a staple gun can go into the alarm business," said Charles Booth, owner of the Medford-based Boston Burglar Alarm Company.

That assessment of the 400-company alarm industry in Massachusetts is not only shared by other alarm company officials but also by law enforcement and public safety officials.

"Someone convicted of breaking and entering could become an alarm installer now," agreed Winchester Crime Prevention officer Kevin Mawn. "Anyone could get into your home under the pretext of being in the alarm business."

An average of 8,000 burglaries are committed daily in the United States. Winchester police confirm that breaking and entering is one of the biggest crime problems in Winchester. They say that the incidence of breaking and entering has gone up almost 1,000 percent in the last 25 years to reach an average of four incidents a week over the last six years.

A federal task force on private security concluded that "citizens are seeking more protection than the criminal justice system can provide and are increasingly turning to alarm companies for security."

"The numbers of people who own alarm systems has gone up immensely," said Mawn. "People are living in fear now with the prices of gold and silver so high."

The rise in public demand for alarm protection coupled with the total lack of regulation of the alarm industry has created a lucrative environment for unethical, even criminal conduct.

And that is exactly what has transpired. The alarm industry has expanded at an annual rate of 10 percent. In Boston, one in every three alarm companies drops out of the yellow pages each year, according to Richard Sampson, president of the Winchester-based American Alarm Co.

The recent escalation of crimes against property has inspired the emergence of a number of disreputable alarm companies who use fear of crime to make quick sales and gain entry into homes for unethical purposes, according to a study released by the National Advisory Committee on Criminal Justice.

The study also claimed that the large numbers of consumers who are frightened but ignorant about security matters have created an unprecedented opportunity for consumer abuse, fraud and misrepresentation.

According to various alarm company owners and state law enforcement officials, several alarm industry employees have been arrested, convicted and jailed in connection with burglaries or corrupt business practices, only to resurface as employees and owners of new alarm companies.

For example, in December 1978, Peabody Police officer Charles Edward Warner arrested 19 persons for various felonies after posing as an "on-the-take" police officer for 17 months.

Officials involved in the investigation said that some of those men were arrested in connection with a series of burglaries.

One of the men indicted for burglary, Michael I. Kamens, 35, owned the Modern Alarm Co. of West Roxbury at the time of his arrest. Kamens served time in Walpole state prison for burglary. Modern Alarm dissolved in 1980 for failure to meet annual payments.

Kamens was recently released from prison and he and his parents now own another alarm company in West Roxbury called Modern Security. The street address is exactly the same as Modern Alarm.

In a recent telephone interview, the Better Business Bureau said that according to their files on Modern Security, the company meets their standards and they would recommend it as a good alarm company.

"The fact is that people have had alarm systems installed in businesses and homes and been promptly burgled through the one window or skylight that has not been protected," said Sampson.

Citing incidents similar to the Kamens story, Sampson estimates

Mystery Photo

The puzzle-solvers of Winchester should give the Mystery Photo editor a break. We were only looking for one answer to last week's mystery photo, showing a street sign with a backwards "N".

Instead, sharp-eyed readers managed to spot four different street signs with backwards "N"s.

The correct answer was Norwood st., but readers also found the "N"s flopped on Governors ave., Prince st. and Holton st.

Our photographer, Noreen Murphy is bouncing around the editorial office right now, doing cartwheels, she's so happy that she fooled people with the Mystery Photo.

She claims that since last week's photo clearly showed that it was the first two letters of the sign, only Norwood st. is the correct answer.

The girl is getting tricky, and if Norwood didn't convince you, take a look at this week's Mystery Photo. Noreen's taking bets that no one will get it.

We don't give any prizes, but the winners do have the singular honor of having their name printed in the paper.

Just think, the selectmen had to run to office, and meet every week, to get their names in. All you have to do is fill out the form, and send it to Mystery Photo, The Winchester Star, 3 Church st.

Last Week's Winners
Robert Torriere, Sargent rd.
Steven L. Llanso, Norwood st.
Gail M. Trask, Norwood st.
Joan Wallwork, Lakeview rd.
Richard Rogers, Chestnut st.
Susie Roll, Central st.
Jonathan and Alexis Kendall, Walnut st.
Vicky Ryer, Central st.

On the Mystery Photo two weeks ago, Peter Ravanis, of Lockland rd., answered correctly that the photo showed the rear of Town Hall. But we received his answer too late to run in last week's paper.

Even with Ravanis' correct answer, his second, Rogers is still our Mystery Photo Champion

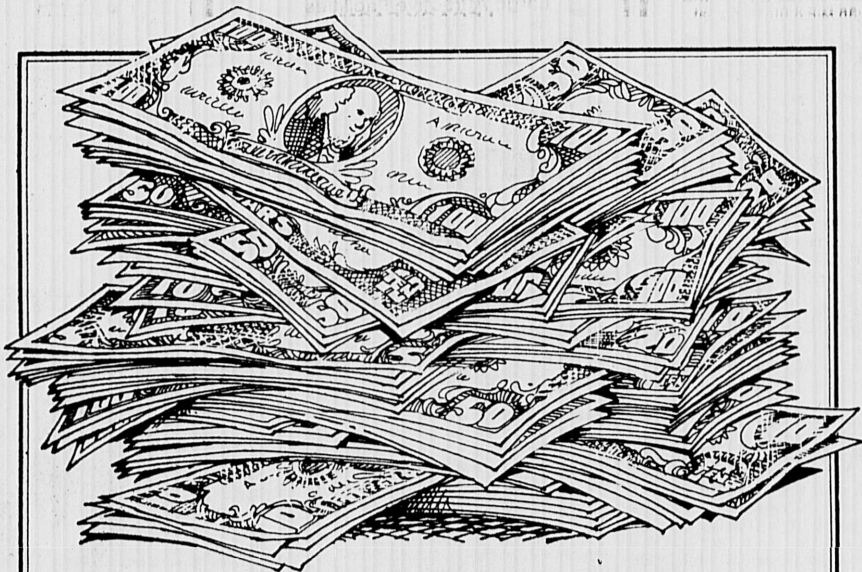

Rogers has three correct answers, Ravanis has two, and another 13 people have answered one. The other 24,987-odd people in Winchester haven't answered a single Mystery Photo correctly, but they will have another chance with this one. Good Luck!

Results Of Winchester Shoppers Survey

What Do You Want Downtown?

Shoppers coming to Winchester center want more parking, a better-looking downtown, and more places to buy food.

Those are the preliminary results of a survey done last week by Economic Development Coordinator John Connery, who wants to find out the habits and desires of Winchester's customers.

Aided by the League of Women Voters and the Winchester Jaycees, Connery polled 230 shoppers last Thursday and Saturday, asking them questions such as "What products or services are you shopping for?" and "What additional goods or services would you like to see?"

The survey is a part of a market analysis which Connery hopes will give direction to the downtown revitalization.

Connery will supplement the results of the shopper survey with a similar polling of businesses in the downtown, his own analysis to see if Winchester businesses are capturing a reasonable share of customers, and the parking survey.

"When we get all the information, and put it all together, we'll have a picture of downtown business that has a basis in reality, not in some architect's pretty rendering," Connery said.

Connery said he was expecting to find some interesting correlations between the shopper survey and the business survey.

"We'll see if there are differences between what the businesses want for the downtown and what the customers want," explained Connery.

"It may very well be that we find businesses saying 'this is what the customer wants, and then find out the customers want something else entirely.'"

Connery said he won't have the final results of the shopper survey until next week, but he did make some observations based on polling he did himself.

"I was trying to find out people's subjective feelings on what they see as the problems with the downtown," he said.

"Interestingly, design quality and parking are running neck and neck as the biggest problems downtown. A lot of people said they would like to see better lighting and more trees — and we're talking about upper Main st. there.

"As far as parking, most people said they park on-street, so we know the town lots aren't being used."

Connery said one of the most prevalent feelings among shoppers was the impression that nothing has happened in the downtown in years.

"They feel the center has been put 'on hold,'" he said.

Connery said that on Thursday, which he felt was a typical week-day for shopping, virtually all of the downtown's customers came from the within walking distance of the center.

On Saturday, shoppers did come downtown from other parts of Winchester, but businesses still didn't attract customers from outside the town.

Moreover, on both days people didn't come into town to buy large, expensive items.

"Any major purchase is made in the Burlington Mall, and we also found that Boston is attracting people, not only for the big items, but the small ticket items as well," Connery observed.

"People come to the center for convenience," he said. "They come to the downtown for their banking, for food, to go to the hardware store, and, surprisingly, we found many people come downtown for Woolworths."

Since people come to the downtown for convenience, Connery said, that's what the downtown businesses should strive to provide.

"A lot of people have said to me they would like to see Filenes in Winchester," Connery said. "That's just not going to happen — Winchester just can't draw the amount of business Filenes would need."

"People are coming for convenience, and that's the type of business we have to attract more of."

"The question is, how do we attract more of the convenience dollar?"

The shoppers Connery talked to had a few suggestions. A bookstore, a movie theatre, and more grocery stores and restaurants would bring them downtown, they said.

A number of people also told Connery they would like to see another restaurant like Randall's downtown.

"They feel it's nice to have a restaurant downtown which serves liquor," said Connery, "and they'd like to see more."

For those interested in doing something naturally different on their Caribbean holiday, Barbados offers Harrison's Cave, a limestone cavern. After a slide-show orientated at the visitor's center, a 36 passenger battery powered tram silently whisks you away. The cavern's beauty is enhanced by indirect lighting techniques. First is an expansive 150 foot long Great Hall followed by a lower level of pools and falls culminating in a crystalline blue-green lake. A walkway to the pool and under the falls, completes this most unusual tour.

Winchester Hospital Friends Hold Annual Meeting

Seventy members attended the Friends of Winchester Hospital's annual meeting recently at the Crawford Memorial Church. The business meeting and election of officers for the coming year was preceded by a petite luncheon and followed by a film on back care.

The luncheon, which was planned and served by Hospitality chairman Judy O'Connor and her committee, featured pink flowers, gleaming silver and elegant finger food. With the exception of a handsome cheese tray contributed by the hospital, all the food was donated by outgoing Executive Board members.

First on the agenda, was the presentation of a gracefully fluted pewter bowl to retiring president Marie Johnson. The gift of the past year's Executive Board, the bowl, engraved "Friends" in Old English lettering, was presented by incoming president Nancy Hunter, who expressed the group's appreciation of Marie's outstanding leadership.

Marie Johnson then presented the president's year-end report on the Friends' activities, thanked retiring board members for their service, and introduced Edna Parks, chairman of the Nominating Committee, who presented the slate of officers for 1981-82. The following were elected: president, Nancy Hunter; vice president, Averill Olson; recording secretary, Mary Skates; corresponding secretary, Muriel Dawes; treasurer, Phyllis Gleason; assistant treasurer, Marie Horan; Directors, Hilda Gaffney, Jeanne Bernard, Riva Alpert; Volunteer Services chairman, Kathleen Neuner; vice chairmen, Marjorie Kaufmann, Elaine Chipman; Health Education, Ann Merry; Hospitality, Judy O'Connor; Legislative, Dot Macdonald; Nominating, Edna Parks; Newsletter, Ann Dolan; Public Relations, Susan Malatesta; Publicity, Helen Longo; Reading, Shirley Grieve; Ways and Means, Susan Menucci.

Following the business meeting, the film, "It's Your Back," was shown. A guide to back care, the film demonstrated how to lift, how to get in and out of a car, what precautions to take before exercising strenuously, and what sleeping position is kindest to backs.

Barbara Reed, the hospital's director of Physical Therapy, followed up the film's message with more information on how to avoid back problems. With the help of a spinal column known at the hospital as Herman, she made a strong case for good posture as essential to a health back.

According to Reed, weight control, exercise, good nutrition, and avoidance of stress and fatigue are key elements in helping to keep any individual from becoming one of the 70 to 90 percent of Americans who must seek medical aid for back problems.

Winchester Trails Completes Spring Season

On Thursday, June 11, the Annual Meeting was held at the home of Winchester Trails president Louise Ahearn. At the business meeting, members presented their respective reports and then voted on a new slate of directors for next year. Nominating chairman Jean Smith announced the following Board:

President, Louise Ahearn; vice president, Maggie Howard; secretary, Evelyn Trageser; treasurer, Ruth Ann Lombard; Membership, Maggie

Howard; Scheduling, Nancy Wilde; Guide Training, Betty Vanderbilt; Publicity, Florence Hritzay; In-School Slides, Eva Annot; and Enrichment, Phyllis Stearns.

Town Welcomes Japanese Students

Families in Winchester are already preparing to welcome Japanese students into their homes from Aug. 2-22.

Last August, local families participated in the exchange program offered by InterStudy, a San Francisco based educational travel organization which offers students the chance to participate in another culture — not just observe it as a tourist.

It offers the host family the chance to meet someone from another country and to get a fresh perspective on their own style of living by comparison and contrast with their Japanese student.

During the three-week program, this August, students will attend classes in conversational English at St. Margaret's School in Burlington. They will also participate in excursions and field trips to local places of interest.

Coordinating the group locally is InterStudy representative, Janet Covino, 9 Sanborn st. Those interested in experiencing the culture of Japan and forming new friendships should contact Covino.

PROMOTED — William A. Trenchard, Jr., of 23 Johnson rd., was promoted recently to senior vice president at John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co. Previously vice president of personnel operations, Trenchard will now assume broader responsibilities as senior vice president of corporate personnel operations. Trenchard has been with John Hancock since 1940.

Toys And Games Come To Town

By CHRISTINE DEMKOWICH

Winchester has just been hit with a remarkable variety of international toys and games.

Small Wonders, Winchester's only toy shop, opened just one week ago. But already the store is crowded with children and parents, especially in the afternoon.

"We've met most of the children in Winchester," said Larry Langford, co-owner of the store. "We enjoy seeing the kids who stop here on their way home from school."

Co-owners since 1969, Larry and Emily Langford and Joyce and Bill Swasey are very flattered by the positive community response. "We chose Winchester as a location for our new store because we try to find areas with a combination of right people and an expressed need for our kind of merchandise," Langford said.

Small Wonders is one of two other stores like it located in Acton and Wellesley.

Housed in the old Brigham storefront on Main st., Small Wonders can catch any eye with its colorful and exotic window display.

Yellow, orange and red stuffed animals, like creatures of the Middle Ages, hang from fluorescent ropes and hover over the array of playthings selected to capture a child's attention. Once inside, it is difficult to decide which item to look at first. The shelves are stocked with European and American playthings ranging anywhere from books to toys sold for less than a dollar.

Items are arranged on the shelves by categories — books for all ages, Lego construction toys, collectible dolls, swings, climbing apparatus and puzzles, including the famous Ravensburger and Lausli lines, known for their graphics.

The store even has a small but complete art department.

It is not unusual to see kids racing by on toy cars or playing at the children's red table while their mothers browse intently.

Shoppers will find at least one item which is not found in ordinary toy shops. Toys are bought from all over the world. Of particular interest to many doll collectors, are the Madame Alexander, Pauline, and Zapf German dolls sold in the store. "We sold our last two Madame Alexander dolls last week," Langford said, adding he was very flattered by the high number of daily sales.

"The response is absolutely over-

'Neighbors, merchants and customers are so friendly it makes us want to be here.'

whelming," he added. "Neighbors, merchants, and customers are so friendly that it makes us want to be here."

In the book section, one can find books ranging anywhere from the classic Curious George stories to old-time favorites such as Snow White and Little Red Riding Hood. In this spot, Langford plans to create a reading area with chairs and bright overhead lights.

"Our overriding policy is that toys and books are meant to be used and played with," he said.

"By allowing kids to play in the store, we can see what they like and what we need to order," Langford added. "Besides, it creates a warm and friendly climate."

Among the fascinating items in the store are the Swedish wooden trains. "Although we used to carry Briotains," Langford said, "we've switched our order to Micki, another line of trains." Micki trains offer a slightly greater variety of trains at a more reasonable price.

The idea for the store came about in 1968 when Joyce Swasey was intent on opening a dazzling little toy shop which would provide high quality international toys that are educationally beneficial as well as fun to play with.

"She had always been interested in children and toys and, at the time, felt there was a need for the kind of toys the store now sells," Langford said.

"We try to find the best of whatever it is from wherever we have to go to get it," he added.

One Winchester parent seemed intrigued by the store's line of wooden trains. "This store is obviously going to be wonderful with these wooden trains," said Jacqueline Erwin of Fletcher st.

"I think it's fantastic," she said. "They have very high quality toys of excellent play value. It's nice to have a toy store in town that we don't have to drive to."

While he was busy helping customers and filling out order forms, Langford commented that it was not financially difficult to open toy stores in the time of economic hardship.

"There are certain areas of the economy that seem to be less adversely affected," he said. "People still seem to be interested in buying toys for their children."

"For several years we had a store in Cambridge, but due to demographics we closed," he said. "I find that we have a greater opportunity here."

Erwin commented, "With three small children, one buys lots of things and this is the perfect place to do it."

CHAIRMAN — James E. Barger, Jr., of 3 Lakeview rd., is the technical program chairman of OCEANS '81, an international ocean technology conference and exhibition to be held in Boston this fall. Barger is affiliated with Bolt Beranek and Newman Inc. of Cambridge.

Rose Lerner, director of medical records at Winchester Hospital, was named 1981 president-elect of the Massachusetts Medical Records Assn. at the organization's state conference held June 4 and 5 in Danvers. Lerner will assume the presidency of the 600 member MMRA in June 1982.

Winchester Man's Paintings Displayed

A collection of paintings by Capt. Leonard Branneman, a resident of Winchester during the 1950s and '60s, is on display through July at the Lynde Tracy Gallery, 43 Charles st., Boston.

Capt. Branneman came to Winchester in 1950, when he was still a member of the Navy. After retiring from the service in 1956, he attended Tufts University and in 1965 received his master's degree in education.

Branneman taught mathematics at Beaver County Day School and worked in an administrative position at Boston's Garland Junior College.

It was during these years that Branneman, who had lived at 9 Sheffield rd. for nearly two decades, moved to Stoneham, where he now resides with his wife.

In 1972, Branneman resigned from the college to devote his time to his hobby, oil painting, in which he had never had any formal training.

"I really don't know anything about painting. But I just do it anyway," he said.

And, in only ten years, he has done it well enough to have over ten exhibitions of his work in Massachusetts.

His paintings are done in a primitive style and depict rural scenes, often portraying fox hunts and farmlands. All of his subject material originates in his imagination, although he admits memories of his boyhood in central Indiana have provided some inspiration.

Winchester Hospital Offers Program

Roughly 80 percent of all people have a back problem during their lives. Back trouble is second only to the common cold in lost days of work and in cost. Aware of this, Winchester Hospital has begun a program called "Back School," a program developed by Southeastern Clinics Inc. of Atlanta, Georgia.

Taught by Barbara Reed, director of the physical therapy department, the program is now mandatory for all Winchester Hospital employees. Every employee must attend three hours of class at "Back School."

Designed to prevent back injuries before they happen, the course covers instruction on the anatomy of the back, and the mechanics of how the back works. How nutrition and stress affect the back are addressed, and employees are taught how to lift correctly, stand and sit properly.

Warm-up exercises to strengthen and limber up the back are given as are exercises to relieve pain.

WSA's New President Is Man Of Action

By CHRISTINE DEMKOWYCH

Incoming Winchester Seniors Assn. president Norman Reed's past record of secret missions, work in metallurgy, and research in defense related metals will certainly assure that the future of the WSA will be anything but dull.

He energetically pursues any challenge confronting him and always finishes with success.

Looking forward to his new post, Reed said, "It's challenging work. It keeps you active and keeps your mind moving along."

He is currently involved with raising funds for the three-year-old Jenks Senior Center. The Executive Board is planning a Fall Fiesta Fair which should raise enough money to "keep pace with our needs," Reed said.

"We have to raise between $30-$40,000 to function smoothly," he said.

At 76, Norman Reed, born in Reading, is a man possessed with enough energy and gusto that could make his already exciting career sound like ancient history. At one point, he was involved with highly secretive missions associated with the Pentagon in Washington.

Reed has been retired for 12 years.

He volunteers 40 hours of his time to the WSA and actively pursues many outside interests with his wife Betty.

Both Reed and his wife are devout travelers. They have been to Europe four times and travel through the states on trips sponsored by the WSA. They also bowl, play bridge, and are avid square-dance enthusiasts, pursuing this activity at least two nights a week.

Reed, who works with a nine-member volunteer executive board, wouldn't mind giving more of himself than he has to. His new position is extremely time-consuming even though other members of the board do their share.

"I think it's really nice to see people take on responsibility quickly and start to do a good job," he said, "things are rolling along happily and steadily."

Fresh from college at the age of 20 and with a B.Ch.E. degree from Tufts University, Reed was first hired in his desired field by a company whose work took him to Mexico for four years. He supervised a plant producing gold, silver, lead and copper.

Since then he has held three challenging positions all associated with metals relating to defense.

After resigning his post in Mexico, Reed worked at the Watertown Arsenal for 42 years. Motivated and hard-working, he advanced from a young metallurgist to Deputy Director of the Research Center for Advanced Materials.

His work in Watertown was not related to his duties in Mexico. Instead he spent much time researching alloy steels which in the end produced high strength and high toughness steels.

Alloy steels are made from a combination of materials. To it are added plain steel and the metals chromium, vanadium and molybdenum. This type of high strength steel is most useful for cannons, guns and armor, Reed said.

"In the 40 year period that I worked there, tremendous improvements in the reliability of steels were made," he said.

At this point, Reed was needed by the government. He served as a U.S. delegate to NATO on matters pertaining to highly secretive missions and was on the Committee on Steel for Weapons.

"attending conferences with secret papers strapped to my body," he said.

For 15 years until he retired, Reed served on the Committee for the National Academy of Sciences. He supervised university research throughout the U.S. and in other nations.

"If we felt there was confidence in a university and its research, we would support it," he said. "Many times, universities supported us with their research."

Reed and his wife have two children: Bruce, who lives in New Jersey, and Norma, who lives in Ohio. There are five grandchildren, all in college or graduate school or following a chosen career. His son is the vice president of a metals company in Long Island.

"Often times, my son calls me and asks me if I remember such and such a metal or what have you," Reed said.

Silver-Haired Legislative Program Begins June 23

Secretary of Elder Affairs Dr. Thomas H.D. Mahoney announced the start of the 1981 Silver-Haired Legislature program in Massachusetts June 3.

"Our first Silver-Haired Legislature in November, 1980, was enormously successful," said the secretary. "The 160 elder representatives and 40 senior senators not only passed bills establishing their own priorities for the real General Court, but most of them have returned to their home communities and have become vocal, active advocates."

Sept. 15 has been set for the special election to be held in special polling sites throughout the state. Last year over 400 sites were open and over 54,000 ballots were cast, the largest ever in the nation for a first time effort.

Nomination papers are available through Councils on Aging, Home Care agencies, or by contacting the Department of Elder Affairs. Toll-free number is 800-882-2003.

Lawn Mower Safety

Now that lawn mowing season has arrived consider this, use common sense and realize that no machine is safer than the operator who uses it. With this in mind, accidents with power mowers should be avoided.

First of all, read the instruction manual and follow the directions carefully. Always keep your mower in good condition. Cleanliness is important; wipe off any excess oil left on the engine. Clear your lawn of stones, wire and other debris before mowing, as these can be ejected through the mower chutes and could be dangerous. Keep children and pets away from the vicinity of the mower while using. Always remember, don't attempt to adjust belts or unclog chutes or blades while the motor is running, or spark plugs connected.

For gasoline powered mowers, there are further warnings. Learn to use the controls, especially how to stop the mower in case of an emergency. Store gasoline in an approved metal container, not in a glass jar or other unlabeled containers. Allow space when filling the gas tank and don't refill the tank when the engine is hot. When starting the mower, stand firmly and make sure your feet and hands are in safe position. Make sure you keep loose clothes away from the mower, wear sturdy shoes and heavy close fitting pants.

For electric powers, never operate when the ground is wet and be careful not to cut the cord. If the mowing pattern is followed properly there is little danger of cutting the cord. Mow the lawn back and forth working away from the power source. Always turn off the mower and disconnect the cord when you leave it.

Accidents and injuries due to mowers are rare when the operating instructions are followed combined with common sense. Have a safe mowing season and use your mower with care!

Just Like The Guy In The Lifesavers Ad

This Sunday is Father's Day, and I would like to say a few words to the men who helped me get this far without screwing up too much.

To my father — You always told me that doing my best, and not necessarily being the best, was the most important thing in life. And you always believed I was trying.

That support gave me that the confidence to try all sorts of things, including journalism, which isn't anybody's idea of a secure or profitable future.

And even though you had some reservations about the newspaper business, you stood behind me with money for school, and a word of encouragement when I got sick of the whole thing.

I guess every son thinks his father is perfect, and every father thinks he has to try to be perfect.

It took us both a long time to learn it didn't have to be like that. But we did, and now you're much more of a friend, and much less a parent.

To my Grandfather Leeco — You taught me that fine craftsmanship was a thing of beauty. And you are one of the finest craftsmen I've ever known.

In your day, you were a carpenter, a roofer, a jack-of-all-trades. You must have been good — even when I got to know you, you still knew all the tricks.

I remember building a fort as a kid, and trying to figure out how to put in a set of steps. You walked up, and showed us that with two cuts of the saw, the steps would come out perfect.

You knew your craft, and as I try to learn mine, I think of you.

To my Grandfather Wulff — You were always the grandparent I could have fun with — going to movies, or the beach, heading out deep-sea fishing at 6 a.m., or playing cribbage long into the evening.

You even carried a roll of Lifesavers all the time, like the guy on the commercial.

I still know, and appreciate, that anytime I need to just get away and unwind, your home is open.

We don't agree on politics, or morality, or Richard Nixon, but I do respect you for standing by your views, through all those Democrats. You stand by all of us in the same way.

To the three of you, and all the other uncles, great-uncles, great-grandfathers, teachers or just any other man who gave me a fatherly word every once in a while — thanks a lot.

I never could have made it without you.

Town Manager Should Look To Residents To Fill Local Government Positions

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

At a recent session of the Annual Town Meeting I made a motion to amend the DPW Personnel Budget, by reducing the amount of $31,700, to eliminate the position of Director of Public Works. The real purpose of the amendment was to let the Town Meeting members know what has been going on in this department.

The department has been operating for seven months, plus, without a director. One may ask how come? The key positions in the DPW are held by the following: Water and Sewer, Babe Olivadoti; Highway, Ed Murphy; Buildings, Frenchy Barrow; Garage, John Peterson; Parks and Playgrounds, Dick Tofuri; Cemetery, Harold Moran.

The first named has over twenty years experience in this department and solves all of the problems (and there have been many) of the Water and Sewer Department. Mr. Warrington has a degree and supposedly heads this department, however he is lost in the field.

The three finalists put up by the screening committee were one from N.H., one from Illinois and one from Winchester. The two applicants from out of state withdrew their names because it was too expensive to live in Winchester. That left only John Murphy, a native of this town who had worked in the Engineering Dept. and the DPW for some ten years, and is currently employed by the Perini Corp. these past two years. He felt it necessary to leave the town employment because as promotions came along they were passed out to any one from out of town by the Town Manager. John is close to earning his degree in this field. Granted, by hiring Murphy the Manager would not have him around his little finger.

In the course of my comments on my amendment I asked the Town Manager... How much money have you spent on advertising for the Director's position? Mr. Groux' answer was "about $500." The following is an official record of the expenses of advertising for that position.

|-----------------------------|-------------------|
| 12-17-80, Daily Times, | $89.60. |
| 10-23-80, Boston Globe, | $229.60. |
| 12-24-80, Boston Globe, | $262.00. |
| 1-11-81, Boston Globe, | $168.10. |
| 12-17-80, Mass. Mun. Assn., | $15. |
| 1-23-81, Mass. Mun. Assn., | $15. |
| 2-24-81, American City, | $120. |
| 2-81, Eng. Soc. N.E., | $60. |
| 2-25-81, P.W. Magazine, | $220. |
| Total | $1,179.30 |

This is an example of how the Town Manager operates. He looks all around the world, at great expense to Winchester's taxpayers, searching for talent he can hire to avoid hiring local, qualified people... but why? The only reason Dom Serratore, the Building Commissioner, got the job was that the two out-of-state applicants, favored by the Manager, withdrew their names... and the Manager had closed the door on John Murphy.

It is sad that the selectmen give the Town Manager such a free hand.

Perhaps it is time for citizens of this town to focus on problems that now exist and hopefully remove some of the Town

Manager's power by an article at the next session of Town Meeting. Tom Groux has too much power and seeks to protect it by hiring out-of-town people who don't know what is going on in our town. By the way, are you aware that as of July 1 the Town Manager's salary will be $40,635, annually... not too hard to take!

Please Help Our Local Refugees

TO THE EDITOR:

In the past, you have shown an interest and support for the Vietnamese refugee community in Arlington. Our organization, FOR Friends of Refugees, now assists in a variety of ways six Arlington households numbering 22 persons.

Also, several of us have made many trips to the Dorchester area where refugees without sponsors are being housed in substandard buildings and unsafe neighborhoods.

We met Vu Cong, his wife of 19, and two beautiful young children, aged eleven months and two years. He has been mugged and robbed twice in six months. He was desperate in his desire to re-locate.

Then we climbed dirty staircases to a third floor apartment where several families share a one bedroom apartment. No furniture except foam mattresses, a table and a few chairs. In another apartment we found four little boys, aged eleven months to six years, taking care of each other. Their parents had gone shopping to buy refreshments for us.

Last Friday, we brought layettes to three new Vietnamese mothers. (There are four pregnant ladies waiting in the wings) Their mute gratitude (language can be a barrier) and proffered cups of tea made us ashamed of our meager gifts and our personal comforts.

We would like to help to re-locate these families in safer areas. We want to provide services which will ease their insertion into the American way of life.

Thank you for your help in the past. Can we count on you again? Please send your check to Friends of Refugees, St. Eulalia's Church, Winchester. We are now a corporation with non-profit status.

Sincerely,
Sister Winifred Behlen

A Plea To Give Money To Elderly

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Where is the good common sense in our great country?

I just heard on TV that ex-President Carter has just asked for permission, because he is an ex-military man, to buy his groceries at a nearby commissary, because things such as groceries are cheaper there.

Doesn't he get a salary for the rest of his life and all kinds of goodies, such as Secret Service men, etc.?

Now, our elderly cannot pay their bills such as fuel if they are trying to hold onto their homes. They are not eating properly either, and if they have to buy medications, they are in trouble.

Did you ever see old people who need teeth, glasses, hearing aids and also foot care? I, have and do, see them each day. They cannot pay, so do not go to the doctor or any other doctor such as eye doctors, etc. Medicare pays, but you pay first and wait for months for Medicare to pay you and some people do not have money to pay and wait.

I think a country as rich as ours could at least see that our elderly folks have what they need.

If we get a cost of living increase in July, all of it goes for necessities, such as groceries, rent, telephones and our great inflation.

P.S. You see a nice looking person with one tooth left in upper and one in lower. Really isn't a nice sight.

Thank you,
Louise Chase

Soccer Club Thanks Knights Of Columbus

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The registration for the Winchester Soccer Club Fall program was held on May 21 and May 28. We would like to thank the Knights of Columbus for, once again, letting us use part of their premises for this purpose. Approximately 1022 girls and boys have signed up to date.

While the program is open to all Winchester residents, grades 1-10, the Club wishes, in particular, to inform all incoming Freshmen that provision has been made to include them in this Fall's program. This has been done to offset the lack of a regular Freshman soccer program at the Winchester High School this fall.

Registration forms are available at both the Public Library and the Recreation Dept. As is indicated on the form the last date for receiving registrations is June 30. Persons registering after this date may be placed on a team on a space available basis and at the discretion of the commissioners.

Guest Column New York In Spring Alive And Friendly

By TERRY MAROTTA

Images of New York City on a late spring weekend. We are there for the wedding of a friend. The weather is warm and the city is alive. It feels open and friendly and full of possibility. It's a galaxy away from Massachusetts and anything can happen. Events seem magnified, infused with significance.

Listen:

The wedding is all that a wedding should be. The old Jesuit church is immense — marbled and gilded and frescoed — inlaid with mosaic to the height of its vaulted ceiling where swallows can be imagined to soar.

The couple is handsome. The ringbearer wears white shorts and a purple cummerbund. In his six-year-old seriousness and faced with so much satin, he keeps stepping on the bride's train and inadvertently pulls off her veil during the recession. The bride's father, a CBS news correspondent whose face is more familiar to many of us than our own neighbors', dances dreamily at the reception with his two-year-old granddaughter.

And events surrounding the wedding seem similarly enchanted.

An aging gnome of a man steps into the elevator of a hotel. He pushes the button for the 18th floor and turns to us. "Eighteen is a lucky number for the Jewish people," he confides in a whisper.

But before he has a chance to say why, the doors open and a whole crowd of people rush aboard. "Tell you next time," he adds with a reassuring wink, as if we'd all be riding these elevators indefinitely, as if we were the only inhabitants in the city, a city dreamed up and set in motion specifically for our enjoyment and wonder.

There's a paradoxically small-town feeling in New York. We eat at this place by Carnegie Hall, a saloony joint like the one Archie Bunker runs on TV. We spend a couple of hours there at noontime. The booths are deep and private, ceiling fans turn lazily, and the beer is cold.

The waitress makes us feel we're no less "regulars" than the guys watching the Mets over by the bar. And I guess we are regulars too: when we return there at midnight for a sandwich, she's still on duty and we hail one another like old friends.

... The place is always moving and yet there's no particular hurry. People dawdle 30 floors beneath our window at 3 p.m. and they're dawdling still 12 hours later. A bearded man sits on a fire escape jammed with geraniums and takes it all in. He's sunbathing and watching... just watching the river that flows on below him.

... A horse by the Plaza rests his head companionably on the back of our taxi, as if it were the rump of his dearest old friend in a faraway pasture.

... Two women wait at the DON'T WALK sign to cross the street. One is elderly; she wears not just a hat, but a hat with a veil. Her hands are gloved for an afternoon on the city. The woman beside her is some 50 years younger. Her hair is bright purple and stands up in a crewcut like the comb of a whooping crane. It has a vascinated iridescence, like oil in a puddle. Neither lady stops to wonder at the other. Everything is surprising in New York and so in the end for the people who live there, nothing is...

Getting into a taxi for the sixth time in one day, I lose my bearings. I lean over the seat to address the cabbie. "Where are we?" I wonder, meaning are we uptown or downtown, give me the names, what do you call this section, this neighborhood. "New York," he answered me. "You're in New York." That's all you really need to know.

School Athletics Needs Funds

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

About a month ago, we wrote to you concerning the plight of athletics as a result of Proposition 2.5. We expressed and shared a concern that some 180 students would be unable to participate in athletics due to rental costs of facilities unless we were able to raise $13,000 to cover these costs.

Our intent at this time is to advise you that as June 11, 1981 we have received contributions of $1230 from one organization and 29 individuals toward our goal of $13,000. If monies are not received through your personal generosity we will have to seriously consider the following options:

- 1.) Solicit parental support for money raising activities.
- 2.) Charge all athletes a users fee and or
- 3.) Eliminate those sports requiring rentals.

Obviously, the third alternative is the most objectionable. The second alternative, as explained earlier, is also objectionable due to the legal ramifications of legal access to school programs.

If we eliminate alternatives two and three above, the most viable alternatives are the individual requests for funds as we have already done or attempts to raise the money through various money raising activities.

If you have thought of contributing to the athletic fund and have not already

Mrs. 'P' Says Thanks

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the youth of Winchester for the moral support they have given me this year.

To the boys and girls that visited the cemetery every Saturday morning during the football season; to the members of the School Band who dedicated the programs to Mr. "P"; to the boys on the football team that came to my home on Christmas Eve and sang carols; to the members of the Senior Class that remembered Mr. "P" with a memorial mass; I wish them all the greatest success in whatever they plan for the future.

We do have many wonderful young people in our town.

Again, thanks to all,
Mrs. "P" and family

Refine Prop. 2.5

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

With the passage of Proposition 2½ came the message that this state's lopsided reliance on the property tax has to end. Strong emphasis has been placed on the desire for substantial property tax reductions and the funding of state mandated programs.

The terms of this mandate leave room for legislative initiative to correct drafting problems in Proposition 2½. Furthermore, the opportunity exists to enact a law which includes principles such as these contained in H. 6705:

- a ceiling on the total burden imposed by state and local taxes combined;
- a reduced role for the property tax in the mix of state and local levies permitted under this ceiling;
- improved financial practices at the local level, including supervision of municipalities facing a fiscal crisis; and,
- the assurance that future costs for mandated programs will not be funded through the Local Aid Fund.

We must strive to refine Proposition 2½ so that the overwhelming vote and message from the citizens of Massachusetts is acknowledged and the Legislature and the Governor must now work with speed to realize some of the voters objectives.

I believe that support of the provisions contained in H. 6705 is an important second step in reaching this goal.

The first step, of course, is to increase local aid at least by $250 million this year.

Sincerely yours,
Gerald M. Cohen

Cloister Garden Concert Tonight

The gates of the Parish of the Epiphany's garden will be open tonight to welcome music lovers to this summer's second Cloister Garden Concert.

Tonight, at 8:30, "An Evening of Song" will be presented, featuring selections ranging from early English art songs, through compositions of the great masters, to modern American show tunes.

On June 25 at 8:30 p.m., the series will continue with the return of jazz harpsichordist Don Angle and his new program of favorites.

Concert-goers who have heard Angle in the past already know how well the harpsichord adapts to the intricacies of jazz. Audiences new to the fun will discover how Angle makes the harpsichord a far more red-blooded and versatile instrument than they imagined it could be.

Angle has taken his harpsichord to Europe, where the reviewer for the "Neue Zurich Zeitung" called him "original in the highest measure, not only technically perfect, but a fascinating virtuoso."

Herbert Kupferberg, reviewing the record, "New Angle on Harpsichord," says, "The record is enchanting, for Angle is a nimble player whose arrangements have plenty of life and zest."

For his concert in the Cloister Garden series, Angle will play familiar favorites including "Muskat Ramble," "I've Got Rhythm," Joplin's "The Entertainer," and "Something" and "Lady Madonna" by Lennon and McCartney.

Less familiar pieces, such as "Fidgety Feet" and "Carolina Shout," are sure to be amusing, given this musician's wit and whimsical style.

The Zurich reviewer singled out his variations on "Oh Susannah" for special praise, and Richard Edwards, writing in "Kite," the entertainment guide, referred to his witty improvisations on "Take Me Out to the Ballgame" as "part early Shostakovich, part honky-tonk, and all delightful."

Don Angle has performed concert engagements in the eastern United States and in Paris, has done a live broadcast for WGBH Radio, and has appeared at the Newport Music Festival.

More information about the concert may be obtained by calling the office of the Parish of the Epiphany, 729-1922. Tickets will be available at the gate.

The Cloister Garden Series will continue on July 9

CARD loans to fund projects. One of those, he said, was Purity Supreme, which wants to use the loans to refurbish the old Finast store.

Those six companies might not have to wait too long. Connery told the selectmen that he felt the CARD plan has a good chance of winning the state's approval, and winning it quickly.

"This is a very legitimate proposal in terms of a CARD district," Connery said. "It meets the state requirements, it is the traditional commercial center of Winchester, and it's a depressed district in terms of vacancy rates."

Connery said he had asked the state to process the application as quickly as possible, adding, "I think they will be sympathetic to that request, because we have worked hand-in-glove with them on this since the beginning."

State Representative Sherman Saltmarsh, who was attending the hearing, said he would personally see to it that the application was processed quickly, and estimated it could be decided on in as little as two to three weeks.

The selectmen went into the meeting hoping for these kinds of positive statements — O'Connell began the hearing by saying, "I would like to see Winchester quickly get off the side track and get in line for CARD."

The only dissenting voice was that of Lane.

"In North Winchester, there is nearly 40 acres of prime industrial land, all waiting to be developed," said Lane.

"I think it would be good for the town to have projects going in two areas at once. Then if one project is not ready to go and get the funds, one on the other side of town can step in."

large diamond ring was still missing. Officer Wright recalled Cresta wriggling around in the car en route to the police station and a search turned up the diamond wedged inside the back seat.

The officers involved in the arrest were James Gallant, John Oliver, William Wright and James Pierce and Lt. John Frongillo, head of the uniformed branch of the department.

Lt. Detective Joseph Perritano praised their courage and quick thinking. "They did a hell of a job and deserve credit," he said.

Police also credited the Highland st. neighbor for her quick thinking in calling police. "We definitely appreciate citizens like that," said Perritano. "Community participation is one of the better ways of getting them."

But Connery warned that if the selectmen tried to add North Winchester onto the downtown CARD district, the whole thing would be turned down.

"Every time I've gone to get the CARD plan extended, they've told me that 'It's O.K., but you're at your limit,'" Connery said.

"In my professional opinion, it would be a very, very serious mistake to add anything onto this plan. I know we couldn't get the CARD plan if we extend it up Main st. or to non-contiguous areas."

Connery was backed up by Saltmarsh and Planning Board Chairwoman Marion Crandall, who said that, in North Winchester, "we're talking about some large lots of vacant land, and there are going to be questions on it."

"I think we should treat this as an entirely separate area," she said.

And that's what the selectmen said they would do. So they voted the downtown CARD district as it stood, and will look into creating another CARD district in North Winchester.

O'Connell instructed Connery to "start some leg work and get started on another CARD district", as soon as the first CARD plan is filed.

And when he cast his vote for the CARD plan, O'Connell said he did so, "based on my support and my belief that we will work for another CARD district."

★Backwards

Of course, there is always a bright side to any story. There may be some advantages to the signs.

Drunken drivers, trying to find their way along Winchester's streets, will surely decide they've had too much, and stop their cars, when they drive by Norwood st.

The signs will undoubtedly become collectors items in a few years, like dollar bills with the great seal missing, or stamps with the wrong color ink.

The town could sell these valuable mistakes, and use the money to off-set the tax rate. The Finance Committee is reportedly looking into the idea already. Another advantage comes from the old advertising adage that if you put a letter backwards on an advertising poster, people will notice it.

So the residents of Prince ave. will have successful parties from now on, because their guests will find their street in time for cocktails.

And finally, there is one very important, very pressing advantage to the signs. Writing about them has managed to fill up six inches of the front page on a slow news week.

★Alarm

that one in every ten alarm companies is corrupt.

"You hear about enough of these instances that it seems quite reasonable to assume that one in ten is operating with more in mind than legitimate practices or profit," he asserted.

This assessment was shared by eight area alarm company owners interviewed by the Star recently. The Massachusetts Security Contractors Association (MSCA), representing 110 alarm companies, has taken the position that corruption in the industry is a major problem.

"There are many fly-by-night companies in the business that spoil it for all the respectable people," said

Robert Eskel, President of Alarm Devices Supply Inc. of Woburn.

According to Jack Kent, president of the Winchester-based MSCA, the association is trying to clear the industry of the bad reputation some companies have given it.

"It's not uncommon in the industry to hear about people who have alarm systems installed and are robbed one week later," said Kent. "The implication is that the installer was a party to the robbery."

"The association and its members worry about these instances and the subsequent bad public relations which the industry as a whole must overcome," he continued.

Sampson said mistrust of alarm companies is one of the biggest obstacles American Alarm must overcome when first meeting with potential customers here.

"When people are afraid of the industry, it makes our job more difficult," he said. "I have to spend two hours with a customer just building up his trust."

"These guys that install alarms are going to have to tow the mark," emphasized Jim McMahan, Public Safety Administrative Assistant to the Commissioner.

"People have a right to know that their alarm company owner didn't just get out of the slammer," he continued.

"One should not fear that those who deliver these services could potentially rip them off," McMahan reiterated.

The Department of Public Safety (DPS) has received numerous complaints from people regarding alarm companies.

To combat this problem, the DPS has filed a bill with the legislature requiring all persons engaged in the business of installing, repairing or offering maintenance for burglar alarm systems to be licensed with the state.

This bill, now in the legislative Public Safety Committee, would place the same legal restrictions on alarm installers that are required of private detective and watch, guard and patrol agencies.

State To Crack Down On Alarm Industry

By SUSAN SCHNECK

Despite the national trend against government regulation, the legislative bill to license the alarm industry has the firm backing of law enforcement officials and private alarm companies.

The Massachusetts Security Contractors Assn., located on Mt. Vernon st., the Mass. Crime Prevention Assn., the Patrolmen's Assn., and alarm company owners have been actively lobbying for the bill which is aimed at cracking down on the generally acknowledged corruption existing in the alarm business.

"Licensing is needed when public security is involved," asserted Public Safety Administrative Asst. to the Commissioner Jim McMahan. "There aren't any rules now. The good companies are self-policed and it has been largely due to their interest that we've had the motivation to continue to fight for this bill."

Richard Sampson, president of American Alarm in Winchester, said that these corrupt companies hurt the general public as well as the reputation of the alarm industry even if they do eventually fold.

"Companies like that fall by the wayside but take a few customers down the drain with them," he said. "Like every business there are good guys and bad guys but with security it would be nice for homeowners to know that the people who come into their houses can be trusted."

"If you can't trust us, who can you trust?" he added.

Local alarm companies agree with Sampson's assessment of the need for licensing.

"I'm certainly in favor of the bill," said Booth. "I think the consumer needs some way of reassuring himself that the company with whom they're dealing has passed some sort of inspection by a state agency that says they're honest people. At least when a customer calls, they can deal with someone who has been checked."

Woburn-based National Alarm Systems owner Lawrence Levine said he believed customers would receive better service if companies were licensed.

McMahan insists that although the trend now is to get away from government regulation, this licensing would benefit consumers and would not cost the public any extra money.

"Companies that are licensed have to come up with the money," he said. "Why should the public have to pay? The fee is substantive and it should be."

There are approximately 400 firms engaged in this industry which will result in a first year license fee revenue of approximately $300,000 (400 x $750) and $160,000 (400 x $400) in each succeeding year.

Although McMahan explains that the purpose of the bill is not to bring more money into the Commonwealth, he is quick to point out that extra revenue is an added attraction to the bill.

But not everybody wholeheartedly supports the bill. Electricians, cable television and New England Phone Company all support the licensing of alarm companies but would like the bill amended.

Both the cable and phone companies feel they should be excluded from the licensing requirement.

Cable TV and New England Telephone plan to be installing alarms in the future.

Paul Cianelli, Executive Director and General Counsel of New England Cable confirmed that when his firm signs a contract with a community, the contract authorizes burglar, fire and medical alert hook-ups.

But Cianelli also explained that until it is economically feasible, the firm will not be installing alarm systems.

In Winchester, the agreement between Continental Cable and the town does authorize Continental to provide alarm service.

"But we're not rushing into it until we're satisfied that Cable can deliver the service as well as established companies," said Robert Saxe, Continental's Director of Corporate Development.

They will also be conferring with selectmen before going into the alarm business.

New England Cable's position is that they are subject to enough regulation already.

"We're not against the bill per se but we're against the inclusion of cable in the broad umbrella which would require us to be subject to yet another regulatory agency," said Cianelli.

"I can see licensing of these burglar alarm companies that are here today and gone tomorrow, but you're talking about cable which will always be there and be responsible for the acts of our employees," Cianelli said.

"Licensing is expensive and needless," he emphasized.

New England Telephone is trying to amend the bill for the same reasons. Jim Dillon, speaking for the telephone company said they do not want licensing of public utilities, even though alarm companies sometimes use their facilities.

But McMahan remains firm on keeping the scope of the licensing requirement.

"If they're doing the same work as alarm companies they should be licensed like alarm companies," he maintained.

The strongest opposition to the bill has come from electricians. Chairman of the State Board of Fire Prevention and Regulation Sam Gronich said that this bill provides an opportunity to solve two problems at once — faulty alarm set-ups and misconduct in the alarm industry.

"I feel alarm companies should also be licensed the same way electricians are to install systems," Gronich said. "We find many times it is done improperly."

But Gronich also stressed the necessity of licensing alarm companies. "You want to make sure they (alarm company employees) weren't just pulled off the streets," he said. "Plenty of places are robbed after the alarm is installed."

The bill is now in the legislative Public Safety Committee while negotiations are going on between the groups for and against it.

Despite the status of the bill, McMahan is dead set on putting an end to corrupt alarm companies and said that since this bill's inception last March mere recognition has helped cut down on the problem.

"People know we're after them," he warned. "They know it's 11:00 as far as fly-by-night alarm companies are concerned."

Sachems Are The Champs

Team Tops, Lexington For State Title...

By CAROLYN KITCH

For Winchester High School's boys' tennis team, a win over Lexington wasn't a new experience. But last Friday afternoon, the victory was just a little sweeter.

The year-long rivalry between the two teams climaxed Friday, with the undefeated Sachems (18-0) coming out on top of the Minutemen (14-4) for the fourth time this season to capture the Class A boys' state championship, 3-2.

Winchester breezed to an early victory in under an hour and a half, taking three quick matches to wrap up the final. But the win lost a little of its thrill when the remaining two matches were won, after long struggles, by Lexington.

Chris Julian garnered an easy 6-2, 6-1 triumph in third singles over Lexington's Dan Brennan for the first Winchester win of the afternoon, making Julian 4-0 against Brennan for the season.

But Winchester's big win of the day was their second step toward a state title, Glenn Clotti's 6-1, 6-2 upset in straight sets over Shep Davidson, who had been undefeated as the second singles player for the Minutemen.

Earlier in the year, Winchester's Steve Capel had defeated Davidson when the latter was playing first singles.

Davidson had played Clotti twice before, beating him both times.

But Friday, the tables were turned. Winning match point, Clotti leapt into the air, elated, and was greeted with cheers and handshakes.

Leaving the court, he jogged into the crowd, shouting, "I gotta see what my Dad has to say!"

"It feels great," he said a few minutes later, smiling and still breathing heavily.

He explained the change in his strategy with Davidson.

"I was less tentative, and I hit out a lot more. Once you get confident, everything goes great!"

Sachems' coach Chris Scanlon called Clotti's win "certainly the most outstanding match of his career in tennis."

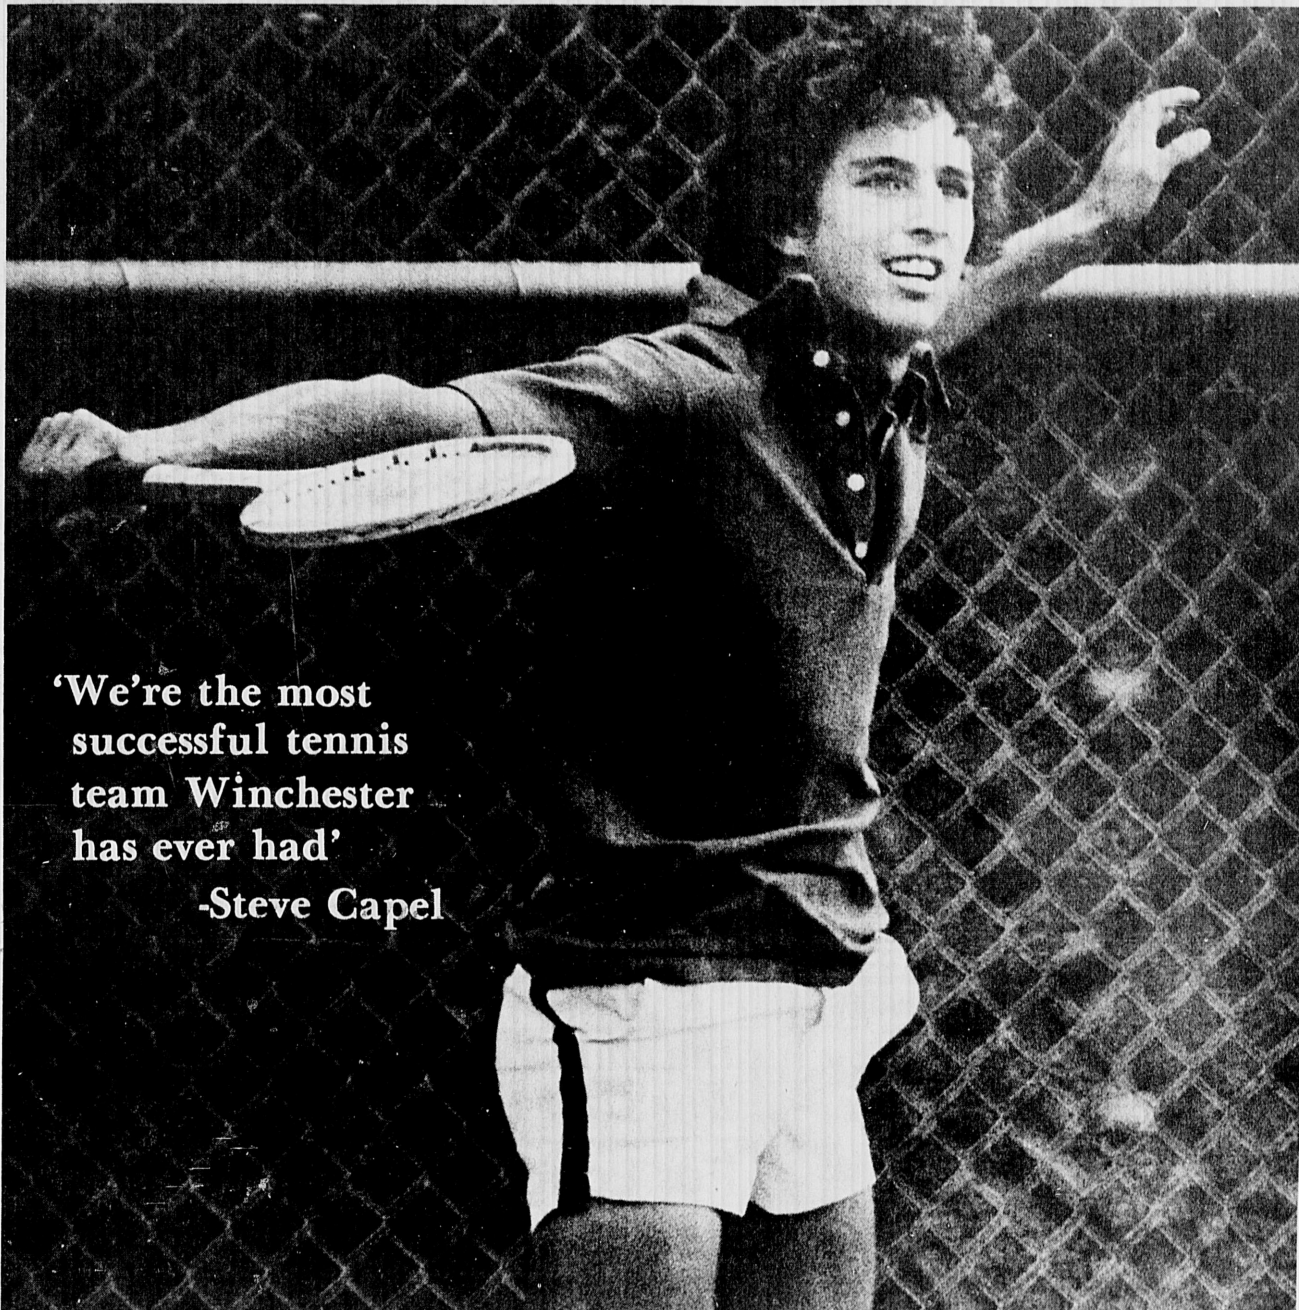

"To have a win like that come at this point in the season," Scanlon said, "you couldn't pick a better time to do it. I'm just thrilled for him."

"I thought Glenn had a chance, but I figured it would be in long, weary sets. To just go out and efficiently beat him — I don't think Shep was prepared for that," he added.

The third match to finish, the first doubles, clinched the Massachusetts title for Winchester, as John Fuchs and Collin Green refused to give in to Lexington's Dave Criss and Mike Sadehpour, beating the Minutemen in three sets, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4.

The Sachem teammates nearly danced off the court, hands clasped together, raising their index fingers to show the cheering Winchester fans that they were, indeed, the number one team.

The victory gave Fuchs and Green a 4-0 record for this year over their opponents, but Fuchs was quick to point out that all their previous matches had also

'We're the most successful tennis team Winchester has ever had'

-Steve Capel

Sachems' Steve Capel

gone into three sets.

"It was great," he said of the match. "Especially since it was the third and final point. But I don't think it will sink in for a while. Not until we're on the bus."

He commented that, despite the Minutemen's poor record against the top Winchester doubles team, Lexington coach George Meechem had not switched his line-up in an effort to beat Fuchs and Green.

"I'm sure he was confident with his line-up. Things just happened to go our way," Fuchs said.

Shouting "State champs!" he and his partner moved quickly to watch the second doubles match, where Winchester's Dave Palumbo and Marco Cosentino, both sophomores, were struggling through a tiebreaker.

Facing two Lexington seniors, Paul Brandes and Rick Lerner, they realized their team had captured the title, but lost the tiebreaker, 1-5, and the second set, 6-7, after winning the first set, 7-5.

As they began their third set, many of the Winchester players who had already finished moved to watch Winchester's first singles player, Steve Capel, fighting back against the strong strokes of his rival, Paul Rolnick.

Having dropped the first set, 3-6, to Rolnick, Capel was engaged in a tension-filled tiebreaker, and his teammates' encouragement grew louder as the score evened out to 4-4.

But Capel wasn't as fortunate with his undefeated foe as Clotti had been against Davidson. The next point went to Lexington, with Rolnick, who had survived eight set points, taking the second set, 7-6, and the match.

"I'm disappointed for Steve," said Scanlon after his top player's loss. "He's the most outstanding player on the team."

"He was struggling in his last few matches, and it seemed like he was coming back. But once you get used to not winning, I guess it affects you."

The final win of the day, the second doubles also went to Lexington, 5-7, 7-6, 6-3.

"It's a little bit anti-climactic that we lost the last two matches, so that we've won 3-2 after taking the first three," Scanlon commented. "I thought we had a chance to go 5-0, talent for talent."

"But a win is a win," he added.

And a win was certainly all that really mattered to the Sachems, as team captain Capel happily accepted the state championship trophy at the conclusion of the match.

(States - Page 16)

Then Does It Again In New Englands

They had done it four times before. When they faced the tough Lexington Minutemen for the most sought-after prize yet, there was just no way they were going to lose.

When you're number one in New England, you're tops and despite any attempts at modesty each Sachem knew he was hot stuff in the tennis world.

When it was over, Winchester had outclassed Lexington 4-1, clinching the Class A title in Rutland Vermont. That moment of ecstasy came after the unbeatable netmen overpowered Bishop Hendrickson of Warwick, R.I., 5-0, in the semifinals and Rutland, Vt., 5-0, in the quarterfinals.

But Lexington did not succumb willingly to the undefeatable Sachems. Despite the handicap of playing without their number one doubles teammate, Mike Sadehpour, Lexington forced four of the five matches into a third set before the final slaughter.

The Sachems completed the 1981 season with a perfect record of 21 victories without one single defeat.

The Sachems are nothing less than "totally elated," in the words of first singles player Steve Capel about capturing the New England title. But they would have preferred more of a fight for it. After all, how many times must they prove they can kill Lexington?

However the anticlimactic finish of facing and beating Lexington for the fifth time did not take away from the thrill of being the best.

"I think we're the most successful tennis team Winchester has ever had," exclaimed Capel. "It's an unexplainable feeling."

Third singles player Chris Julian said although they did not beat anyone they should not have, "it still feels great."

Glenn Clotti won his match against Shep Davidson in two quick sets, scoring 6-1, 6-2. Clotti's victory gave Winchester its first point, starting the team off to what ended up as a successful day — as usual.

Clotti beat Davidson by the same score as he did in the state finals and using almost the same strategy.

It's not the style of the Sachems to win quickly. They like to let their fans sweat it out in the beginning as it makes the ending all that much sweeter. This match was no different. Although anyone in his right mind would have placed everything on Winchester, there were some anxiety-ridden moments in the beginning.

At second doubles Dave Palumbo and Marco Cosentino — the newest addition to this team — were fighting it out against Lexington's Dan Brennan and Alex Walker. They lost the first set, 4-6.

In first doubles too, things were not going smoothly. The mean machine of Collin Green and John Fuchs had lost their first set, 5-7 to Dave Criss and Paul Brandes.

And the first singles Sachem Star Steve Capel was down a set to the Minuteman's number one player, Paul Although Palumbo and Cosentino lost their match, the Sachems had already clinched the championship on the strength of the first doubles team victory.

CHAMPS — The 1981 State Class A Tennis Champs show off their team and individual trophies after beating Lexington 3-2 for the title. The phenomenal Sachems then went on to take the New England championship Monday in Rutland, Vt., by beating Lexington yet again by an even more convincing score of 4-1. Teamen Have Great Season

The Winchester Teamen, the town's boys BAYS representative in the D1 North Division, finished their second consecutive 10-0 season with a solid 4-0 victory over the Belmont Banners last Saturday at Lockeland field.

Over the course of the season, the Teamen displayed a potent offense and a staunch defense, outscoring their opponents 50 goals to 1.

Thirteen of the seventeen players on the team scored at least one goal — a good indication of the diversity and the teamwork that helped make the Teamen perform so well.

Highlights of the season included a 1-0 win over Burlington in the waning moments of the game and a hard fought 3-1 victory against Acton-Boxborough on a small, sloped sun-baked field in Acton.

In the second Burlington game at Burlington, the Teamen were prepared for a tough struggle and came out flying from the opening kickoff. Their hard work and hustle was rewarded by a most satisfying 5-0 win.

The Teamen worked hard during the season on their individual skills and on their team strategy. Their spirited, aggressive play gave their relatives and friends a good deal of exciting soccer to watch.

Teamen coaches are: Vandy French, Jeff O'Grady and Steve Romboli.

Winchester Rotary Donates $3500 Unit

In honor of "The Year of the Handicapped," designated by Rotary International, the Winchester Rotary Club has donated a $3500 patient mobilization table for use in Winchester Hospital's physical therapy unit.

The presentation was made June 4 to hospital president Jack R. Hunter by Winchester Rotary president Dr. J. D. Murray, D.D.S.

The table is designed to allow therapy procedures to be performed on patients with back problems, and can also be adapted for use by paraplegic patients.

Funding for the table came from proceeds raised at the Rotary Club's Annual Auction, held April 25 at the Town Hall.

chester Rotary Club. Watching the demonstration are Rotary president Dr. J. D. Murray, D.D.S. (center) and hospital president Jack R. Hunter.

Music Department Hold Annual Meeting

The Friends of the Winchester High School Music Department recently held its annual meeting to review the year's activities and to elect new officers.

This past year has been a busy and fruitful one, a year which began in June 1980 with the establishment of the WISBA (Winchester School Band) under the co-chairmanship of Loretta Pharo and Miriam Reid. The WISBA Committee worked all summer and into the fall to raise money for additional band uniforms not funded by the School Committee.

WISBA successfully completed its task and held a Champagne Reception. The new band uniforms were received in time for the Thanksgiving Game in Woburn.

Once again the Friends manned the Chuckwagon at home football games; proceeds went to underwrite programs of the Music Department. Partial scholarships were given to the drum majors to attend special schools and some of the costs of student auditions at regional and state music competitions were underwritten.

The officers elected for the 1981-82 year are: president: Marlene Rothmann; vice president, Virginia Laats; treasurer, Lillian Costello; secretary, Maria Coppi; Publicity, Miriam Reid; Chuck Wagon, Frances Schutzberg; Members-at-Large, Marylou Leach, Jean Kelly and Marilyn Lane.

Parents of any student enrolled in band, chorus or orchestra are automatically members of the Friends. Parent volunteers are always needed. Please call Marlene Rothmann of Prince ave. if you would like to help.

★ Regional

Rolnick, 4-6.

But Winchester prevailed and showed their fans once again that there is nothing — north, east, south, or west — that can beat this together team. And once again the tide shifted.

First doubles broke their opponent's serve at 5-5 to go ahead, 6-5. Green served the last game of the second set.

And the short amount of time it took for Winchester to emerge victorious came as a surprise to Scanlon and his team.

"In all the matches we've played against Lexington, it was never decided until after a couple of hours," Scanlon said.

"Today was such an unexpected pleasure. To beat Lexington in an hour and a half is a luxury."

sailing into victory.

The Palumbo-Cosentino duo had an exciting match, finally coming off the steamy courts with the impressive score of 4-6, 6-0, 6-1.

Dependable Chris Julian won the first set at third singles, 6-3, but lost the second set in a tie-breaker, 7-6. While third singles was evening out the scores, Capel had just creamed Rolnick, 6-3.

Julian then proceeded to sew up the third set, 6-0, but Rolnick subdued Capel in the third set 6-1 making a shutout for the Sachems impossible.

The preliminary rounds presented no competition for the psyched Sachems. As Chris Julian put it, "these teams would have placed last in the Middlesex league."

Defeating Bishop Hendricken only re-enforced the Sachem's confidence in themselves. To put it mildly, Winchester slaughtered them, 5-0.

Capel demolished the Hawks' Tony SMOKIN' — Winchester Merchants' pitcher Billy Smeglin threw a complete game against the Medford Mustangs Friday night only to emerge with an 8-8 tie. But he escaped a loss as the Merchants recouped a three-run deficit in the seventh to give Smeglin the tie. On Sunday, the Merchants lost a 5-4 heart-breaker to the league-leading Somerville Red Sox. Dan Broderick pitched a complete game in that contest, yielding only eight hits and one walk. The Merchants played aggressively, getting their four runs on only five hits. Their league record now stands at 2-7-1.

Raglone at first singles and Ciotti rolled over John McGeough, 6-1, 6-0. Julian outlasted Dave Richards, 7-5, 7-5.

In doubles, Green and Fuchs overhauled Mark Sutyla and Terry Harrington, 7-5, 6-1 and Palumbo and Cosentino knocked off Vin Palumbo (no relation) and Dave Radocia, 7-6, 6-2.

In the first round of the day against Rutland, Winchester also whopped their opponents 5-0.

Capel polished off Miguel Ortiz, 6-3, 6-0 and Ciotti clobbered Jim Cohen 6-0, 6-1. Julian stung Dan Kennedy, 6-2, 6-3.

Doubles proved just as uneventful. Green and Fuchs walked all over Bruce Baker and Noah Pollack, 6-4, 6-0 and Cosentino and Palumbo knocked out Kim Jones and Greg Nutting 6-0, 6-2.

Ballet Isn't Just For Dancers

By Noreen Murphy

For the past thirty years, the Harriet Hootor Ballet School on Third Street has been training youngsters in and around the city in the art of ballet. The school, which is well known for its dancers, is also a place where students learn to be graceful, confident, and even strong.

At the school, which is located at 100 Third Street, students learn to be graceful, confident, and even strong. The school is well known for its dancers, and it is also a place where students learn to be graceful, confident, and even strong.

not simply ballet students; a healthy number are also involved in sports such as the Winchester Soccer Team, school baseball teams or adult recreation. After ballet class, they don their sports garb and have another good workout.

Ruth Warren, for example, an adult student, joined the Senior Olympic sunfish sailing competition in Miami and won the Gold Medal.

Warren was competing against many men and said she owes her courage to join and ability to win partly to taking ballet class.

Vasel's husband John, an avid tennis and racquetball player, routinely does his ballet stretches before games and performs excellently according to Vasel.

Vasel said she knows all too well, as all professional dancers do, that ballet training is the heart of all kinds of dance.

It gives you the basic training you need for branching out into jazz, modern dance, disco, tap, and all dance forms," she said.

Ballet prepares gymnasts to be graceful and smooth while performing," she continued. "It gives figure skaters a dancer-like quality that separates them from other performers who lack ballet experience and thus lack the resulting quality."

Previously an instructor for classes at the Boston School of Ballet, Vasel once taught a class which the New England Patriots attended. "They wanted to improve their performance, limber their muscles, become more agile and generally get their bodies ready for anything," she said.

Doctors are now sending patients with specific ailments to ballet, Vasel said. A turned-in foot, scoliosis of the spine and curvature of the spine are among the types of ailments treated with ballet training.

Does she miss performing professionally? "When dancing professionally, you are in the limelight," said Vasel. "The benefits are for you as an individual performer. When you are teaching, the benefits are mostly for your pupils. "As a teacher, you receive satisfaction from watching them excel," Vasel said. "My attentions and energies are focused on my students. I dance for my students."

"My goal is to give them proper training from the beginning with the proper French terminology for the ballet steps," she said.

Her first concern is that her students receive the knowledge that builds quality dancers. Vasel assists her pupils along the way giving them the support and discipline they need.

Vasel said that for younger students to become serious about continuing the study of ballet, they need some encouragement from home.

Before reaching the age of ten or eleven, a child can be fickle, she said. They enjoy trying something new each week.

But if they have stayed with ballet from an early age and have taken classes each week, by the time they are eleven, they can look in the mirror as they dance and say to themselves, "Hey, I'm getting good!"

Vasel feels that it is hard to convince someone to start ballet lessons once they have reached the age of twelve or thirteen. By then, they have already established their main interests outside of school.

Is it ever too late to start? Vasel says no. She also says it is never too late to go back to it if you had studied it earlier in life. She says she watches her students enjoy themselves in ballet and get a work-out at the same time. Many of her adult students come to class for the feeling of well-being that they get from it. Others are studying for their own satisfaction to see how they can excel at dance.

There are those who have studied at the Harriet Hootor Ballet School to go on to study with famous international dance companies. Students come from as far as Billerica, and Revere.

Karen Trabucco, Vasel's assistant teacher, studies with the North Shore Civic Ballet in Marblehead.

The enrollment is approximately three hundred and the need for a bigger facility increases each year.

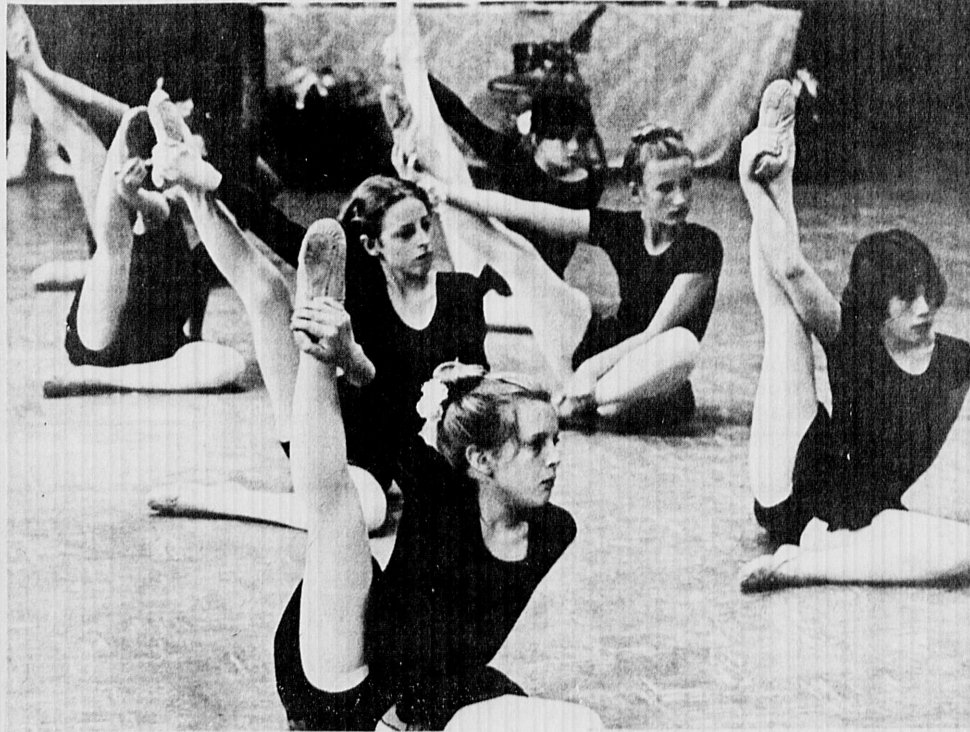

The summer session starts in just four days so get ready, all you football players, tennis buffs, soccer players and shortstops.

BOARD OF APPEAL
NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

The WINCHESTER BOARD OF APPEAL will hold a PUBLIC HEARING on THURSDAY, JUNE 25, 1981 at 7:30 P.M. in the BOARD OF HEALTH CLINIC ROOM of the TOWN HALL, on the following matters:

(1) PETITION NO. 2526 - That of the WINCHESTER REALTY COMPANY by WILLIAM CACI, PRESIDENT, concerning the property at 29 VINE STREET, WINCHESTER, MA. The petitioner seeks to modify approvals granted under Board of Appeals Decisions Nos. 2450 and 2474 so as to be permitted to relocate the third floor wall of the premises in order to enlarge two (2) existing bedrooms. The property is located within the RB-25 (Mid-Rise Apartment House) zoning district, contains 10,346 S.F. and is owned by CUSTOM WOODWORK COMPANY, INC.

(2) PETITION NO. 2527 - That of CONTINENTAL CABLEVISION OF MASSACHUSETTS, INC., concerning the property at 722 MAIN STREET, WINCHESTER, MA. The petitioner seeks a Special Permit pursuant to Section 3.45 of the Winchester Zoning By-Law so as to be permitted to erect an addition to an existing non-conforming structure. The property is located within the GBD (General Business) zoning district, consists of 10,800 S.F. and is owned by the DI VINCENTO REALTY TRUST.

(3) PETITION NO. 2528 - That of the TOWN OF WINCHESTER by EDWARD F. O'CONNELL, CHAIRMAN, of the BOARD OF SELECTMEN, concerning the property at 115 SWANTON STREET, WINCHESTER, MA. (Transfer Station). The petitioner seeks a Variance from the minimum percentage open area requirement in a RA-120 zoning district.

(4) PETITION NO. 2529 - That of the TOWN OF WINCHESTER concerning the property and buildings thereon at 81 CHURCH STREET, WINCHESTER, MA. (formerly the Wyman School and occasionally referred to herein as the "property"). The petitioner seeks the following items of relief from the specified requirements of the Winchester Zoning By-Law (the "Zoning By-Law") so as to permit the conversion of the property into an eighteen-unit garden apartment house:

1. Section 4.23. The petitioner requests a variance for garages Nos. 14 and No. 6 from the requirement that no accessory use shall occupy part of a required side yard.

2. Section 4.4 (4). The petitioner requests an interpretation that the proposed eighteen-unit garden apartment house is permitted as of right subject only to the site plan review requirement of Section 8.7 of the Zoning By-Law, and does not require a special permit under Section 8.5 of the Zoning By-Law, or, alternatively, a special permit under Section 8.5 of the Zoning By-Law to permit the conversion of the property into an eighteen-unit garden apartment house.

3. Section 5.1. The petitioner requests a variance for garages Nos. 14 and No. 6 from the requirement that no separate accessory building shall be erected within fifteen feet of any other building.

4. Section 5.1. The petitioner requests an interpretation that garages Nos. 14 and No. 6 do not violate the requirement that no accessory building shall be erected in any required yard provided that the variances from the dimensional requirements for required yards that are requested in paragraph 6 of this petition are obtained, or, alternatively, a variance for garages Nos. 14 and No. 6 from this requirement.

5. Section 6.1. The petitioner requests a variance for the property located at 81 Church Street, from the requirement of 120,000 square feet in a RA-120 zoning district.

6. Section 6.1. The petitioner requests a variance for garages Nos. 14 and No. 6, and the porte cochere minimum side yard requirement, the minimum rear yard requirement, and the minimum yard adjacent to the RA-120 zoning district as these requirements apply to each of these garages and the porte cochere.

7. Section 6.1. The petitioner requests a variance from the minimum percentage open area requirement in a RA-120 zoning district.

8. Section 6.1. The petitioner requests a variance from the maximum height requirement for buildings, as measured in feet in a RA-120 zoning district.

9. Section 6.1. The petitioner requests an interpretation that garages Nos. 14 and No. 6 do not violate the requirement that each building in a RA-120 zoning district be surrounded by fire lanes as defined in Section 9 of the Zoning By-Law because this requirement does not apply to garages Nos. 14 and No. 6 as they are accessory buildings, or, alternatively, a variance for garages Nos. 14 and No. 6 from this requirement.

10. Section 6.1. The petitioner requests an interpretation that garages Nos. 14 and No. 6 do not violate the minimum distance between buildings requirement of thirty feet in a RA-120 zoning district because (i) this requirement only applies to the distance between two principal buildings and does not apply to the distances between two accessory buildings (garage Nos. 14 and No. 6) and a principal building (the Wyman School building); (ii) the minimum required distances between two accessory buildings, or between an accessory building and a principal building, is fifteen feet as set forth in Section 5.1 of the Zoning By-Law from which variances have been requested for garages Nos. 14 and No. 6; and (iii) this requirement does not apply to garages Nos. 14 and No. 6 for any other reason. Alternatively, the petitioner requests variances from the Section 6.1 minimum distance between buildings requirement of thirty feet in a RA-120 zoning district for any of garages Nos. 14 and No. 6 that are subject to this requirement.

11. Section 7.13 (b) (4). The petitioner requests a variance for parking areas A, B, and C from the requirement that the minimum width of aisles providing access to stalls for two-way traffic shall be twenty-four feet.

12. Section 7.13 (d) (2). The petitioner requests an interpretation that both driveways No. 1 and No. 2 provide access primarily for overnight parking with incidental daytime use and, thus, are only required to be a minimum of twelve feet wide, or, alternatively, a variance for driveways No. 1 and No. 2 from the requirement that the minimum width of entrance and exit drives for two-way use shall be twenty feet.

13. Section 7.13 (d) (3). The petitioner requests a variance for driveway No. 1 from the requirement that, in residence districts, the maximum width of entrance and exit drives at the street lot line shall be twenty feet.

14. Section 7.13 (e) (2). The petitioner requests a variance for parking areas A and C from the requirement that, in a RA-120 zoning district, the surfaced area of a parking lot shall be set back a minimum of twenty feet from the side lot lines.

15. Section 7.13 (f). The petitioner requests an interpretation that the parking areas on the property including garages Nos. 14 and No. 6, and parking areas A, B, and C do not violate the requirement that, where parking lots are increased in capacity after the effective date of the Zoning By-Law, the expanded portion thereof shall be designed in accordance with the regulations of Section 7.13 of the Zoning By-Law, or, alternatively, a variance for the above-listed parking areas on the property from this requirement.

The property is located within the SCI (Conservancy - Institutional) zoning district and is currently in the process of being rezoned to the RA-120 (Multiple Family) residential zoning district and consists of 2.7 acres.

(5) PETITION NO. 2530 - That of THE WATERFIELD SQUARE REALTY TRUST, concerning the property at 64 HIGHLAND AVENUE, WINCHESTER, MA. (formerly Washington School). The petitioner seeks a Special Permit in accordance with Chapter 9, Section 7.8 of the Winchester Code of By-Laws so as to be permitted to erect a free standing sign on the premises. The property is located within the RA-120 (Garden Apartment) zoning district, contains 2.7 Acres and is presently owned by the TOWN OF WINCHESTER.

CAR CARE CORNER

Mario Scenna, Serv. Mgr.

Dirt on your car's finish can damage the finish... Salt sprinkled on the roads during winter months can cause the metal on your car to rust... The best preventive maintenance for finishes is to wash the car every time it gets dirty... If you have been driving the car on salted roads, the car should be washed weekly at a car wash... Your car also should be waxed at least twice annually - in the spring and fall... Don't overlook cleaning the inside of your car also... Keep your automotive investment in top shape with professional mechanical care from 128 MAZDA-OLDS. Our own body shop is on the premises. We do all Warrantee Work. CHECKLIST FOR MOVING

Families who attend to a sensible schedule prior to a household move can make home relocation much less traumatic. Here's a checklist:

Supply post office with forwarding address card... Notify charge account, credit card companies... Transfer bank funds; arrange for check-cashing in new city... Notify insurance companies for coverage in new location... Advise gas, electric, telephone companies of last day in old home... Cut off deliveries of milk, newspapers, etc... Empty freezer and plan for use of stored foods... Defrost refrigerator-freezer; place charcoal to dispel odors... have appliances serviced for moving... Make firm arrangements with moving company on insurance coverage in transit, packing and unpacking labor, arrival day, method and time of expected payment... Carry, don't ship, jewelry and other valuable and vital documents... Before departing, double check all closets, drawers and shelves... Leave keys with real estate agent.

Voluntary Water Restrictions Voted

BY GREG ANRIG JR.

Winchester residents have been asked to voluntarily restrict water use on lawns, gardens and dirty cars to one-and-a-half hours a day between 7 p.m. and 7 a.m. The selectmen unanimously recommended Monday night residents follow the voluntary water guidelines after debating the practicality of imposing mandatory restrictions.

The board was initially divided over mandatory versus voluntary restrictions. Selectman Wade M. Welch claimed that the town's inability to enforce a ban would make it a "big fat joke." Board chairman Edward F. O'Connell thought the voluntary guidelines would be the best. "I don't think people will take us as seriously," he said.

The board's vote came in response to warnings from Richard Warrington, water department superintendent, that the area appears to be facing a dangerous drought cycle that, without conservation actions, could cause water shortages as early as later this summer.

Warrington said much waste occurs when residents water their lawn during the day. "The first image you have when you drive into Winchester is of lawn sprinklers going at high noon," he said. "You can watch half the water evaporate as soon as it hits the grass," Warrington said.

Warrington added that an hour and a half of sprinkling in an entire week is all most lawns need to stay healthy.

Warrington said the drought cycle appears to be the second worst in more than 100 years, rivaling the severe drought of the mid-1960s.

"MDC (Metropolitan District Commission) reservoirs are at 85 percent of their full-house level," he said. "But we have worse conditions now than in the 1960s when the Quabbin Reservoir was reduced to 37 percent of capacity. "I can remember when the world's greatest hydrologist said Quabbin would never refill. Only a fluke in 1972 — an enormously wet year — got it back," Warrington said.

Residents Asked To Limit Outdoor Water Use To 1½ Hours A Day Between 7 P.M. And 7 A.M.

Warrington added that communities should not wait for a crisis to occur before acting. "The MDC is so large it takes a long time for a drought to take hold," said Warrington. "But it also takes a long time to recover."

"When the MDC is in trouble, we're in trouble," Warrington concluded. To help prevent wastefulness, Warrington recommended that the board attempt to educate the community about water conservation. He also said the selectmen should impose mandatory watering restrictions, saying voluntary guidelines generally fail.

"From the towns I've talked to (with voluntary restrictions), the majority have been almost disastrous," he said. "They've worked almost the opposite way they were intended to."

But Selectman Michael D. Saraco argued against a daytime ban. "The average person would comply by starting his sprinkler at 9 p.m., sitting down to watch TV, then going to bed at 11 or 12," he said. "It wouldn't be until 6 in the morning or after before the sprinkler would get turned off."

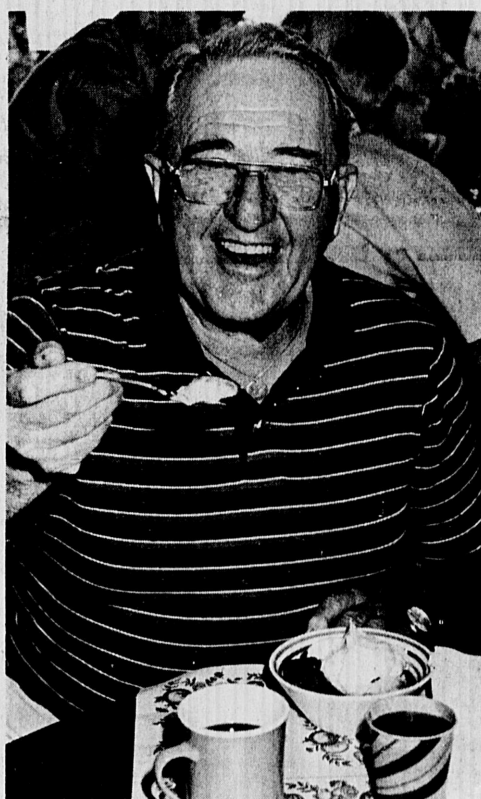

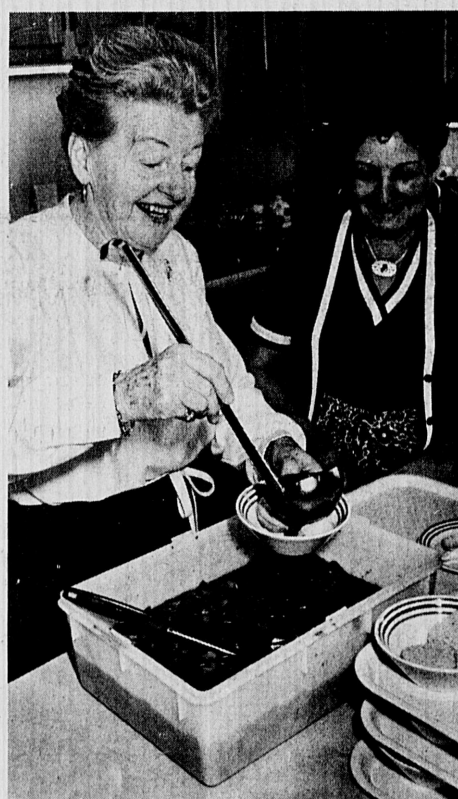

Saraco said the town should concentrate on water-conservation education before putting restrictions on. "We should try conserving on a voluntary basis — suggest things (people)

State Squabble May Cost Town Money

By DAVE LEECO

A battle between the state Senate and House of Representatives could cost Winchester $122,000 in state aid next fiscal year.

The house refused to concur with the senate's version of the state budget Tuesday, voting 112 to 46 to send the budget to conference committee, according to Rep. Sherman W. Saltmarsh.

The conference committee will decide which, if either, of two versions of the budget it wants to adopt — the one drafted by the house, or the senate's version.

Both budgets have increased Winchester's state aid from that included in Governor Edward King's budget.

The house budget would give Winchester $472,000 above last year's aid, and the senate's version would give the town $594,000 in additional funds.

According to Saltmarsh, the senate budget figure does not include money that might come to the town from increased state subsidies for things such as regional school transportation and payments to county jails.

Saltmarsh estimated those subsidies could increase Winchester's aid by another 18 to 22 percent — about another $100,000.

Town officials said that while they could use the money after Proposition 2.5, any additional state aid would probably be used to offset the tax rate. "I'm certainly not going to rush in and ask Town Meeting to spend more money," said Town Manager Thomas Groux. "That would fly in the face of what was voted in November."

"If there is more aid, the taxpayer ought to benefit," he continued. "After all, property tax relief was the message of Prop. 2.5."

Town Comptroller Alphonse Faggiano said some of the increased aid may be eaten up by a $300,000 gap between what the assessors have estimated the town is worth and what the Town Meeting decided to spend.

However, if the town's reassessment comes in slightly higher, Faggiano continued, and the $300,000 is made up in property taxes, the tax rate will drop.

Faggiano estimated the rate would go down by about 25c from the new $25 per $1000 valuation, or $1 on the pre-Prop. 2.5 rate. The average homeowner would save about $30, he said.

But Faggiano noted the tax cut wouldn't do much good if the state raised taxes to get the money for more local aid. Saltmarsh said that's one of the reasons he voted for the Senate version of the budget.

"There were three things which I felt were the message of Prop. 2.5," Saltmarsh said. "When people voted for it, they wanted a reduction in state spending, more local aid to cities and towns, and they didn't want any new taxes."

Saltmarsh said he felt the senate budget met those criteria better than that

North Winchester Deals With Trucks & Tracts

Study Looks Again At Trucking Through Residential Area

By CAROLYN KITCH

It's around three o'clock in the afternoon. Your grade schoolers are walking home from school just about now. The younger children are playing outside. Every few minutes, a 16-wheeler truck plows up your narrow street, throwing an ominous shadow and a cloud of diesel exhaust onto your front yard. You worry, and you hope that your children will be careful.

It's five in the morning. Even though there's a ban on trucking on your street from 10 p.m. to 5 a.m., you are suddenly awakened by the noise of a tractor trailer that sounds like it's in your bedroom. You think of trying to get the license plate number, but by the time you get out of bed and dressed and outside...well, forget it.

These are just two examples of some of the traffic problems residents of Holton and East sts. in North Winchester have had for more than ten years. Much of what they do at home — the simple acts of sleeping, walking and having quiet time — is dominated by the traffic of a nearby industrial complex.

But some relief may be in sight for the people of this closely-knit residential community that borders the Woburn town line.

The Metropolitan Area Planning Council (MAPC) has agreed to conduct a study of the truck traffic situation in that area and investigate solutions to the problem.

According to MAPC Transportation Coordinator Edward Bates, the study, which has technically already begun, is currently in formative stages and is being headed by Denny Lawton, the Transportation Planner for the Council.

"We haven't really formalized the scope of our activities yet, and until we do that, we can't say how long the study will take," he said.

The main objective of the study, according to Marion Crandall, chair-

Ninety-Two Unit Condo Project Proposed Along The Aberjona

By CHRISTINE DEMKOWYCH

Town officials as well as neighborhood residents think that a proposal to construct 92 condominium units along the Aberjona River is a good idea.

But some residents are worried that the building of a road for the development might cause traffic problems in the area. The proposed roadway would link Swanton st. to River st.

Partners Henry Quill and Lawrence Murray, owners of the 12.4 acre property, presented the proposal to build housing units ranging in price from $90,000 to $100,000 to the Winchester Planning Board Wednesday night at Town Hall.

"The board was generally receptive to the idea," said Town Engineer Jake Ciarcia. "But our concerns point to traffic problems, utilities, aesthetics and an interest in the best use of the land."

A major factor in the final decision will be the impact such a development will have on the neighboring area, he said.

"Years ago a company from New York was interested in opening a Stop and Shop, but was denied their offer due to threats of noise, parking problems, glaring lights, and numerous other problems," said Charles Tseckares, vice-chairman of the Planning Board.

For construction to take place on the Aberjona River site, the land must be rezoned by Town Meeting from light industrial to either a planned residential district (PRD) or a residential area 120 (RA 120). Both are multiple-family unit zonings.

Even if the rezoning were approved by Town Meeting, the site would still require the construction of a road between Swanton and River sts. because two means of access would be required.

"The site could never be dead-ended," Tseckares said.

Francis Kelley, of Lochwan st., is a resident who lives near the area proposed for the condominiums.

"Any development in the area would be of better use than it currently is," he said. "But if they plan on building a road, I'm against the project."

Kelley dislikes the parties he says occur in the empty field behind his house, but he is also concerned about the noise and traffic problems that could result from the project.

"I'll have too many headaches," Kelley said. "If they plan on putting a road in there, I don't want the buildings to go up."

"I think it's a great idea," said James Errico of Loring ct. "The land has been idle for many years and it's been nothing but a hazard area for juveniles."

Errico claims that many teenagers waste their time hanging around in the wooded area. "They drink, smoke pot, and they even set cars on fire," he said.

Lt. John Frongillo, of the Winchester Police, said that in the past few years car have been burnt in the area.

"It's a wooded area and the kids used to hang out there," he said. "We used to

Star Regrets Error

In last week's story on the alarm industry, the Star incorrectly reported that Michael I. Kamens, 35, of Norwood was indicted and served time in Walpole state prison for burglary. The Star also incorrectly reported that Kamens and his parents own an alarm company in West Roxbury. Kamens was never indicted nor convicted of burglary and never served time in Walpole. He also does not own an alarm company. Dr. Israel Kamens, Michael's father, is a Chelsea physician of high repute and the owner of Modern Security Co. of West Roxbury. The Star deeply regrets the error.

Voluntary Water Restrictions Voted

BY GREG ANRIG JR.

Winchester residents have been asked to voluntarily restrict water use on lawns, gardens and dirty cars to one-and-a-half hours a day between 7 p.m. and 7 a.m. The selectmen unanimously recommended Monday night residents follow the voluntary water guidelines after debating the practicality of imposing mandatory restrictions.

The board was initially divided over mandatory versus voluntary restrictions. Selectman Wade M. Welch claimed that the town's inability to enforce a ban would make it a "big fat joke." Board chairman Edward F. O'Connell thought the voluntary guidelines would be the best. "I don't think people will take us as seriously," he said.

The board's vote came in response to warnings from Richard Warrington, water department superintendent, that the area appears to be facing a dangerous drought cycle that, without conservation actions, could cause water shortages as early as later this summer.

Warrington said much waste occurs when residents water their lawn during the day. "The first image you have when you drive into Winchester is of lawn sprinklers going at high noon," he said. "You can watch half the water evaporate as soon as it hits the grass," Warrington said.

Warrington added that an hour and a half of sprinkling in an entire week is all most lawns need to stay healthy.

Warrington said the drought cycle appears to be the second worst in more than 100 years, rivaling the severe drought of the mid-1960s.

"MDC (Metropolitan District Commission) reservoirs are at 85 percent of their full-house level," he said. "But we have worse conditions now than in the 1960s when the Quabbin Reservoir was reduced to 37 percent of capacity. "I can remember when the world's greatest hydrologist said Quabbin would never refill. Only a fluke in 1972 — an enormously wet year — got it back," Warrington said.

Residents Asked To Limit Outdoor Water Use To 1½ Hours A Day Between 7 P.M. And 7 A.M.

Warrington added that communities should not wait for a crisis to occur before acting. "The MDC is so large it takes a long time for a drought to take hold," said Warrington. "But it also takes a long time to recover."

"When the MDC is in trouble, we're in trouble," Warrington concluded. To help prevent wastefulness, Warrington recommended that the board attempt to educate the community about water conservation. He also said the selectmen should impose mandatory watering restrictions, saying voluntary guidelines generally fail.

"From the towns I've talked to (with voluntary restrictions), the majority have been almost disastrous," he said. "They've worked almost the opposite way they were intended to."

But Selectman Michael D. Saraco argued against a daytime ban. "The average person would comply by starting his sprinkler at 9 p.m., sitting down to watch TV, then going to bed at 11 or 12," he said. "It wouldn't be until 6 in the morning or after before the sprinkler would get turned off."

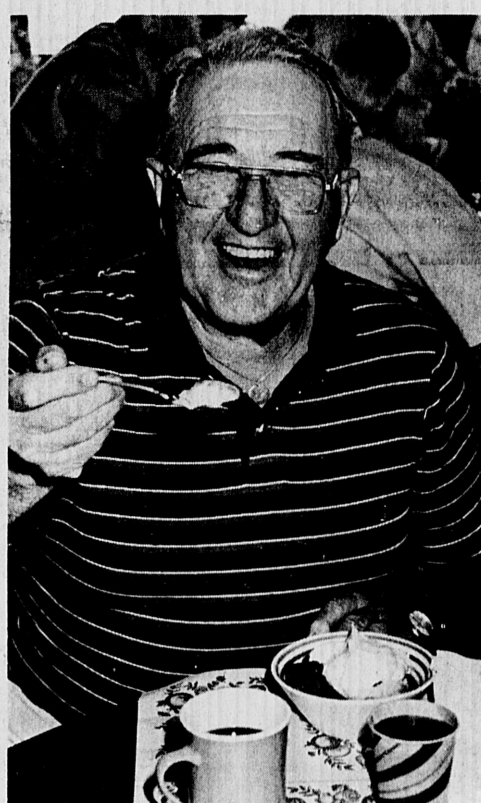

Saraco said the town should concentrate on water-conservation education before putting restrictions on. "We should try conserving on a voluntary basis — suggest things (people)

State Squabble May Cost Town Money

By DAVE LEECO

A battle between the state Senate and House of Representatives could cost Winchester $122,000 in state aid next fiscal year.

The house refused to concur with the senate's version of the state budget Tuesday, voting 112 to 46 to send the budget to conference committee, according to Rep. Sherman W. Saltmarsh.

The conference committee will decide which, if either, of two versions of the budget it wants to adopt — the one drafted by the house, or the senate's version.

Both budgets have increased Winchester's state aid from that included in Governor Edward King's budget.

The house budget would give Winchester $472,000 above last year's aid, and the senate's version would give the town $594,000 in additional funds.

According to Saltmarsh, the senate budget figure does not include money that might come to the town from increased state subsidies for things such as regional school transportation and payments to county jails.

Saltmarsh estimated those subsidies could increase Winchester's aid by another 18 to 22 percent — about another $100,000.

Town officials said that while they could use the money after Proposition 2.5, any additional state aid would probably be used to offset the tax rate. "I'm certainly not going to rush in and ask Town Meeting to spend more money," said Town Manager Thomas Groux. "That would fly in the face of what was voted in November."

"If there is more aid, the taxpayer ought to benefit," he continued. "After all, property tax relief was the message of Prop. 2.5."

Town Comptroller Alphonse Faggiano said some of the increased aid may be eaten up by a $300,000 gap between what the assessors have estimated the town is worth and what the Town Meeting decided to spend.

However, if the town's reassessment comes in slightly higher, Faggiano continued, and the $300,000 is made up in property taxes, the tax rate will drop.

Faggiano estimated the rate would go down by about 25c from the new $25 per $1000 valuation, or $1 on the pre-Prop. 2.5 rate. The average homeowner would save about $30, he said.

But Faggiano noted the tax cut wouldn't do much good if the state raised taxes to get the money for more local aid. Saltmarsh said that's one of the reasons he voted for the Senate version of the budget.

"There were three things which I felt were the message of Prop. 2.5," Saltmarsh said. "When people voted for it, they wanted a reduction in state spending, more local aid to cities and towns, and they didn't want any new taxes."

Saltmarsh said he felt the senate budget met those criteria better than that

North Winchester Deals With Trucks & Tracts

By CAROLYN KITCH

It's around three o'clock in the afternoon. Your grade schoolers are walking home from school just about now. The younger children are playing outside. Every few minutes, a 16-wheeler truck plows up your narrow street, throwing an ominous shadow and a cloud of diesel exhaust onto your front yard. You worry, and you hope that your children will be careful.

It's five in the morning. Even though there's a ban on trucking on your street from 10 p.m. to 5 a.m., you are suddenly awakened by the noise of a tractor trailer that sounds like it's in your bedroom. You think of trying to get the license plate number, but by the time you get out of bed and dressed and outside...well, forget it.

These are just two examples of some of the traffic problems residents of Holton and East sts. in North Winchester have had for more than ten years. Much of what they do at home — the simple acts of sleeping, walking and having quiet time — is dominated by the traffic of a nearby industrial complex.

But some relief may be in sight for the people of this closely-knit residential community that borders the Woburn town line.

The Metropolitan Area Planning Council (MAPC) has agreed to conduct a study of the truck traffic situation in that area and investigate solutions to the problem.

According to MAPC Transportation Coordinator Edward Bates, the study, which has technically already begun, is currently in formative stages and is being headed by Denny Lawton, the Transportation Planner for the Council.

"We haven't really formalized the scope of our activities yet, and until we do that, we can't say how long the study will take," he said.

The main objective of the study, according to Marion Crandall, chair-

Ninety-Two Unit Condo Project Proposed Along The Aberjona

By CHRISTINE DEMKOWYCH

Town officials as well as neighborhood residents think that a proposal to construct 92 condominium units along the Aberjona River is a good idea.

But some residents are worried that the building of a road for the development might cause traffic problems in the area. The proposed roadway would link Swanton st. to River st.

Partners Henry Quill and Lawrence Murray, owners of the 12.4 acre property, presented the proposal to build housing units ranging in price from $90,000 to $100,000 to the Winchester Planning Board Wednesday night at Town Hall.

"The board was generally receptive to the idea," said Town Engineer Jake Ciarcia. "But our concerns point to traffic problems, utilities, aesthetics and an interest in the best use of the land."

A major factor in the final decision will be the impact such a development will have on the neighboring area, he said.

"Years ago a company from New York was interested in opening a Stop and Shop, but was denied their offer due to threats of noise, parking problems, glaring lights, and numerous other problems," said Charles Tseckares, vice-chairman of the Planning Board.

For construction to take place on the Aberjona River site, the land must be rezoned by Town Meeting from light industrial to either a planned residential district (PRD) or a residential area 120 (RA 120). Both are multiple-family unit zonings.

Even if the rezoning were approved by Town Meeting, the site would still require the construction of a road between Swanton and River sts. because two means of access would be required.

"The site could never be dead-ended," Tseckares said.

Francis Kelley, of Lochwan st., is a resident who lives near the area proposed for the condominiums.

"Any development in the area would be of better use than it currently is," he said. "But if they plan on building a road, I'm against the project."

Kelley dislikes the parties he says occur in the empty field behind his house, but he is also concerned about the noise and traffic problems that could result from the project.

"I'll have too many headaches," Kelley said. "If they plan on putting a road in there, I don't want the buildings to go up."

"I think it's a great idea," said James Errico of Loring ct. "The land has been idle for many years and it's been nothing but a hazard area for juveniles."

Errico claims that many teenagers waste their time hanging around in the wooded area. "They drink, smoke pot, and they even set cars on fire," he said.

Lt. John Frongillo, of the Winchester Police, said that in the past few years car have been burnt in the area.

"It's a wooded area and the kids used to hang out there," he said. "We used to

Star Regrets Error

In last week's story on the alarm industry, the Star incorrectly reported that Michael I. Kamens, 35, of Norwood was indicted and served time in Walpole state prison for burglary. The Star also incorrectly reported that Kamens and his parents own an alarm company in West Roxbury. Kamens was never indicted nor convicted of burglary and never served time in Walpole. He also does not own an alarm company. Dr. Israel Kamens, Michael's father, is a Chelsea physician of high repute and the owner of Modern Security Co. of West Roxbury. The Star deeply regrets the error.

Mystery Photo

It's hard to believe anything so garish could be on a Winchester building, but our photographer, Noreen Murphy swears she took this picture in town.

She also swears no one will know where it is. Personally, the mystery photo editor wouldn't admit knowing where it is.

But if you do know, and will admit it, just fill out the form below and send it to Mystery Photo, The Winchester Star, 3 Church st.

Once again it must be said, as our accountant sits back and smiles, that we give out no prizes for winning this contest.

Of course, you do get your name in the paper, like the people below.

Richard Rogers, who are you, and how do you know Winchester so well? Rogers is our Mystery Photo Champion, and he's answered all four photos correctly.

We have a two-way tie for second place, between Peter Ravinanis, of Lockland rd., who was fooled this week into thinking the bridge was on Washington st., and a new-comer, Robert Torriere, of Sargent rd. Both have two correct.

State Comes To The Rescue Of Business Center

CARD Plan Approved

$6,000 Granted For Parking Study

By DAVE LEECO

Winchester businesses can start making their redevelopment plans, because the state has approved the town's CARD (Commercial Area Redevelopment District) plan.

Now that the downtown has been designated a CARD area, businesses from Skillings rd. to Church st. can apply for low-interest, government-sponsored loans for commercial projects.

According to Rep. Sherman W. Saltmarsh, the state Executive Office of Communities and Development (EOCD) approved the plan Tuesday, only five days after the application was made.

"We now have the groundwork for a rebirth of Winchester center," said Saltmarsh.

Town officials were pleased, but not surprised, that the plan had been approved so quickly.

"I had a pretty strong inkling this was coming soon," said Economic Development Coordinator John Connery, the man who submitted the proposal Friday.

"I had kept in very, very close contact with the people at the executive office, and that helped," he said. "If they know what you're trying to do, understand what areas you're looking at, and what debate is surrounding the CARD, there really isn't that much for them to decide."

Chairman Edward O'Connell, whose Board of Selectmen approved the CARD plan last Monday, said the town's lengthy preparation for the CARD application help speed it through.

"There was an awareness at the state level of what we are trying to do," said

O'Connell. "They knew this was a quality proposal."

Both O'Connell and Connery praised Saltmarsh for his part in moving the application along.

"Let's face it," said O'Connell, "obviously Whip Saltmarsh did considerable preparatory work, and created a receptive attitude in the state for the plan. A lot of work went into getting this thing through."

"Working with Whip was very instrumental in getting this," Connery commented. "He brought Byron Matthews (the head of EOCD) down here, and Byron's assistants were down a lot."

"Whip could talk to people on the state level, and it's because of his political connections that everything went this quickly," he added.

Under the CARD plan, downtown businesses will be eligible to get low-interest loans, to build or rehabilitate commercial properties within the boundaries of the CARD district.

The loans come with an interest rate which can be as low as eight percent.

The loans are backed by tax-exempt Massachusetts Industrial Finance Agency (MIFA) bonds. The bonds are sold to banks, which in turn hand out the loans after a normal credit review.

"The MIFA board meets monthly," Connery explained, "and they give the clearance for businesses to use the bonds. But once they clear it, it's up to the applicant to make a deal with the bank."

"From that point on, it's very much a straight business deal between the bank and the applicant — except for the tax-exempt bonds," he said.

Businesses will begin making those deals soon, according to Connery. Purity Supreme will probably apply for MIFA bonds at the board's next meeting, he said, and at least one other businessman is considering applying for bonds as early as next fall.

Connery said now that the CARD plan is approved, he wants to keep things moving in the downtown.

"I wanted to get some early motivation and momentum going for downtown projects," he said. "And now that this is taken care of, I can concentrate on studies to find out the best way to spend the MIFA money."

"If we go about this as quickly and as completely as possible, it's possible that this (downtown renewal) will stick," he said.

By SUSAN SCHNECK

It looks as though the state has heard the cries of Winchester merchants complaining about the lack of parking spaces for their customers in the downtown area.

For the first time the state has awarded money to Winchester specifically to deal with the parking problem in town.

The Mass. Executive Office of Community Affairs granted $6,000 to Winchester to improve the parking situation in Winchester Center. That money will be matched by $2,000 from Winchester's Future Fund. This fund is supported by the town's Economic Development committee, which comprises both town employees and residents.

The lack of parking spaces in downtown Winchester has been an ongoing bone of contention among businesspersons — especially since the train no longer stops in Woburn and commuters are parking in Winchester all day.

But now hope is on the way. Originally Economic Development Coordinator John Connery applied for a $9,000 grant with a local match of $3,000.

He determined that $12,000 was needed to successfully complete a downtown parking study.

Even though Winchester will only have $8,000, Connery said "the study will continue in its entirety."

Even if it means singlehandedly completing some of the work involved himself.

Connery said he will take on the cordon count aspect of the investigation.

This part of the overall parking study involves counting every vehicle and person in the downtown area at 15 minute intervals to determine the number of cars parked in the area in relation with the traffic flow.

"I'll do this myself," Connery said, adding that he will try to recruit volunteers. "I want to use the $8,000 to conduct a complete parking study. We just can't have a watered down study or else the whole thing would not be worth it for Winchester."

The $8,000 will be used for a general work program aimed at getting the most out of available parking spaces and also to investigate additional parking options.

"We want to maximize our supply of spaces," Connery said. "The study will determine the best possible way our supply can serve the business community."

Connery will be recruiting a consulting firm with a "good track record in this field," he said to conduct a parking inventory examining every parking space in Winchester, drawing up a supply and demand analysis and reviewing all potential locations for additional parking.

The study will also examine the merits of parking meters to determine if they are really helping the parking problem and evaluate the effectiveness of parking tickets.

"Right now the parking supply does not serve the business community as well as it could," Connery said. "We want to determine the best possible way our supply can serve them."

The three to four month study will take place in the fall when "everybody is going full blast," Connery said explaining that it is foolish to conduct the study in the summer when downtown traffic is at its lowest.

However, the first great hurdle in improving the parking situation has been cleared.

Obtaining the money was not an easy task and Connery is quite proud of his accomplishment. Out of a total of $850,000 requests by communities for grants, the state allocated a total of $190,000. "We got a pretty good piece of it," Connery boasted.

Representative Whip Saltmarsh was very pleased about the grant. "Now that we have the services of John Connery to prepare funding applications, and a progressive and perceptive Chamber of Commerce and Board of Selectmen, I'm confident the talk stage is behind us and the action is well underway," he said.

The money comes from the Urban Renewal statute in the state under a section dealing with planning advance and grants which allocates money for revitalization if a town can prove they need the money and have an ongoing revitalization project.

To do this, Connery placed a great deal of emphasis on the negative impact of long-term parkers in Winchester who use mass transportation and end up parking all day in town.

Describing this situation as "detrimental," Connery said the state viewed the problem as their responsibility. Bringing it to their attention he said, "turned the trick" for obtaining the grant.

Connery is especially concerned with this situation in the overall revitalization of Winchester Center. "This creates a shortage of parking within the commercial area, without the advantage of profit for the merchants," he stressed. The awarding of the grant was a first for Winchester, Connery pointed out noting that the town has not applied for much public money in the past.

"I want short and long term results from this study," he said. The long term results will be the acquisition of new parking spaces and the short term results will be more effective management of existing spaces.

Parents Plead For V-O Teacher

By CHRISTINE DEMKOWYCH

For the second week in a row, a group of concerned parents urged committee members not to transfer a teacher from Vinson-Owen school.

The parents are supporting Kay Rielly, a sixth-grade math teacher at Vinson-Owen who was notified on May 14 of her involuntary transfer to Lincoln school.

According to Rielly, the transfer is unfair. "I haven't been honestly dealt with," she said.

But the question now up for consideration is whether Rielly needs to be moved in the first place.

Bill Warnock, the teacher assigned to replace Rielly at Vinson-Owen submitted a letter of resignation to the school committee just last Friday.

Despite the recent notice of his resignation, numerous parents remain unsure and believe Rielly's reassignment will stand firm.

During Monday night's meeting, the committee acted upon the resignation and made no attempt to assure parents of Rielly's position.

Personnel Director Daine Hall, who oversees the transfer procedure said it may be two or three weeks before there is any sign of an outcome.

American Alarm's Move To Woburn Meets Trouble

By SUSAN SCHNECK

Plans to move American Alarm to 36 Cross st. on the Winchester-Woburn border came to a temporary and perhaps permanent halt last week.

The only obstacle blocking the move was a zoning variance written in 1976 prohibiting vehicles to use the Winchester driveway that leads to 36 Cross st., Woburn, after 7 p.m. American Alarm had sought to modify the variance to allow some vehicles to use the drive after that time.

But the Board of Appeals informed American Alarm that they no longer have the power to issue a new use variance.

Last week, the Board of Appeals denied American Alarm President Richard Sampson permission to modify the zoning law, saying that Sampson's "amendment" changed the existing variance so much that he was actually seeking a new zoning variance which they cannot grant. "We couldn't even evaluate the merits of the case because we do not have the authorization to issue a use variance," said Building Commissioner Dominic Serratore.

Board of Appeals Chairman Gus

Alexander said he believes the Board should have the power to grant use variances and said he has publicly stated so in the past.

Sampson said he was "very disappointed" about the decision adding, "It appears that we won't be able to go ahead with the project now."

Sampson now has a few options open to him if he wants to continue working to complete his plans to move to Cross st., according to Alexander.

He could appeal the Board of Appeals decision to the Middlesex Superior Court or he could look for a new access to the property.

Or he could take the matter up at Town Meeting this fall. There, he could request that they rezone the driveway from residential to commercial property or he could ask them to amend the zoning by-law to permit the Board of Appeals to grant use variances.

Sampson said he is still studying the decision and does not know yet whether he will look into any of those options. But he is certain that he will, "not go the

Summer Band Tunes Up For Season

Winchester's Summer Band Concert Series will be under the leadership of a new director this year, but everyone involved is still expecting a successful year.

Fred Murray, who began the program 14 years ago, is stepping down for a year. But he's found an able replacement in Thomas Dumas, who is the music director for the Waltham School System.

Dumas is an old friend of Murray's — Dumas student-taught under Murray in the Winchester Music Department.

"I've read about the program for a long time, and have heard about it more than you normally would," Dumas said. "I'm looking forward to leading the band."

"I'll follow very closely in (Murray's) footsteps," said Dumas. "After all, it has been very successful."

That it has. Murray started the program in 1967, with a band of only 17 members.

"I remember doing concerts with only two trumpets," Murray recalled. "Now we have 15 to 25."

From a start of 17, the band has grown to about 120 members. Not all the members show up for every concert — there are usually about 85 musicians playing any one concert — and Murray feels that's one of the strengths of the program.

"There's no pressure," he said. "If people want to get away for two weeks, and miss a couple concerts, there is no problem. That's why we get the people to come out."

Murray said his band consists of everyone from 10-year-olds to senior citizens. Last year, a trumpet player who used to tour with Harry James and Tommy Dorsey sat in for the concerts.

Of course, Murray said, the backbone of the band is students from the Winchester High School Band.

Band members are also drawn from surrounding communities, all eager to pay in a band that was featured in Time magazine for being one of the few summer bands in the country.

Murray said the band plays everything from "Brahms to Bop," but he admits that he likes the show tunes best.

"They have a lot of appeal and the audience loves them," he said.

Murray said his favorite concert of the year is when the nursing and elderly homes in the area bring down the residents for a concert.

"It always gives an extra dimension, it gives everyone in the band a thrill," he said.

But he added the highlight of the year has to be the final concert, when the band performs the "1812 Overture," complete with cannons and a musket-wielding troop of militia.

Rehearsals for the band will be starting next week, and anyone who wants to join the band can do so by showing up for the first rehearsal on Wednesday, July 1, at 7 p.m. in the High School Auditorium. Rehearsals will be every Monday following the first meeting.

Because of the change of leadership, the concert series will begin a week later than scheduled.

They will be held every Wednesday from July 15 through August 17, behind the Town Hall near the Duck Pond.

A NEW DIRECTION — The long-time director of the Winchester Summer Band Concerts, Fred Murray (right) is stepping down this year, and handing his baton to Waltham Musical Director Thomas Dumas (left). Rehearsals for the band start July 1, and on July 15, the ducks will be dancing as the band performs behind Town Hall.

could eliminate, encourage groups not to sponsor car washes as a means of raising funds," he said.

Selectman John J. Williams also questioned the value of a daytime watering ban. "It (a daytime ban) relieves only the pressure drain on the system, not on water conservation itself," he said.

Selectman Wade M. Welch said he was uncertain about the ability of the town to enforce mandatory restrictions. "Why not ban sprinkling altogether?" he asked. "I'm not enthusiastic about bans that can't be enforced, but if we're going to do it, we should go with an all or nothing shot."

Saraco insisted that mandatory restrictions should not be implemented until after voluntary efforts have proven ineffective. "We're saying to the people of Winchester, 'We're going to slap you in the face — you're not allowed to use (water).'" he said.

"I don't think it's fair," Saraco said. "We're not at a crucial point."

Welch said the town's inability to enforce a ban would make it a "big, fat joke."

But Chairman Edward O'Connell said he doubted voluntary guidelines would have any impact. "I don't think people will take us as seriously as I wish they would with a voluntary ban," he said.

Despite the disagreements, the board stood together behind Selectman Alan B. Macdonald's motion to "strongly recommend" that Winchester residents voluntarily refrain from using water outdoors during the day.

O'Connell directed Warrington to notify the board in three weeks as to whether the guidelines have significantly affected the amount of water used.

Running Racquet Closes Down

By GREG ANRIG JR.

When the door to the Running Racquet sporting goods store closed for the last time a week ago, owner Ted Rose's four-year battle to keep his business alive finally ended in defeat.

Since opening the 555 Main St. store in 1977 with the savings he earned as a school teacher and a loan from the Small Business Association, Rose says he has spent all the energy he could muster to keep creditors and bill collectors off his back.

"A lot of blood, sweat and tears went into that store," said Rose, who lives with his wife, Joyce, and six children in Burlington.

Despite his efforts, the 41-year-old Rose was forced to turn his store over to the SBA in late May because he failed to repay $20,000 of a $28,000 loan from the association. And last week, the remaining tennis racquets, sweat suits and sneakers in the Running Racquet were auctioned off to other sporting goods store owners by the Henry Gray Jr. Auction Co. of Everett, a firm hired by the SBA.

Rose's store faced problems from the outset. "Business was always bad," Rose said. "We had a good deal of trouble making a living at it."

Although Rose had some success in attracting orders from several high schools and colleges, he said he could not sustain enough walk-in business to convince any banks his store would be a safe investment.

"I applied (for a loan) to one bank last October and didn't get a response until May — naturally, the answer was no," Rose said.

While he was waiting to hear about a loan from the banks, the Running Racquet was closed down temporarily in January by the SBA for failing to pay a bill Rose claimed had been paid in August. "They came in and changed the locks and told the neighbors we were out of business, which didn't help matters," Rose said.

After Rose and the SBA straightened out their disagreement, a court allowed the store to reopen under the protection provided by the federal Bankruptcy Act. Under Chapter 12, the SBA paid off the store's outstanding bills while Rose was allowed to reorganize the business and seek additional financial help.

But even though sales had begun to pick up this spring, Rose said, banks still were unwilling to give him a hand. "Banks are simply afraid to take chances on small businesses," he said.

According to attorney Lawrence M. Murray who, with partner Henry F. Quill, leased the building to Rose, no new tenant has yet signed a lease, although he expects someone to sign shortly.

Meanwhile, Rose remains uncertain about his future, although he has had interviews with several shoe companies. "In a short period of time, I've buried both my father and my business," Rose said. "I'm wondering what's next."

Police Staying "On Top Of Things"

Police Chief John McHugh told selectmen Monday night he expects the police force will be able to "stay on top of things" this summer.

McHugh told the board that the force generally faces a lull in activity during late June as families go away on vacation. Control problems generally pick up greatly during mid-August, however, McHugh said.

Board chairman Edward F. O'Connell asked McHugh if the chief planned a special campaign among police to crack down on summer crime, especially problems caused by excessive alcohol drinking.

McHugh responded by saying Winchester does better than most area towns in restraining alcohol abuse.

"I frequently check with police chiefs in surrounding communities and they're envious of my position," McHugh said. "Any one of the towns that borders Winchester has extraordinary problems. We're talking about a small minority of kids that continually become involved in drinking-related problems," he said. "By and large, they're just good kids."

Bank Joins Condo Company

Last Friday, the Winchester Savings Bank and the Codman Company of Boston signed agreements to form a joint venture known as Waterfield Square Associates. Winchester Savings Bank, through a subsidiary, Winchester Development Corporation, will become a general partner with a subsidiary of Codman Company, known as Codman Condominium Corporation IV.

In addition to the formation of the joint venture, the Washington School on Highland Avenue was purchased by the partnership for a price of $305,000. The school, built in 1927, will be converted into eighteen condominium units. It is planned that construction will commence immediately, bank officials announced.

A Bank spokesman called the joint venture and school purchase "a precedent-setting endeavor for the Winchester Savings Bank. "In addition to funding a major portion of the equity and in keeping with its commitment to the Winchester community, the bank will advance approximately $1,500,000 for the construction of the project and has reserved over $1,000,000 for future mortgage commitments on the individual units," the official said.

Plans call for a model unit to be available for inspection in the Fall of 1981 and that completion of the project will be within eighteen months.

Codman Company, active in the real estate field since 1872, has been involved in forty condominium projects throughout New England. They are handling the sale of the units.

He Won't Be Watching At The Corner Anymore

The traffic fumes have been getting to the lungs of Joe Bigiotti lately, so he has decided to quit his job as a crossing guard.

Bigiotti's been crossing kids at the intersection of Church, Cambridge and High streets since Ambrose School opened 13 years ago.

Bigiotti said the intersection is the busiest in town, and added that it is so bad, Safety Officer John McKinley, who is in charge of the crossing guards, is having a hard time filling the spot.

But he quickly admits that he would have loved to stay at the corner.

"There's no money or gas in it, but it makes you get up in the morning," said the 84-year-old Johnson rd. resident. "It keeps me busy, and that's why I like it."

"I'm going to miss the kids," he added, "but I can't breathe."

Sitting in the midst of a retirement party in his honor, held by his fellow crossing guards in the home of Mary Langone, Bigiotti sat clutching a sheaf of letters from children.

One reads "Thank you for crossing all us Budds all these years. We'll miss you." (signed) Emily Budd.

"Every year I get letter from them," noted Bigiotti. "They're terrific."

This year, aside from the inch-thick pile of letters, Bigiotti received a special gift — a velvet-wrapped box filled with cookies made by two of his charges.

"On the top, there was a card that said, 'Just for you Joe,'" he explained. "And inside, wrapped in foil, was a batch of cookies with letters on them, spelling my name."

Bigiotti has always been a friend to kids, especially when he owned and ran Bigiotti's Ice Cream shop in Charlestown for 50 years.

You make a lot of young friends in the ice cream business.

"They were never any trouble," he recalled, "and I used to have quite a few kids in the store. After a ball game, the place would be filled with uniforms."

When Bigiotti retired from the ice cream business, he went right to work as a crossing guard, so he could keep busy. "I started working for my father when I was 14," he said. "And never stopped."

And even now, when he's retired, Bigiotti plans to keep working.

"I'll work around the yard — I'll probably wear my uniform when I work," he said. "It gets worse if you stop, that's why you've got to keep going."

Long-Term Stress Lecture Scheduled

Learning to cope with everyday and long-term stress will be discussed at a lecture on June 25, the last in a series of free lectures in Reading by physicians and health care professionals.

Open to all community members, the lecture is offered as a community service by New England Memorial Hospital and will be held at the Reading Community Center, 52 Sanborn st., Reading.

Scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m., the lecture is entitled "Stress Control and Relaxation." It will be presented by health educator Bob Stotz and physical therapist David Moore, both of New England Memorial Hospital in Stoneham.

Stotz will discuss the relationship of stress to disease and methods of coping with and reducing everyday and long-term stress, while Moore will demonstrate relaxation techniques.

Three-Mile Island Remembered

A former page at the Winchester Public Library has published a book on the Three Mile Island nuclear mishap, and that book is now part of the library's collection.

The page-turned-author, Robert Leppzer, a graduate of Winchester High School in 1976, has entitled the book "Voices From Three Mile Island".

He writes that the book "is the story of America's near catastrophic nuclear accident as told by the people who lived through it - and who must live with its aftermath."

The thirteen interviewees all live within a five mile radius of Three Mile Island. They are farmers, doctors, business people, housewives, a veterinarian, and the mayor of Middletown, Penn.

The interviews disclose what it was like in that city at the time of the accident and what it's been like since - living with the releases of Krypton-85 radioactive gas into the atmosphere.

One interviewee, Dr. Michael Gluck, gave a typical response, describing the time of crisis:

"The anguish at the height of the accident was really intense. When we left our house, we had no idea we were evacuating. We just took the clothes on our back...."

And to the question "What's it been like for you living here over the past year....", a typical answer was, "Well, there's a feeling of uncertainty. We don't really have any peace of mind... We are not sure that there isn't continual leakage. We have no real assurance."

The deformities in farm animals within five miles of TMI were beginning to occur before the accident. The anger at the utility company and the government is voiced by many, along with suspicions and fear.

Mayor Bob Reid quotes one young girl as saying, "Will I have a healthy child if I have a child in this area?"

Leppzer's book gives us something to think about. It was aired over 45 radio stations on the first anniversary of the Three Mile Island accident.

The Winchester Library also possesses two other productions by him: "The Lessons of Vietnam" and "Wounded Knee: roots of the earth" both on cassettes.

appeal route," he said. Sampson also said that another access to the property is not feasible.

Sampson said he may begin looking into other towns such as Burlington or Woburn, but is disappointed as he had hoped to remain a Winchester business.

Sampson began plans for relocation one year ago. He had wanted to transform one quarter of an acre of vacant property at 36 Cross st. into the new headquarters for American Alarm. Although the actual site for the building's construction is in Woburn, Sampson said American Alarm would remain a Winchester business as he would continue his membership in the Winchester Chamber of Commerce.

Sampson had received all the necessary approval from Woburn town officials to construct the building. His only remaining obstacle was the residentially zoned access in Winchester.

The Board granted the owner a variance to use the driveway for commercial travel in 1976 with three conditions.

The driveway could not be used for commercial purposes on Sundays or holidays. On all other days, the driveway was only to be used for commercial activity between the hours of 7 a.m. and 7 p.m.

The owner also must use reasonable efforts to prevent excessive noise.

Since that time the Board of Appeals has lost the authority to grant use variances.

Sampson had requested a change in the wording of the zoning use variance to allow vehicles weighing under three quarters of a ton to use the driveway. He said he will need the driveway for vans that weigh one-half to three-quarters tons.

Although most of his business is conducted during business hours, Sampson said a few vans or cars must pass through the driveway after 7 p.m.

Because Sampson's amendment to the variance changed two of the three conditions, the Board ruled that he was actually seeking a use variance and not an amendment.

In their six-page decision, the Board did write that Sampson had made strong arguments as to why, if they were so empowered, they should grant a variance.

"If we had the ability to consider this petition on its merits, we might very well grant the petitioner (Sampson) the relief he seeks," the Board of Appeals wrote. But for now, they do not have that power and Sampson must look for other options for relocating his company.

Scholarship Foundation Awards 34

During the Winchester High School graduation ceremonies, David Mortensen of the Scholarship Foundation announced that "initial aid" had been awarded to 34 of the graduates.

In addition, one student who graduated last year will receive aid to start further education and one student who graduated from the Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocation School received an award at graduation ceremonies the previous day.

Scholarship Foundation money comes from approximately 250 individuals in Winchester who have contributed to the Foundation this year. Many of the organizations in town also raise money for this purpose.

The Winchester Education Assn. makes a substantial contribution annually, this year giving $1000. Fund-raising events are held and the proceeds turned over to the Scholarship Foundation. This year a talent show was held at the high school and the Student Union and Scholarship Foundation both benefitted, according to Paul Davis, treasurer of the WEA.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars, Post 3719, gives annually to the Scholarship Foundation. This gift, says Henry Heitz, is given in memory of Paul Connors, a member of the VFW who was particularly active and involved with young people.

Other organizations that have donated include the EnKa Society, the Winchester Art Assn., the Winchester Garden Club, the Winchester Jayceeettes, the Winchester Wellesley Club, and others whose gifts have not yet been received.

Further, there is the Fourth District Court (Woburn District Court) Judge's Scholarships earmarked for students interested in nursing and business administration.

In addition to individuals and organizations, almost twenty businesses have made contributions.

The Foundation's objective is to help deserving students continue their education and achieve their own educational goals. Clearly, it has become a town-wide effort.

Auction Of Unclaimed Property June 26

State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane announced that approximately $50,000 worth of unclaimed property will be auctioned by the Treasury in compliance with the State's unclaimed property law. The auction, which is open to the public, will be held June 26 from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. at the Gardner Auditorium in the State House in Boston.

To afford opportunities for individuals to inspect the merchandise there will be three exhibitions prior to the auction on: June 22 at Cape Cod Community College in West Barnstable; June 24 at Worcester State College in Worcester; and June 25 at the Gardner Auditorium in Boston. Exhibitions will be conducted from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. each day.

Mario Scenna, Serv. Mgr.

If you don't have a spare key stashed away, you may have to fish a bent coat hanger through the window to unlock the car door by hooking the hanger on the lock lever... The ignition key generally unlocks the door... If the ignition key is lost, however, you will have to call a locksmith... But next time, hide a key somewhere on the car... You can buy keyholders for just this purpose... You can also wire an ignition key under a fender or to the frame of the car... Of course, we all know that the best thing is not to lose your car keys at all...

presented by the house. He added that he was afraid the house version would result in new taxes.

The house budget, he explained, was based on a tax revenue estimate $200 million higher than what the senate thinks will come in.

"I'm afraid if the house version passes, we're liable to have a revenue shortfall, because our estimates were off," Saltmarsh said. "If that happens, the state will have to raise more taxes, to which I am vehemently opposed."

Because the senate used a more conservative revenue estimate, Saltmarsh continued, there probably won't be any new taxes. And since the senate version gives more state aid with less revenue, the difference will come by cutting down the budget.

"The senate version of the budget accomplished what I see as the objectives of 2.5," Saltmarsh said. "It provided for no new taxes, it increased state aid, and it pared down the state budget."

State Sen. Sam Rotondi agreed with Saltmarsh's assessment of the budget. "All year long people have been saying, 'when will the state get the message and realize that 2.5 was not directed just to cities and towns,'" he said. "We have to show the public we are ready to bite the bullet and make cuts."

However, those cuts will come at the expense of state jobs, according to both of Winchester's legislators.

The senate version of the bill would cut 4,000 state jobs, and eliminate another 12,000 unfilled positions.

Saltmarsh said there will be cuts in human services, higher education, and safety agencies such as the Registry of Motor Vehicles. In all, 32 agencies will be cut, and another 25 not funded.

"Programs will be effected, programs many legislators have championed for years," Saltmarsh said. "And maybe that's why the house turned it down."

Saltmarsh hopes the conference committee can reach a decision on the budget before the fiscal year ends June 31.

If the state goes into the fiscal year without a budget, the legislators will be forced to adopt a "one-twelfth" budget for each month the whole budget goes unapproved.

Saltmarsh warned that "if we go on a one-twelfth budget, we'll lose the momentum to make cuts, and increase local aid."

Saltmarsh said he thinks the conference committee will come out in support of a budget close to that proposed by the senate.

He noted that in the conference committee, the senate delegation is being led by the veteran Chet Atkins, while the house's leader is the relatively untested Michael Crieghton.

And he added that any other legislator should realize they have to provide more local aid.

"Anyone who doesn't care about local aid will be in trouble next election," he said.

go there almost every night to break up the gangs."

The Residential Area 120 designation would allow the area to be changed from industrial to residential with a single rezoning order. But Garcia said that "certain covenants" would be applied to such an agreement. Covenants are agreements between a property owner and the town limiting use of the land in return for a zoning change.

The rezoning must be approved by the Zoning Board of Appeal and the project must undergo Site Plan Review under Winchester by-laws. The Site Plan review would be initiated by the Zoning Board of Appeal.

"In this case, the Conservation Commission and the Planning Board review the submitted information," Tseckares said.

★ Trucking

woman of the Winchester Planning Board, is to present "a preliminary analysis of traffic and land use conditions affecting the area, to identify potential solutions and their implications, and to scope further action necessary to pursue projects" for the area.

The MAPC notified Town Manager Tom Groux on May 11 that the application for technical assistance which was submitted jointly by the towns of Winchester and Woburn last November had been granted and was earmarked for a study, one of 15 the MAPC will conduct this year.

Crandall said the Planning Board would like specifically to see an "origination and destination" study done, one which would pinpoint the exact routes of all trucks passing through the area.

But according to Bates, if that happens at all, the responsibility for doing it will probably fall on the town, not the MAPC.

"We do not have the money or staff to do origination and destination surveys," Bates said. "We're not even sure one is necessary at this point. But if the residents feel that one should be done, they will probably have to supply the staffing and funds for it themselves." The funding for MAPC study, which will cost between $4,000 and $5,000, will come from contributions the MAPC receives from member communities, Bates explained.

One possible solution which may be suggested by the study is that an access road be built to change the flow of trucking to and from the industrial complex.

But Bates said he doesn't yet know where the funding for the completion of such a project would come from.

Crandall added that details about the coordination of work on the study between the Planning Board and the MPAC could not be worked out until she sees something "in writing" from the Council.

Boston-based firm, has been selected by Quill and Murray to head the project.

"We have a positive feeling for the concept, but the issue still has to be worked out," Garcia said.

Postal Workers Picket Today

Twenty five postal workers in Winchester will join a nationwide informational picket today to "bring the Postmaster General to a fair and equitable decision," in negotiating their contracts, said Winchester postal worker Don McNiff.

The picketers hope to ensure that the Postmaster General will "bargain in good faith," he said.

Their contract expires July 20 at midnight and McNiff claims that a new one was supposed to have been negotiated by April. He claims that the Postmaster General delayed Bates said notification would come to Winchester "soon," either during this month or July.

Most of the trucks coming onto Holton and East sts. travel along one of two approximate routes, according to Marian Comita, of 179 Cross st., who has lived in the area since the industrial traffic began coming through the neighborhood.

Those coming off rte. 93 usually drive along Montvale ave., Washington st., Swanton st., Loring ave., and Cross st., turning left on Holton or East sts.

And others leave Route 128 to travel on Winn st. in Woburn, continuing around the Woburn rotary and along Main and Cross sts. in Winchester, also turning left into the residential industrial area.

The new MAPC study is similar in nature to one conducted in May of 1980 by that body and other agencies on problem areas along Route 93.

In that study, Winchester was only one of a number of problem areas discussed. All that resulted from that study for this area was three alternative solutions: widen Holton st.; build an access route for the trucks; or ban building in the area until another answer could be found.

None of those alternatives was acted upon. One alternative prompted strong objections from Holton st. residents,

Towns Signs Waste Disposal Contract

Selectmen also signed the contract with UOP, the disposal firm that wants to take the town's trash and turn it into electricity.

Selectmen voted to sign the 20-year UOP is planning to build a 1500-ton a day waste disposal plant in N. Andover. Metals would be recovered from trash collected, and the rest would be burned for electricity.

Profits from the sale of the electricity and the metal would be sent back to the towns, as a reduced fee for each ton. UOP estimates it will cost the town $16 per ton when the plant opens in 1985.

To operate at a profit, the plant needs at least 900 tons per day. With Winchester's signing, 200 tons a day from seven towns are committed to the plant.

If the UOP hasn't signed up enough towns to get 900 tons by Dec. 31, the contract with the town will be voided.

But for now, the trucks are still coming through, and the problems are still there.

And homeowners near the industrial area are still worrying about their children and waking up in the middle of the night and waiting. Waiting to see if the renewed attention they've gotten will make a difference this time.

Benincasa's skepticism is based on her reaction to the alternatives proposed in 1980.

"They talk about widening the street — where are they going to bring it to, our front doors?" she questioned.

And Ewald's feelings are optimistic but guarded.

"We would love to see an access road built," she said. "That should have been the first thing that was done, though. We are approaching this problem backwards."

But for now, the trucks are still coming through, and the problems are still there.

And homeowners near the industrial area are still worrying about their children and waking up in the middle of the night and waiting. Waiting to see if the renewed attention they've gotten will make a difference this time.

Laurie Glynn

Best In New England

Laurie Glynn Running Out Of Competition

By GREG ANRIG JR.

When Laurie Glynn finished first in her division at the national speed skating tournament three years ago, she decided to take up a sport that would offer stiffer competition.

But now, the 15-year-old Glynn is finding a shortage of challengers in long-distance running as well.

After an undefeated season of running in the Middlesex League for Winchester High School this spring, the freshman went on to finish second in the outdoor mile at the All-State Meet and capped her year with a victory in the 1600-meter run at the New England High School Track and Field Meet.

Even with her success, though, Glynn shows no signs of letting up. Six days a week, she either runs or speed walks — regardless of the weather. But Glynn admits she doesn't always enjoy running. "It would be a lot harder if I weren't as good at it," she said. "But then again I probably wouldn't have gotten started if I didn't like it."

Glynn says she has only one problem with running — concentration. "In road races, sometimes you space out, even though you're not supposed to," she said.

"When you run on tracks, there are always people cheering you on — you think more about he cheers than anything else," Glynn said.

Despite the incentive noisy fans provide at track meets, Glynn says she finds cross country races more interesting. "There's always the scenery in cross country — not that you're looking at it — but it's better than running around in circles," she said.

Glynn, who lives with her parents and 12-year-old brother Robbie at 20 Churchill rd., said her family helps her perform better.

Robbie Glynn, who also came in first at the speed skating nationals in 1978, often runs with her. "Robbie and I are similar runners — it's easy for us to push each other," she said.

Glynn's parents, Robert and Jane, attend most of her track meets and offer advice, although her mother has become less demanding since taking up running herself, Glynn said.

"Now she knows how it is," Glynn said. "She dies of heat, too."

Glynn says unfavorable weather can slow her down, but she doesn't spend much time worrying about it. "There's nothing you can do about the heat," she said. "And you can always bundle up when it snows — you just have to do the best you can without thinking too much about the weather."

Merchants Climb Out Of Grave

The Winchester Merchants showed signs of life this weekend after a deathly performance against the Hosmer Chiefs last Thursday.

The 12-1 loss to the Chiefs provided little worth remembering for Winchester fans and players, although local man Don Allard had fun swinging the bat for Hosmer. Allard knocked in three runs with a home run, triple and single during the rout.

Friday night's game against Elms started out like another disaster, with the Merchants falling far behind early.

It looked for a while like the only bright spot during the night would be the performance of newcomer Pete Ballerini, who pitched two and two-thirds innings of shutout relief. Ballerini, a lanky righthander, will co-captain the Tufts University Jumbos baseball team next season.

With or without Ballerini, given the Merchants record and the apparent invincibility of Elms pitcher Scott Almeida, who no-hit the Merchants the last time he faced them, prospects for a comeback looked bleak.

But when the Elms manager decided to have mercy on Winchester and replaced Almeida with an 11-3 lead, the Merchants hatched out of their shell.

Winchester began its new lease on life with catcher Mike Genieski's double, followed by soon-to-be-hero Bobby Morin's single. After another single from rightfielder Brian Cassidy, shortstop Glen Watson sent a three-run homer to centerfield. But just as the Elms manager began kicking himself with the score 11-7, two Merchants fled out.

Two outs does not an inning make, however. After the second pop out, Bill Enos and Ron Dokus successively singled and Rich Ingemi walked, bringing the tying run to the plate.

Genieski, up for the second time in the inning, hit a clutch single that brought in another run and kept the bases loaded for the ninth batter in the lineup, Morin.

Although Morin did not point to where he would hit the ball beforehand, his grand slam off the glove of centerfielder Mike Lavery may inspire legend around these parts.

As Morin trotted across home plate to score the ninth run of the inning with the sun setting behind him, the umpires decided it was too dark to continue and the Merchants were victorious.

Apparently pooped out after Friday's explosion, the Merchants spent most of Sunday night leaving runners on bases. Nevertheless, they were able to tie Arlex, 0-0.

Pitcher Dan Broderick kept Arlex from stepping on home plate, going the entire seven innings while allowing only four hits. Broderick also showed a nasty pick-off move, bagging two Arlex runners who strayed too far from first base.

Broderick was helped out by some uncharacteristically tough Merchant defense. Willie Paglia made two nice catches in center and most of the infield helped put out a runner caught in a pickle between second and third.

On offense, the Merchants were less successful, leaving the bases loaded in each of the last three innings. Despite several walks and an Arlex error, the Merchants could muster only three scattered hits while striking out nine times against pitcher Phil Sartori.

The Merchants are scheduled to close out June playing at Elms Thursday night and at Manchester Field Friday and Sunday nights against Hosmer and Wakefield, respectively. All games are slated to start at 6.

Ball Five — By Greg Anrig Fan Keeps Eye On Ball

By GREG ANRIG JR.

The Merchants' fan sits in the back row of the bleachers to watch his team play yet another game.

He knows the Merchants well, alternating loud, enthusiastic cheers for Glennie, Willie and Billy with quiet analysis of each player's skills.

But despite the fan's encouragement, his team falls behind 5-1 to the Elms — half an hour after the first pitch Friday night.

"I don't think I'll be coming to many more of these games," the Merchants' fan tells the man next to him. He smiles as he speaks, but his voice sounds sad.

Meanwhile, most of the 25 other people sitting in the bleachers ignore the game in front of them.

A man with a radio tuned to a sports call-in show stretches across three rows and stares at an empty space in left-center field.

A child tells his mother he wants to go

A group of men gripe about the major league baseball strike.

But the Merchants' fan keeps watching the game.

"C'mon ump, that pitch was off his shoetop," he shouts.

"If a pitcher hasn't got it, he hasn't got it — let's get someone else in there," the fan tells his friend, but not loudly enough for the manager sitting nearby to hear.

"Throw him a good fastball — the best pitch he can hit — let him hit it, and pray," he says, again too softly for anyone on the field to pick up.

As the game progresses, the Merchants' fan begins grunting when an opponent smacks a baseball to an uncovered area of Manchester Field. After each grunt, he sits quietly for a few seconds, then begins talking about the School Committee Approves 37 Coaches

Man To Coach Girls' Basketball Team, Five Other Appointments "Pending"

The School Committee Monday approved 37 athletic coaching appointments for the 1981-1982 school year. This included hiring a new head coach, Joseph A. DiSarcina, for girls basketball.

DiSarcina was one of four applicants — two men and two women — from inside and outside the Winchester school system who applied for the job after Athletic Director William A. Collela advertised for the position.

Collela gave DiSarcina a strong recommendation at the School Committee meeting Monday.

"DiSarcina is a man with extensive coaching background who was highly recommended by many people as an outstanding athlete, coach and person," Collela said.

However Collela did acknowledge that DiSarcina will be at a disadvantage being a male coach of a girls basketball team. School Committee members also voiced concern about the problems that could transpire as a result of sex differences.

"I want to know what he (DiSarcina) will do while the girls are in the locker room?" asked School Committee member Constance Papas.

Collela said that the assistant coach position, not yet filled, will have to be a female for that very reason noting that there will be times when locker room supervision or pep talks will be in order.

High school Principal Vincent Larocco said they do have a female in mind now who he feels is qualified for the position but hiring her has not been official yet.

DiSarcina's background includes coaching in Chelsea and Somerville High School where he is currently employed as a teacher. He has also coached baseball.

His long list of athletic experience includes two year years of minor league baseball experience in California, Captain of a professional baseball team in Lode, CA., and second round draft pick in professional baseball.

School Committee Chairman Roger Bauman noted Monday that the Committee had also appointed five coaches named "pending". Larocco said two of those positions, girls assistant soccer and tumblettes coaches will be filled this August and that he is sure girls softball will be filled soon after. He did not know when the gymnastics coach would be hired.

Coaching appointments have often been discussed at School Committee meetings and School Committee member Mary Jean Weylman has repeatedly emphasized the importance of evaluating the coaches and their assistants to ensure that only the best people for the team and the individual players are coaching. Weylman has said that there are many good, qualified people to choose from and the school system should make certain they have the right people coaching.

The policy has been that Collela evaluates each head coach and they, in turn, evaluate their assistants.

Collela told the school School Committee Monday that he will now personally evaluate the assistant coaches also. In previous meetings Weylman has stressed the importance of evaluating each coach and she said Monday that she was pleased with the change in policy.

Larocco said this was done to bring a consistency to the evaluation process. "We felt it was in the best interest of everyone to have a second evaluation also," he said.

The School Committee officially congratulated boys' basketball coach Chris Scanlon and the Sachems Monday for winning the New England Tennis championship.

Collela has also been trying to raise money to compensate for budget cuts in athletics and said he has not raised the amount he had hoped to by this point. But still optimistic, Collela said he is looking forward to the end of the summer when people return from vacation and realize how much money they have left over. That comment evoked some laughter from School Committee members. Undaunted, Collela said, "My original plan is not to go door to door."

Bob Bigelow Recalls Wearing The Green

By CAROLYN KITCH

For basketball fans in New England, the last month has been a time of celebration. It's been easy to feel a part of the Irish, the green and white victory.

Bob Bigelow knows what it feels like to be a part of the Celtics for a season. He's been there. For Bigelow, though, a Winchester native who retired in 1979 after a four-year pro basketball career, it hasn't always been that easy.

He had a taste of the NBA — something thousands of amateur ball players dream of but never know. In the last decade, Bigelow has lived all over the country and has played against some of the best in the business.

But his experience wasn't quite what he had hoped for. After moving frequently and seeing more of the game from the bench than he preferred to, Bigelow retired at the age of 25.

And, a decade after he graduated from Winchester High School, it looks like he has come back to town to stay.

Bigelow played ball for three years on the WHS team, but his early training wasn't only suburban.

"I played much of my early ball in Roxbury, in the city where basketball is really, really played right," he remembers, sipping iced tea in the kitchen of his two-story, three-bedroom house at 69 Church st.

He left Winchester in 1971 to attend the University of Pennsylvania, a decision which was, for him, one that was both academic and athletic.

"This was my home, but basketball wasn't really all that big a thing around here then. That was the time of Bobby Orr and the Bruins, and Boston was a hockey town. Penn was out of Boston, but not really that far away."

When he graduated, as a history major, from Penn in 1975, he was drafted by the Kansas City Kings, with whom he signed a long-term contract. He played with the Kings for two years but was released in November of 1977.

That was when the Celtics came into the picture for him. "After the Kings, I practiced a lot, and, at the time, the coach of the Celtics (Satch Sanders) was a friend of mine, so I played with them for the rest of that year," he explains.

The year Bigelow was in Boston, the 1977-78 season, was also the last year of play for Celtics great John Havlicek.

But a stay in Beantown for the 6'7" lanky, blonde-haired forward wasn't meant to be permanent. The following season, Bigelow tried out again and was cut from the team.

From there, he went west to sign with the San Diego Clippers. "I think that was my favorite place. I got to play more minutes there than any other place," he says.

But not enough of them. At the end of 1979, Bigelow retired from basketball and came home.

TRIPPED UP — Warrior Sean Curran dodges the knee of Dynamo Stefanie Geoghegan during last Thursday's game. Stefanie scored both goals during the Dynamo's victory — one on a penalty shot and the other on a breakaway. Both teams were undefeated in their leagues during the season.

SWITCHING SPORTS — The North Shore Women's Tennis League switched sports last week for their annual softball game at Ginn Field. Red Sox And Sultans In Finals Upsets helped the Red Sox and Sultans arrive in the first girls softball senior division finals this week.

The Sultans, 2-10 on the season, defeated the 11-1 Dodgers behind the defense of Maria Cloberty and Allysa Parker, a difficult catch by Debbie Skahan in right field and the hitting of Debbie Taylor and Sarah Raab.

Diane Struthers, Monique MacLearn, Barb Delaney and Ellen Clavin all were standouts for the defeated Dodgers.

In the other semi-final contest, the Sultans pulled out an exciting 11-10 contest over the Pirates. Pitcher Bonnie Jean Casey received strong support from fellow Sultans Sarah Porell, Roxanne Hansen, Tricia Bracken and Tara Gurry.

Coaches of the senior division awarded all-star certificates to Mich Powers, Carey MacDonald, Ellen Clavin, Barb Delaney, Paula Russo, Kim Grano, Maryann Murray, Bonnie Jean Casey, Julie Guarnotta, Tara Gurry, Allysa Parker, Maria Claherty and Diane O'Connell.

Local Star Wins New England

Phil Kadesch, of Mayflower rd., became champion of all New England tennis with a 6-3, 3-6, 6-3 win over John Mayotte of Pittsfield in the finals of the New England Men's Tennis Championships last Sunday.

The tournament was held over the weekend at the Westford Swim and Tennis Club, during which young Kadesch proved to be unbeatable at the serve and volley game.

While the final was an excellent match in the New England Tennis Assn.'s most important sectional tournament, the match of the tournament came in the semi-final when Kadesch, former University of Wisconsin first singles player and Winchester High School star, defeated Michael Leach of Weston, currently the University of Michigan's first singles player.

Kadesch had just returned to New England after playing the second segment of the USTA-Penn Circuit during which he qualified for the Masters tournament played at Hilton Head Island, S.C. during the first week of June.

As New England winner he receives an all-expenses paid trip to California in November where he will compete against the champions of all the other sections of the U.S. Tennis Association.

game again. But with his team losing 10-1 after the top of the fourth, the Merchants' fan admits he's having a hard time enjoying the proceedings.

He moves down from his seat in the back row and stretches across the bleachers like the man with the radio.

"This team gets me so frustrated I could spit," the fan says.

However, the Merchants' fan refuses to give up hope, even though the Merchants are down by eight in the bottom of the sixth.

Looking at the sun still hovering behind the backstop, he says, "We might still be able to get up again before it gets too dark."

Several minutes later, Winchester puts a few hits together and the Merchants fan perks up. "See what happens when you get a little pitching?" he says. "The game gets interesting."

Cheering for players by their first names again, the Merchants' fan claps vigorously as his team piles up runs until it pulls within three.

With the sun out of sight now, the fan's yells of support for designated hitter Bobby Morin stand out among the growing murmurs of interest in the bleachers.

Morin's swing sends the Elms' centerfielder back onto the blacktop behind McCall Junior High School.

As the ball pops out of the fielder's glove and Morin scores the winning run, the baseball fan jumps up and down with his arms raised over his head.

A few feet away, the man with the radio asks, "What happened?"

In December of that year, he bought the house he now lives in and shares with two other people.

"I came back because I still had a lot of friends here. I had stayed close with people I had known before."

He sits comfortably, dressed in a T-shirt, shorts, and sneakers, as he explains that he has never really left his hometown for good.

"I had come back here during the summers when I was playing pro ball

★Glynn

Nervousness, another obstacle to success for many athletes, doesn't usually bother Glynn, she said. "I wasn't nervous at all before the New England's — I probably should have been."

"It seems like I get more nervous for the meets around here, but I don't get as bad as a lot of the kids," she said.

After running at a meet or practice, Glynn says she rarely feels tired. "A lot of people think once you finish running, you can't do anything but lie down," she said. "I get hyperactive a lot of times after I run."

To vent some of her excess energy, Glynn says she likes to socialize with other members of the girls' track team. "We're really a close team," she said. "We always hang around together."

The team's coach in the spring, Joe Cantillon, said Glynn's greatest asset is her devotion to the sport. "Right now, Laurie has the type of commitment you see in a college runner — running is a big part of her life," he said.

Cantillon says Glynn understands her limits and knows how to take advantage of the skills she has. "She realizes she has to pace herself and go at a rate as fast as she can manage," he said. "She knows she's not the type of runner who can put on a big kick at the end."

Both Cantillon and Glynn say it will be hard to improve on her record but they expect her times to get better the more she runs.

Yet despite the shortage of competitors at her level, Glynn says she has no intention of giving up running in addition to speed skating.

She says, "I'll keep it up through high school, at least."

LANDSCAPING CAN RAISE VALUE

If you want to get maximum value out of the home you buy, whether it's brand new or used, make sure it's properly landscaped. Good landscaping can enhance the appearance of a new house and make it look "established." It can complement the architecture and provide a pleasant environment for outdoor living. Landscaping can also help create privacy and reduce noise. As farmers have long known, landscaping can act as a windbreak and can also keep the home cooler in hot weather.

Put all of these things together and they mean that good landscaping can often increase by 10 or 15 percent the price you can get when you sell the property.

time." Rielly, however, doesn't know if her foot is in or out the door.

"I have received so many phone calls from parents asking for my assurance that I'm staying at Vinson-Owen, now that Warnock has resigned," she said. "Since he has resigned, I see no reason why he should be considered for placement," Rielly added.

Hall said assuredly that there is a slight chance of Rielly's being able to stay at Vinson-Owen.

"There is a possibility that she can stay, but I can't tell you the outcome until I speak with the parties involved," she said.

"Technically, we can't take any action until something formal exists," she added.

The controversial issue involves the transfer and lay-off procedure which is based on the financial distribution of the school budget.

However, "lay-offs and transfers don't always mesh with where we need to have the teachers," Hall said.

Rielly was scheduled to be transferred because Warnock needed a place and because Lincoln school was in need of a highly qualified math teacher.

"I was told that I was being transferred for two reasons, but since Warnock's resignation, none of the reasons are holding up," Rielly said.

"As far as I know, I'll be teaching limited amounts of math to the fifth graders at Lincoln," she said.

"My essential feeling is one of disappointment," she added. "I enjoyed a reasonable reputation at Vinson-Owen, particularly in math."

But now that a spot at Vinson-Owen remains open, Rielly doesn't know why she has to go. "It's an undignified move and a poor reward for a good service record," she said. Warnock, a former principal at Lincoln, was assigned to Muraco school in September when the school committee was forced to close two of the eight elementary schools and needed to give both former principals teaching positions.

"We didn't want to assign Warnock to Lincoln because he had been a principal there," Hall said.

"The contract guarantees a placement for principals as teachers after they are RIFed," Constance Pappas, a school committee member said.

Pappas said, "when Parkhurst closed, half of their population was scheduled for transfer to Vinson-Owen, and Kay Rielly came along with them."

Pappas was concerned with the issue of continuity and expressed a need for Kay Rielly to stay at Vinson-Owen.

And for the second week in a row, parents spoke on behalf of Kay Rielly. "At that age, children need a sense of continuity," Edwin Porter, a Vinson-Owen parent said. "Many students had Rielly as a teacher and continued with her at Vinson-Owen. I don't see why we should break up the flow."

"Rielly knows how to motivate children," Porter added.

As of now, Rielly plans to make an appointment with the administrative staff and ask for an honest explanation of what's going on at the committee's earliest convenience.

"You can't help but wonder what's happening and why," Rielly said.

"I think she's a fine teacher," Pappas said of Rielly. "My daughter had her this year."

"I've known her as a teacher and I've always thought her to be outstanding," Pappas said.
